Red and Blue Armies Clash for First Battle of Extensive War Manoeuvres.

AVIATORS ACTIVE IN FIELD

Troops Have a Busy Sunday—Many Men Overcome by Heat—Gov. Dix a Camp Visitor.

Special to The New York Times.

STRATFORD, Conn., Aug. 11.—Before these dispatches are read by New Yorkers at breakfast the most extensive set of military manoeuvres ever planned by the War Department will be in full operation. The Red Army of invasion will be on its way to capture, if possible, the greatest city in the United States.

To-day was one of more or less idleness in camp. The only activities were those of the aviation squadron and the wireless operators, which two branches of the Signal Corps expect to demonstrate that radiograms can be sent from aeroplanes to field headquarters at a distance of more than fifteen miles.

But if to-day—one of intense heat, by the way—was devoid of military activity, there was plenty of camp work to be done, for troops of both the Red and Blue forces were late arriving last night, and when they did arrive it was simultaneous with a drenching rain.

The Twelfth New York Infantry did not make camp at Orange until early today. The wagon train proved troublesome, so that it was late before it was on the way. Lieut. Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who had charge of the landing, was held up by a patrol on both sides on the Milford Turnpike, and had to prove his right to proceed.

Foss Arrives with Troops.

Gov. Foss, comanding the First and Second Massachusetts Brigades, arrived with his troops to-day by train. They landed southeast of Derby and went into camp near there, where the Reds are concentrating a large force. The First Vermont Infantry detrained at Hawleyville late yesterday and marched to camp, where it was brigaded with the Fifth United States Infantry. The New Jersey brigade of three regiments reinforced the Blues and is somewhere in the hilly western part of the fighting area. The Second Maine Infantry joined Gen. Cowles's provisional brigade at Oxford, where the First and Second Connecticut pitched their tents yesterday. Practically all the Red Army is now in position for advance.

Many of the units had trouble in reaching their camps last night. Troop D, First New York Cavalry, from Syracuse, took a train at midnight Friday and reached Bridgeport at midnight. Lieut. Wise, Third Infantry, who had been detailed to guide it, missed connection, and the troop commander started out to find his camp. At 3 o'clock this morning he reached an infantry camp at Woodlawn and dismounted, his men not waiting to put up shelter tents, but rolling themselves in blankets and lying down just as a thunderstorm broke.

After breakfast the troop again started to find brigade headquarters, and had nearly reached this camp when Col. Regan, Lieut. Col. Wolton, and Lieut. Col. Sternberger of the New York Division headquarters found it and set it on the right road.

Aeroplanes a Big Factor.

Not more than 5,000 of the 20,000 men in the field are expected to take part in the preliminary battle to begin in the morning as soon as there is sufficient light. It is predicted that the bloodless though important struggle will be over by 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the latest.

The aeroplane will figure in the battle from start to the finish if the weather conditions permit, and the indication tonight is for good weather.

Lieut. Foulois will fly a machine fitted with wireless, and will also work the apparatus. The apparatus attached to the aeroplane was perfected by Lieut. Foulois, and on this afternoon his messages came clear as a bell from an altitude of more than 2,000 feet to a land station which, at times, was more than fifteen miles distant. The apparatus at Gen. Bliss's headquarters to which Foulois will flash his messages, is the most powerful field equipment in the possession of the Government, and is the same outfit that was used on the Mexican border during the revolution which ended in the elevation to the Mexican Presidency of Francisco Madero.

The flights this morning and again this afternoon brought great crowds to the headquarters camp of Gen. Bliss and Major Gen. O'Ryan, and Adjt. Gen. Verbeck of the New York Guard, all of whom have headquarters on the same field.

Gov. Dix arrived late this afternoon in time to witness the second series of flights, and was present when Foulois, circling over the field at an altitude of between 1,000 and 1,500 feet, tried out the wireless outfit.

Fliers Nearly Hit a Fence.

Lieuts. Milling and Geiger had a thrilling experience getting into the air with their Curtiss machine. The air was full of "holes," and the machine did not leave the ground as soon as it was expected to. The headquarters field is inclosed from the highway by a high stone fence. The machine went into the air less than 100 feet from the fence, and those who witnessed the ascension expected to see it crash head on against the stonework. As it was, the machine went over the fence, but the margin of safety was not more than six inches.

Sergt. Beckwith Havens of the First Signal Company of Manhattan also made a fine flight this afternoon. His was the first flight ever made in this country by an aviator flying as a National Guardsman.

As for the soldiers, not of the Signal Corps, they spent the day trying to keep cool. The day was sweltering and it was several degrees hotter under the tents than it was out in the open. It was said to-night that probably 100 guardsmen had been overcome by the heat during the day, but none of the cases is serious, and it is expected that the entire lot will be in line when the actual work begins tomorrow morning.

While mass was being said in the camp of the Ninth Massachusetts Infantry from Boston fifteen soldiers were overcome and were taken to the regimental hospital. Mass was said also in the Sixty-ninth New York camp, but as those soldiers were fortunate enough to find a shaded spot in which to worship no prostrations occurred.

In another Massachusetts regiment, one battalion of which arrived at Derby this afternoon, twenty-eight men were prostrated on the march to their camp near

HAGUE FOR CANAL DISPUTE.

London Times Says Protest Will Be Strong and That Solution Offered.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 12.—In an editorial on the Panama Canal bill, The Times says this morning:

"The assumption made in Washington that if and when the bill is signed we shall have something more to say upon it is, of course, correct. We shall most certainly protest against it if it remains in its present shape or if it encroaches in any way on what we deem our plain treaty rights. We may or may not be joined by others in that protest, but it will assuredly be made.

"It will, of course, be quite friendly in substance, spirit, and manner, as was the communication already made to Secretary Knox, but it will also be firm.

"The interests involved are too great and the rights, as we conceive, infringed are too plain for us to refrain from asserting them as strongly as the forms of diplomatic intercourse with a friendly nation will allow. There can be no mistake upon that head or upon the degree of support which the Government will receive from the whole Nation and the whole Empire in making the protest.

"Should diplomacy fail to solve the controversy—a contingency we can hardly think probable—confident in the goodness of our cause, we shall unhesitatingly propose to submit the dispute to the arbitration of The Hague. It has already been suggested that the United States Government, which has hitherto prided itself upon being the foremost champion of arbitration, may refuse to go to arbitration in its own case. That is an eventuality which we refuse to contemplate unless and until it becomes imminent."

The Times correspondent in Paris cables:

"The Temps calls attention to the protests of leading American newspapers against the action of the Senate in the matter of the Panama Canal.

"While disclaiming any desire to take part in the controversy before the United States Government comes to a definite decision, the Temps considers that perhaps the United States would serve its own commercial interests better if it respected more scrupulously its legal engagements, and makes the worldly wise observation:

"'La fidélité à la parole donnée est souvent une habileté'" ["Keeping one's word is often sagacity."]

A TABLE D'HOTE ROMANCE.

No More Does Mlle. Eugenie Serve and M. Eugene Take the Cash.

Patrons of Laloy's, the little French restaurant at 230 West Thirty-ninth Street, have noticed in the past week that Eugenie, the attractive dark-eyed and dark-haired waitress who was so popular with the guests, was missing, and also that the tall Frenchman, known as the husband of Mme. Laloy, who collected the money, and twirled a gray mustache in his spare moments, was also gone.

The guests had been whispering that the husband of Madame and la belle Eugenie had gone away to open a new restaurant on the savings from her tips in the four years she had been in the restaurant. A TIMES reporter who called at the restaurant last night was informed by M. Gaston, the son of Mme. Laloy by her first husband, that Mme. Laloy's present husband, whom he designated merely as M. Eugene, and Eugenie had not departed voluntarily, but had been asked to go—"to the door put," to translate him literally.

Madame his mother would get a divorce, he said, and as the lease was in her name the business would go on. M. Eugene would, no doubt, take another restaurant, but not in the name of Laloy, as that was not his name, his mother having kept her own name for business reasons.

Mlle. Hortense, the niece of Madame, who looks after the hats and coats of the guests, laughed merrily while her cousin Gaston told the reporter of the romance of Eugene and Eugenie, and said, "C'est drôle ca."

Mme. Laloy was too busy counting money last night to discuss her domestic affairs, except to say, "Oui, il est parti," and then aside, to a waitress, "Encore un morceau de poulet pour Madame," as she indicated a waiting guest at a nearby table. Even Babette, the highly accomplished cat, which makes friends with all the guests in return for tidbits, seemed to be aware that something had happened and shook her head gravely when she heard guests asking for Eugenie.

EMIGRANT SHIP IN COLLISION.

The Frankfurt, Hit by the Barmen, Is Under Tow to Port.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 11.—The North German Lloyd steamship Frankfurt, bound for Canada from Bremen with 1,200 emigrants on board, collided with the German steamer Barmen, from Rotterdam for Bremen, while off the Hook of Holland Lightship, and is now proceeding to the Hook under tow.

Soon after the collision the Frankfurt began shipping large quantities of water, but the timely arrival of two steamers calmed the passengers, and the disabled vessel was taken in tow.

Wireless dispatches received at Scheveningen to-night from the North German Lloyd liner say that all her passengers are on board and that the vessel is in no danger.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 11.—The German steamer Barmen put back to this port to-night in a damaged condition, as the result of the collision off the Hook of Holland with the Frankfurt. The vessel's forepeak was crushed in and the forward compartments were full of water.

The Adams Leaves Queenstown.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 11.—The Pennsylvania training ship Adams left for Southampton to-day. Its departure was marked by many enthusiastic farewells from people along the foreshore. The American ensign was dipped in response from the Adams. While at Southampton the cadets will have leave to visit London. On their arrival at Havre they will go to Paris.

FIND CHILD GUARDING DEAD BATHERS' GARB

Three-Year-Old Mutely Points to the Hudson Where He Saw Relatives Drown.

ONE DRAGS THE OTHER DOWN

Younger Victim's Mother Attempts Suicide When Told of Accident—Family Reunited Recently.

Peter Meyer, station agent of the New York Central at Spuyten Duyvil, saw a child with long, yellow curls, who appeared to be a girl, sitting on the bank of the Hudson River at the foot of 203d Street yesterday. The child sat there so long that Meyer's curiosity was aroused and he went out to see why the youngster stayed there. He found the little one sitting on two suits of men's clothes. To all of his questions the child made no articulate responses, but merely pointed ot the water.

Meyer called Richard Cox, a boatman, who has a launch and gig livery at Spuyten Duyvil and who also operates a ferry, and told him that he believed two men had been drowned. Cox got out his boat, the Lizzie II., and grappled about until he picked up the bodies of two young men, dressed in blue bathing suits. These they had evidently worn under their street clothing, since they had not used a bathhouse.

When the child, who was about three years old, saw the bodies, there was a torrent of tears. At the Kingsbridge Police Station, the youngster asked for a drink of water in Yiddish, and it was learned that the child was a boy. A policeman speaking Yiddish tried to get him to tell his name and address, but he kept a strict silence.

The only clue to the identity of the drowned youths were postcards in their pockets addressed to Harry Lorelley and William Lorelley, care of Riker's drug store, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street. The manager of the store said last night that the description of the bodies fitted two clerks of that name, except as to age. The police gave the ages of the drowned youths as 28 and 24 years. The manager said they were 24 and 20 years of age.

A mistake in the address furnished by the drug store led to a further delay in the identification, which was finally fixed as that of brothers, William Lubowitz, 19 years old, and Harry Lubowitz, 23 years old, both of 1,709 Washington Avenue, and generally knows as Lorelley. The two lived with their parents, Pasor and Esther Lubowitz, and it was Samuel Lubowitz, brother of the drowned boys, who was watching their clothes.

Ray and Sarah Otrinsky, two cousins of the victims, fainted in the Kingsbridge Police tSation when they saw the clothes of the victims. Mrs. Lubowitz and her husband both became hysterical when informed of the accident. Mrs. Lubowitz tried to jump out of the window of the tenement house, and had to be treated by Ambulance Surgeon Pickett of the Fordham Hospital.

The two drowned boys had recently saved enough money to bring Mr. and Mrs. Lubowitz and their cousins from Russia. They had had a family reunion only two weeks ago, and had moved into larger quarters very lately.

Coroner Winterbottom gave permission to have the bodies removed to Capt. Cox's float, where they were first taken before removal to the Harlem Morgue at the foot of East 120th Street.

The police explanation of the drowning made last night was that the younger boy had been overcome with cramps and had dragged his brother down with him in a struggle against death. They had taken the child with them on the swimming expedition.

JOKING SWIMMER DROWNS.

Brother Thinks Victim Is Repeating Jest When He Goes Down.

His cries for help being ignored by a group that included his own brother, Peter Wolga, 25 years old, of 18 Croton Terrace, Yonkers, was drowned in the Hudson River off Babcock Place yesterday.

Louis Wolga and William Spreer of 6 Clinton Street told the police that Peter had been splashing at them, and that once before he went down he threw up his hands and cried for help. At that time his cries were followed by laughter, and when he was actually in need of help they again thought he was only fooling.

Wolga could not swim, and drowned when he ventured to a point in the river beyond his depth. The body was recovered shortly afterward.

SIX SAVED IN THE HUDSON.

Launch Overturns Rowboat and Then Furnishes a Rescuer.

A rowboat that put off from the Washington Heights Bathing Pavilion at 154th Street and the Hudson River yesterday afternoon, manned by a half dozen boys and girls inexperienced with the oars, and with only one swimmer among them, was struck by a gasoline launch when about 250 yards off shore. The rowboat was overturned, but all of the party was saved through their own efforts and those of a man named John Hughes, who jumped, clothes and all, from the launch.

The rowboat party was made up of Clara Wencke of 1,076 Ogden Avenue, the Bronx, and her nephew, Robert; Carl Steiner of 165 West 165th Street, William and Anna Bushardt of 100 West 162d Street, and Nellie Phelan of 2,856 Eighth Avenue. They were all in bathing suits, but only Nellie Phelan could swim.

The rescuer from the launch, whom his friends encouraged by shouts and directions addressed variously to "John" and "Hughes, old man," made first for the girl who could swim, and easily got her to the launch. Then he swam toward the rowboat, where the little Bushardt girl had gained a hold, and with her free arm was holding her brother afloat. Her clutch on his arm weakened just as Hughes swam to them, and the boy was caught as he rose, gasping, to the surface again.

Hughes swam with these two to the launch, while others on board pulled Steiner to safety. Steiner had had the good luck to fix his fingers firmly on the flagpole of the launch, and it was with difficulty that the rescuers could persuade him to loosen his grip. As he was pulled out, they found that the Wencke boy had clung as firmly to Steiner's leg, so it was a double rescue. Finally, Miss Wencke herself was brought in by Hughes, and the whole submerged six were taken back to the pavilion. The

GRABS SUBWAY CASH, SHOOTS, AND ESCAPES

Robber Blackjacks Agent, Gets $33, and Fires on Dyckman Street Station Employes.

LEAVES MASK AND WIG

Thief Accidentally Shoots Himself in Wrestling with Subway Laundry Collector.

Just before the money car passed through the Broadway division of the Subway early yesterday morning Frederick Kissam, the station agent at Dyckman Street, put up his night's collections in four canvas bags. There was $78 in all, of which $45 in bills and coin of the larger denominations Kissam put in one bag. The other three bags contained $33 in nickels, dimes, and quarters.

With two of the bags in each hand, Kissam started up a private stairway leading from the ticket booth at the street level to the train platform above. As he reached the elbow of this stairway a man struck him over the head with a blackjack. Kissam cried out, and the man struck him again, knocking him unconscious.

Kissam's assailant had scarcely picked up three of the bags, those containing $33 in all, and reached the bottom of the stairway when he found himself confronted by George Moffatt, the ticket chopper; Ernest Ogburne, the negro porter, and Max D. Wolfson, who collected for the laundry the soiled white uniform of the men on the Broadway arm of the Subway. The largest bag, containing $45, the robber left behind him in his hurry to get away.

The robber drew a revolver and fired over the heads of the little group which barred his way. Ogburne and Moffatt ducked, but Wolfson reached out and grasped the robber. The robber fired a second time, and the bullet pierced the waistband of Wolfson's trousers and came out through the pocket of his coat. It grazed Wolfson's skin and set fire to his coat. The plucky wardrobe man thought he had been wounded, but held on.

The robber fired again. By this time Wolfson was fighting desperately and he made the bullet go wild. It penetrated the robber's own arm and set his sleeve afire. The robber kicked Wolfson vigorously and tore himself free, pressing his gun close to Wolfson's head. In this way he made his escape.

Moffatt ran out into the street after him, but the robber kept him covered with his pistol. Ogburne got Police Headquarters by telephone and had the St. Nicholas Avenue Station notified. Patrolman Cunningham, who was assigned to the case, found a black domino mask and a gray wig, which the robber had used, lying on the ground outside the station. These were the only clues the police had.

According to reports made to Subway officials late last night an arrest in the case is expected soon. Detectives are looking for a man who was out at the time of the robbery and who came home shortly afterward. At that time he asked his landlady for some peroxide, saying he had been shot accidentally in the arm. He was not at home when detectives called.

Kissam, the station agent, who is fifty-one years old, was badly battered by the robber and it will be several days before he will be able to resume his duties. He was treated by Dr. Shea of Fordham Hospital.

KILLED IN AUTO BY TRAIN.

Enoch Drake and Wife Meet Death as Sister Watches Their Peril.

Special to The New York Times.

LIMA, Ohio, Aug. 11.—A touring car was struck by an Erie train near Spencerville at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Enoch Drake, a wealthy business man and oil operator, of Mendon, Ohio, and Mrs. Mary Coleman of Mendon, sister of Mr. Drake, were killed. Mrs. Enoch Drake was badly crushed and may die.

Mr. Drake failed to hear the train and on account of a curve did not see it until too late. Just as the machine was squarely on the track its engine stopped. Before any one of the occupants had time to jump the locomotive struck the automobile and carried it 500 feet before the train could be stopped.

The bodies of Mrs. Drake and Mrs. Coleman were found in the wrecked machine. Mrs. Drake was unconscious. She was taken to the home of Drake's sisters, 100 yards from the crossing. Miss Amelia Drake, standing on the porch of her home, saw her brother and sister killed.

Schroeder of Wrecked Lackawanna Train Seeks $50,000 Damages.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Aug. 11.—William H. Schroeder, engineer in charge of the Lackawanna Express that on the morning of July 4 crashed into the rear of passenger train 9, at Corning, has brought action against Funk & Wagnalls of New York, asking $50,000 damages for a statement made in an article published in The Literary Digest of July 20, putting the blame for the wreck on the engineer.

The plaintiff alleges in his complaint the wreck was caused by matter beyond his control and that he had no warning of approaching danger.

SHE PREPARED NO MEALS

Lived Only on Biscuits, Though the Sale of Her Furniture Alone Would Have Brought Large Sum.

For several months the Clare Arms Apartment House at 3,120 Broadway has been the home of a recluse, Eugenia Leutrel, the thirty-five-year-old daughter of the late State Senator George M. Leutrel, who was a Tammany man of power in his day. The woman was watched with interest by the neighbors, for she was never known to go upon the street, but remained always within the five rooms of her apartment except for the few moments every evening when she slipped out and paced the dim corridors of the building for exercise.

Yesterday afternoon the Superintendent of the building realized that he had not seen his strange tenant since Friday. He made inquiries. No one else had seen her since Friday. He knocked at the apartment and got no answer. Finally, after a deal of worrying, he took his pass key and entered.

Stretched on the dining room floor, Miss Leutrel lay dead. The curious persons who pressed in after the Superintendent, and those who came later when Coroner Winterbottom made his official visit, looked with wonder on the surroundings among which the dead woman lay.

Though she had moved into the apartment at the death of her mother five months ago, not one piece of the fine old furniture had been unpacked. Not one thing was in place. The rugs were rolled up and stood in the corner. Everywhere there was dust, and it seemed as if the broom had not moved in the rooms or the cloth been dusted since the tenant moved in. There were no signs of cooking anywhere. It seemed that there had been no cooking there since the tenant moved in. There were milk bottles, and bits of biscuit, and a collection of small bottles that had contained the powder of malted milk. On these things she had lived.

There will be an autopsy this morning. The Coroner was not prepared to give his opinion of the cause of death, but he implied that he suspected starvation. Yet there were plenty of people in the Clare Arms who were sure that Miss Leutrel had money in abundance, and that she could have signed her name to a large check whenever she wanted to. More than that, the accumulation of unused, untouched furniture is of no small value.

Miss Leutrel lived in the Clare Arms with her mother, and only moved into the smaller apartment when Mrs. Leutrel died.

Seeking some friends of the dead woman, the authorities found the card of Max Just, a real estate dealer with an office in Dyckman Street. He said that he hardly knew Miss Leutrel, but had known the father.

From a perusal of tax receipts and bank books, found in the suite, Coroner Winterbottom estimated that Miss Leutrel was worth nearly $130,000. Jewelry valued at nearly $2,000 was found. The receipts, the bank books and the jewelry were turned over to the police. At the request of Mr. Just, Coroner Winterbottom, who said Miss Leutrel died from natural causes, gave permission for the removal of the body to an undertaking establishment.

It was shown by several tax receipts that Miss Leutrel owned real estate in Jacksonville, Fla., as well as in this city. The assessed value of the Jacksonville property is $11,000, and that of the property in this city $88,000. One of the bankbooks showed that Miss Leutrel had deposited $21,600 in the United States Mortgage and Trust Company. The other bankbooks were issued by the Union Dime Savings Bank, the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, and the Harlem Branch of the Corn Exchange Bank, and showed deposits amounting to about $9,000.

NEW HUNCHBACK TREATMENT

Johns Hopkins Physicians Trying Experiments to Relieve Pressure.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 11.—Physicians of the Johns Hopkins Hospital are planning a series of interesting experiments for perfecting a new treatment for Potts disease, commonly known as "hunchback," entirely eliminating the old mechanical devices. Grafting of bone will form a conspicuous part.

For many years, it is admitted, much success has been obtained in the old way, although there has always been desired a treatment which will relieve prssure. The new treatment is said to do this. The operation will be performed in a similar manner to that for stiffening of the knee joint, as was done recently by mortising the knee plate in one of the tendons of the leg into the joint after the tough and fibrous tissue surrounding the bone had been removed, thus generating the necessary bony tissue. The fibrous tissues, as removed, were preserved and returned to the upper and lower joints, where a continuous bone was produced, thus obliterating the joints. It is on this theory that the new method of treating Potts disease is based.

DOUBLE SKIN FOR OLYMPIC.

White Star Liner to be Renovated at $1,000,000 Cost.

BELFAST, Ireland, Aug. 11. — During the coming Winter the White Star liner Olympic will undergo a renovation costing close to $1,000,000. The principal alterations will be the provision of side bunkers, which practically means an inner or second shell.

The decision of the White Star Line to renovate the Olympic is in accordance with a recommendation contained in the judgment pronounced by the British Board of Trade inquiry into the Titanic disaster that sea-going ships, in additon to their water-tight transverse bulkheads, be provided with a double skin, carried above the water line, or with a longitudinal vertical watertight bulkhead on each side of the vessel, or both.

IMITATES PICTURE MURDER.

Four-Year-Old Boy Who Saw Film Show Kills Baby Brother.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Imitating what he said he had seen in moving pictures, 4-year-old Leo Avery, son of Merton Avery, picked up a revolver which he saw lying on a mantelpiece in his home to-day and fired a bullet into the brain of his 2-year-old brother Floyd, killing him instantly.

The father of the boys, who is night watchman at a factory, left the revolver where he thought it out of reach. Leo, however, climbed on a chair and spied the weapon. As his little brother toddled into the room the boy playfully pointed the revolver at him and pulled the trigger. The child stumbled into the kitchen and died in his mother's arms.

Lieut. Scott Captures $5,000 by Accurate Dropping from Aeroplane.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The trials for the $5,000 Michelin prize for bomb dropping from an aeroplane at a height of 2,400 feet ended at the Chalons Camp to-day in an American victory, subject to confirmation by the French Aero Club.

The winners were Gaubert, in a Wright aeroplane, and his marksman, Lieut. Scott of the United States Army. Scott dropped the bombs three at a time. The first three fell outside the target, which was a rectangular space 170 by 40 feet. Subsequently his marksmanship improved, and he dropped eight projectiles within the target.

GOV. JOHNSON WILL RESIGN.

Arrives Home from Chicago to Prepare to Take Up Battle.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, candidate of the Progressive Party for Vice President, arrived to-day from Chicago and announced he would resign as Governor of California. He stopped at Sacramento, the capital of the State, only ten minutes, where he made an address to a crowd at the railroad station.

In his talk he said that he had been drafted into the ranks of the fighters for the cause which the Third Party represented, and that he was ready to do his duty.

He will remain at his home here until Tuesday morning, when he will go to Sacramento to attend the duties of his office. At the end of two weeks he will return East to begin his speech-making tour.

NO ONE TO SHOOT MURDERER

Condemned Man Chose That Form of Death—Executioners Scarce.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 11.—Warden George W. Cowing of the Nevada State Penitentiary faces the strangest situation in his experience as head of the institution. Before Aug. 23 he must find five men to shoot a man in execution of a death sentence for murder.

Andriji Mirkovich, a murderer duly convicted, was under the new statutes of Nevada given his choice of death either by hanging or shooting. He chose shooting, and the date of execution was set for Aug. 23. Warden Cowing has approached a number of men who have absolutely refused to undertake the job of shooting a human being. He is at a loss as to how to carry out the death sentence.

The Warden said that he would have the matter brought to the attention of the court. Meantime he is urging the condemned man to change his mind and go to his death upon the gallows. Mirkcvich refuses. He remains passive through it all. If he must die, he wants to be shot.

LAUNCH WITH 21 CAPSIZES.

C. J. Sullivan and John McDonough Rescue All but Two Boys.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 11.—Two boys were drowned when the motor boat Pippin capsized in Dorchester Bay this afternoon with twenty-one persons aboard.

John Smith of 147 Herrishof Street, Roxbury, and Michael Hartigan of 10 Lamont Street, Roxbury, climbed into a small tender of the launch, which upset, and they were lost.

Christopher J. Sullivan, after doing yeoman work in rescuing members of the party, dived for Martha Glynn, having caught a glimpse of the little girl's body far below the surface. He reached a point where he could no longer stand the pressure and rose to the surface, and, drawing a long breath, went down again. It was over a minute before he appeared, bearing the little girl in his arms. The crew worked over her for hours before she finally drew breath.

John McDonough dived ten feet and brought to the surface Lillian Robb, who had gone down for the last time.

ROCKEFELLER'S CANDIDATE.

She Is Mrs. Ellen Milton, and He'll Elect Her To-morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 11.—A school election will be held at Pocantico Hills on Tuesday, when Mrs. Ellen Milton, John D. Rockefeller's candidate, will run to succeed herself as Trustee. In the May election Irving L. Bryant, a farmer, sprang a surprise and defeated Mrs. Milton by one vote because the Rockefeller forces were expecting no opposition. Mr. Rockefeller, however, carried the election to the State department at Albany, and had it thrown out on a technicality and a new election was ordered.

Mr. Rockefeller is not taking any more chances, and Tuesday night a large number of voters from his estate will be on hand. No opposition is expected from Bryant, who has sold his place to Mr. Rockefeller and will move away.

What the Catholics will do is not known. Mr. Rockefeller recently bought several tracts of land which the Catholic Foreign Missionaries Society of Hawthorne wanted for a new home, and they may resent Mr. Rockefeller's action by putting up a candidate. Cardinal Farley has ordered that the purchase of the Oussani property of fifty-two acres by Mr. Rockefeller be fought in the courts.

Julius Rosenwald Makes Birthday Donations to Charity and Education.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Julius Rosenwald, President of Sears, Roebuck & Co., one of the biggest mail-order concerns in the United States, announced to-day that in commemoration of his fiftieth birthday he had decided to make a gift of $687,500 for charitable and educational purposes. A few months only have passed since Mr. Rosenwald authorized a gift from the company of $1,000,000, the income from which is to be devoted to educating the farmer to extract the greatest amount of produce from the soil.

Jewish and Christian bodies are included in the seven institutions specified by Mr. Rosenwald as beneficiaries of his gift, while $25,000 goes to Dr. Booker T. Washington for negro education.

The money is to be distributed as follows: To the University of Chicago, for the erection of a woman's gymnasium and buildings for geological, geographical, and classical departments, $250,000; Associated Jewish Charities of Chicago, $250,000; Chicago Hebrew Institute, for the erection and equipment of a gymnasium, $50,000; the endowment of a Country Club for Social Workers, $50,000; Marks Nathan Home for Jewish Orphans, $25,000; Chicago Winfield Tuberculosis Sanitarium, $25,000, and to the Glenwood Manual Training School for the purchase of Meister Farm, $12,500.

SCHEPPS FEARS TO TRUST POLICE

Offers $500 to be Brought Back to This City Unknown to the New York Force.

SAYS THEY WOULD KILL HIM

DOUGHERTY TOLD A DAY LATE

HAS PROMISE OF IMMUNITY

If He Tells All, Says His Lawyer—Dougherty Hears of Suspect Taken in the Catskills.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Aug. 11.—"There are more than 10,000 police officers in New York City, and 9,000 of them would not hesitate to put me out of the way if they had hair a chance," declared Sam Schepps, arrested in this city late yesterday afternoon as one of the men wanted for the Rosenthal murder. "I do not want to go back with those Burns detectives or with Whitman's representatives. I will give you $500, Capt. Howell, if you will take me back right away and not say anything to them as to when you will arrive there with me."

This statement was made to-night in a room in the Marquette Hotel, where Schepps is being detained under a heavy guard. Police Capt. Howell frowned down the offer and assured the fugitive he would have to go back with the New York officers, who are expected here tonight. The start for New York with Schepps doubtless will be made on the train leaving here early to-morrow morning.

Considers a Choice of Deaths.

During their talk to-night, Schepps turned to Capt. Howell and said:

"Looks like I had just about as well take a chance out of this window for a run."

"Well, it wouldn't be much chance," answered Howell.

"Would you shoot?" asked Schepps.

"Yes, and I can hit a rabbit running," replied the Captain.

"Well, then, I will think it over. With the electric chair on one side, the gang and police on the other, and a bullet that would go straight and end it all here, it is hard to tell which is best. I might run and settle it here.

"I don't know what to do. It looks like either the Dutch route or squeal. I am not a squealer. I don't know why they did all this. Sometimes I don't give a damn, and am glad it is this far over. I might as well be dead as driven from New York, and exiled in some other part of the world as a squealer. If I told I couldn't live in New York; they would not let me. And if I don't tell God only knows what will become of me. I never sanctioned the killing of Rosenthal, and I only wanted to serve all my friends. They are all my friends."

This strain of talk was interrupted for a minute, when Schepps said:

"Dougherty won't get me, will he? There is nothing he can do to me but kill me, and I guess they won't stand for that. He can't chew me up, and Dougherty knows that I know he is the big pyrotechnical display in New York, and nothing more."

For days the District Attorney's office in New York knew that Schepps was here and he was under constant surveillance. A day before Schepps was arrested a special officer from District Attorney Whitman had started for Hot Springs to make the arrest. For more than a week Schepps has been passing private detectives who were sent here to catch him..

Schepps was arrested late yesterday afternoon as he was in the act of posting a letter indirectly addressed to Jack Rose, now in the custody of the police of New York.

Postmaster Made the Arrest.

Postmaster Fred Johnson, who holds a commission as a Deputy United States Marshal, effected the arrest and turned the man over to the custody of Capt. Howell.

The local police are taking no chances with the prisoner and are keeping him under a close guard in the hotel rather than confine him in the city or county jail, for several important prisoners have escaped with ease from these prisons.

Schepps has been in Hot Springs since the 1st of the month, and was taking a course of hot water baths at the Buckstaff baths. He used the name of Sam Franklin here and represented himself to be a business man from San Francisco.

The early part of last week Schepps received an invitation from the wife of a local physician to attend a church function at the home of Prosecuting Attorney J. B. Wood, and he accepted. There he met some of the church workers of the city and also had half an hour's chat with Judge Wood.

"I have had a most pleasant evening," said Schepps as he was leaving the social. "I have not often attended such functions, but had I known before that one could find such genuine enjoyment and pleasure at them I would have attended church oftener."

Has Not Confessed Yet.

A report to-night gained wide circulation that Schepps had made a full confession to his local captors, but when asked if this report were true he denied it quite vigorously.

"I am not going to give out any more interviews. I have talked too much already," he declared, and that was all the reporters could get out of him.

A representative of District Attorney Whitman, as well as a couple of Burns detectives, are expected to arrive in the city on a late train to-night, and Schepps will be rushed back to New York. He fears that he will be assassinated before reaching New York or shortly afterward. Hence his offer to pay Capt. Howell to take him back secretly, believing he may reach safe quarters in New York that way without the police of that city learning of his arrival.

The prisoner is to-night considerably worried. When he is not sitting on the side of the bed in the hotel room he is pacing the floor, his hands clasped behind him and his fingers twitching nervously.

When he talks there is a tremor in his voice and his face has a deathly pallor. He is undecided whether to make a clean breast of it all or remain silent, and says he will consider this matter on the train while speeding back to New York, and hopes to have his mind fully made up by the time he gets there.

His Letter to Rose.

The letter to Jack Rose that he had just posted when Postmaster Johnson arrested him follows:

"Dear Friend Jack: Your letter forwarded to me and contents noted. All I can say is I am mighty sorry it has turned out the way for you, dear old pal; however, at this stage I can dispense with sympathy, as it can't help any now. I have read very little about the case so far, and I can't bear to think of it any more.

"When you asked of me I considered very carefully, and looked at it from all sides, and find I am in very bad, regardless of the leniency you say Mr. Whitman holds out for us. That you had a guilty knowledge of the facts before its preparation is a fact from your confession. So why do you want to corroborate a few lies—for instance, such as that I paid the $1,000 to L. L. on Forty-second Street, and a few others which I dare not mention?

"However, Jack, my name is Sam, and I don't go back on a pal such as you. If you had trusted me with more of your confidences this terrible state of affairs never may have come to pass. But what is done can't be undone. I have no right to preach to you and I shan't. I am at present in poor health, having taken salversan, also other treatment, and am all broke up with worry and sickness. However, if you decide to state truthfully the entire state of affairs and what part you had in same I will come gladly for you, Jack, because you know what I think of you.

Had Agreed to Return.

"Yes, I have been and am very sorry for it, as now, to prove my loyalty to you, I must become a squealer. Still, I am willing, even at that cost, on these conditions, that you will only expect me to tell the truth and nothing but the truth, or else write, word for word, what you expect of me. Also, I will not be ready to see Mr. W.'s (District Attorney) representatives until after the 19th of August.

"If the foregoing is satisfactory, I will come, but you must send me a wire to this effect before the 19th. Then I will be ready to meet the man and go with him to New York. He won't find me if I don't get this wire. I shall change my address to-day, but if all is O. K. I meet on the 19th at the Arlington Hotel the man he will send. Let me know his name in advance. I am sick of being hounded and seeing my mug in the papers.

"My best wishes to you, and may God help us all, SAM FRANKLIN."

The letter which Jack Rose had written here to Schepps read as follows:

"Dear Sam: I don't know what you have heard or read, but it has got down to a stage where the electric chair stares us in the face. The first man to try and get from under was Becker. There was many people who saw everything that night, and the next day the District Attorney knew what part everybody played in the thing, and nobody could have got away.

"I was deserted like a dog by Becker. When I saw what the situation was I opened up negotiations with the District Attorney, who offered me a sort of cover that I cannot go into details by writing. I insisted that the same protection given me be extended to Harry, 'Bridgey' and you, to which he finally agreed. We are all pleased with the arrangement, and our worry has been to get you to come in to get the same benefits we got before it is too late.

"My advice is to let me send a representative of the District Attorney to bring you back here. That would prevent the police getting you, and putting you through a third degree. Don't say a word to any one. You know, Sam, that you have been too loyal and dear a friend of mine for me to ask you to do this if I wasn't positive that you haven't got a chance otherwise. Immediately on receipt of this wire me to Louis House what you want to do. JACK."

Told to Hold Schepps for Whitman.

That District Attorney Whitman fears Schepps may fall into the hands of the New York police and possibly be done away with was indicated in a telegram received late to-night by Acting Mayor Tom Pettit, who is also proprietor of the Marquette Hotel, where the prisoner is being kept. This message requested that under no circumstances should the local police turn the prisoner over to any New York officer unless that officer was equipped with credentials from the District Attorney's office. It stated further that such an officer would arrive in Little Rock to-night, see the Governor on Monday morning and obtain extradition papers, and come to this city to-morrow after Schepps.

"What's the use of them going to all that trouble?" asked Schepps when shown the telegram. "I am willing to return to New York without extradition papers, and will give them no trouble."

VALLON'S TIP LED TO SCHEPPS.

Whitman Says Schepps's Hiding Place Was Revealed by the Gambler.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Aug. 11.—"From telegrams I have received I am convinced that the Hot Springs officers have the right man," said District Attorney Whitman of New York to-night when asked about the arrest in Arkansas last night of a man named Sam Schepps, wanted in connection with the murder of Herman Rosenthal in New York. Mr. Whitman said he had learned of Schepps's whereabouts from Harry Vallon.

Beyond expressing his gratification at the arrest, Mr. Whitman would say nothing more about the Rosenthal case. "I am here for a rest," he said. He planned to leave for New York at 1:44 Monday morning over the Rutland Branch of the New York Central Railroad.

DOUGHERTY TOLD A DAY LATE.

Also Hears of Arrest in Catskills—Whitman's Men Will Get Schepps.

The arrest in Hot Springs, Ark., on Saturday of Sam Schepps, paymaster of the Rosenthal murder gang, was still the latest important development in the graft murder yesterday. The value of the capture to District Attorney Whitman in his attempt to spin a web of evidence about Lieut. Charles Becker which should convict him of Rosenthal's murder, occasioned considerable speculation among lawyers and others closely connected with the investigation of Rosenthal's death. For Schepps's value must depend entirely on the extent of his knowledge of how and why the murder of Rosenthal was brought about.

The circumstances of his arrest, however, threw a brilliant light on the manner in which the police and the District Attorney are working apparently at loggerheads in the conduct of the murder inquiry.

Word of Schepps's arrest was received in this city early yesterday morning. Before nightfall District Attorney Whitman, in Manchester, Vt., with his family for the week-end, had been apprised of Schepps's capture and declared that he had no doubt the prisoner in Hot Springs, Ark., was the man he so much wanted. He said he had been told of Schepps's whereabouts by Harry Vallon in his cell in the West Side Prison.

Dougherty Hears It's True.

But it was not until 11:10 o'clock last night that Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, who has been in charge of the police end of the Rosenthal murder investigation, learned officially that Schepps had been captured. Already the story of his arrest had been published and into Mr. Dougherty's ears was being dinned the fact that Mr. Whitman was fully cognizant of the arrest and that apparently the Police Departmnet of New York purposely had been kept in ignorance of the clues which had led to the finding of Schepps and to his final capture.

The dispatch which enlightened Mr. Dougherty, officially, of Schepps's arrest, also apparently put the disposal of the prisoner in his hands, and removed him from the grasp of the District Attorney, at least one of whose detectives was said to be speeding toward Hot Springs to take charge of the prisoner. The dispatch, which was dated Hot Springs, and which reached Police Headquarters addressed to Mr. Dougherty, read:

> Have Sam Schepps under arrest. Wanted in your city for homicide. Await your instructions.
> JAMES LEONARD, Chief of Police.

Commissioner Dougherty was notified at his home in Sheepshead Bay as soon as the telegram was received. He said he had no outside information as to how Schepps was identified or arrested, but from the positive tone of the telegram he assumed it to be correct. He said that he would forward no instructions as to the disposal of Schepps until he had communicated with District Attorney Whitman and learned his desires.

Suspect Caught in Catskills.

The arrest of Schepps was the second in the Rosenthal case of which Mr. Dougherty was notified yesterday. From Tannersville, N. Y., there came word that a suspect had been arrested in a boarding house near Hunter, the hamlet at which the search for "Gyp the Blood" Horowitz and "Lefty Louie" Rosenzweig has centred for the last week. Mr. Dougherty refused to make public just how much he had learned about the Hunter arrest, but he said he had received interesting information.

The possession of Schepps, if Mr. Whitman's men do not forestall him, will prove particularly grateful to Mr. Dougherty, for Schepps is quoted as having said that five detectives from New York found him in the Catskills and then deliberately turned their backs on him that he might escape.

But Schepps, if he can avoid it, will not return to this city in charge of Mr. Dougherty's men. The dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES from Hot Springs last night told how Schepps had pleaded with Capt. Howell of the local police to escort him to New York himself and to keep the time of his arrival here a secret.

A dispatch received here last night from Capt. Howell indicated that despite Chief Leonard's assurance that Schepps would be held for Mr. Dougherty's men, he might nevertheless, be turned over to agents of District Attorney Whitman. In response to a telegraphed inquiry, Capt. Howell replied:

> Sam Schepps is arrested here and held in my custody for District Attorney Whitman. He does not make a confession, but he does not deny his identity nor that, should he tell his story, it would be of vital importance to the case.

His Part in the Murder Plot.

Sam Schepps occupies a position in the Rosenthal case quite different from those of either Jack Rose or "Bridgey" Webber, for, while these men are known to have dealt directly with Lieut. Becker, Schepps apparently was a tool of Jack Rose and dealt principally with him. Schepps it is who has been called the paymaster of the murder crew, for it was to him that Jack Rose says he passed "Bridgey" Webber's $1,000 when Lieut. Becker, anxious to get the gunmen out of the city, urged Webber:

"We've got to get those men away. You've got the money. Fix it and I'll make it right with you."

Schepps, too, was associated with Rose and with Vallon in the hiring of the gray murder car and in the rides which were taken in it in the course of gathering together the gunmen. He was not present when the murder occurred, however, and is not known to have been with Becker or to have seen him either before or after the shooting.

His part was played the next afternoon, when he distributed among the gunmen $1,000, with which they were to leave town.

That Schepps can tell much of interest to Mr. Whitman seems certain, however, for it is known through letters found in Schepps's possession that Jack Rose had been in communication with him, and the bald-headed gambler, than whom Mr. Whitman now has no more eager assistant, would never waste time seeking a confession from a man who had nothing to confess.

Bernard Sandler, counsel for Schepps, said he had received a telegram from Schepps yesterday in which Schepps said he was glad to be in the hands of the police and to be headed toward New York, and only too willing to tell all that he knows of the Rosenthal murder.

What this may prove to be Mr. Sandler said he had no idea. He had had no opportunity to consult with his client and couldn't say now whether Schepps's revelations would support the confessions of Rose, Webber, and Vallon, or whether what he had to say might take an entirely different line.

He said that had it not been for the police and the private detectives he would have had Schepps in this city before now. The lawyer laughed as he explained that he had received frequent invitations to meet friends of Schepps at appointed places, where the return of Schepps would have been effected.

Wherever he went, however, Mr. Sandler said, his footsteps were dogged by a cluster of sleuths, who never let him out of their sight or kept out of sight of the timid and reluctant emissaries of Schepps whom he was trying to meet. As a result, said Mr. Sandler, he never met any one.

"I have already made a bargain with the District Attorney, and Mr. Whitman will grant immunity to my client for a frank statement of all he knows," said Mr. Sandler.

"Does that mean that Schepps will make a confession?" Mr. Sandler was asked.

"I do not know that he has a confession to make," parried the lawyer. "My attitude is that Schepps is not wanted except as a witness, but the only condition under which I shall continue to serve as his counsel is that he shall tell all he knows to aid the prosecution."

Mr. Sandler said that Schepps had had an unhappy home life which had thrown him into the company of such men as Webber and Rose, and that he had been under Rose's influence to the extent that he would do anything Rose bade him.

"GYP THE BLOOD" SEEN HERE.

Private Detective Says Slayer Was in the City on Saturday.

Harry Horowitz, or "Gyp the Blood," one of the two gunmen involved in the slaying of Herman Rosenthal who up to date have avoided arrest, was seen in this city no longer ago than Saturday night, according to a private detective who is not engaged in the search for Rosenthal's murderers, and who stipulated that his identity be not revealed. This man said he received his information from a resident of the lower east side, who has known Horowitz for some time. He was certain his informant could not be mistaken.

He said that Horowitz had circulated freely on Saturday night through the cafés of lower Second Avenue, and had appeared in several places where stuss games were in operation. He said that Horowitz apparently was making no effort to conceal his presence in the city, but rather was going out of his way to be seen in his old haunts.

District Attorney Whitman, it is known, has felt that the immunity from arrest of both Horowitz and his companion slayer, "Lefty Louie" Rosenzweig, has furnished so far the greatest substantiation of the rumor that both men have been receiving from the police the protection which was promised to them as part of the price for the slaying of Rosenthal. If it is found Horowitz actually has been in the city, that fact will do much to strengthen the belief Mr. Whitman is known to hold.

Had Been in the Catskills.

The detective who told of Horowitz having been seen here said he had no information as to whether the gunman had returned for good and would depend either on his immunity or on his cleverness in eluding the police to make his stay here safe, or whether he meant to hurry away again.

He learned from his informant, however, that both Horowitz and Rosenzweig had been in the Catskills since the shooting, and that Horowitz had returned to the city because his health was breaking down under the hardships which he and Rosenzweig had been forced to endure.

He understood he said, that the hunted men had been camping out in the mountains, and that on many nights they had slept with no cover other than the sky. They had been wet by driving rains and chilled by night winds until Horowitz, never of a sturdy constitution because of his life in the cafés and dives of the lower east side, had felt his health breaking and his strength leaving him.

He understood that Horowitz had stuck it out as long as he was capable physically, and then had run whatever risks he might by returning to this city, where he could find friends, shelter, and funds.

Has Vanished Again.

No trace of Horowitz could be found last night in the places he was accustomed to frequent before his hasty departure from the city, and no one of the many persons who know him throughout the east side seemed willing to admit having seen the gunmen in recent days.

Whether it be accepted as true or not that protection is being afforded to Horowitz and Rosenzweig both men would risk much by remaining in this city, where their detection would surely result in their arrest, since their presence here, were it called to the attention of the police by outside sources, could not be ignored.

The story that Sam Schepps had been trapped in the Catskills, but that he had avoided arrest by the perfection with which he adopted an air of righteous indignation, and the vigor with which he protested that he was not Schepps, but an innocent man named Schmitt, was circulated through the east side cafés two weeks ago. Schepps now is under arrest in Hot Springs, whither he fled apparently as soon as the detectives left him in the Catskills.

It is believed that Horowitz, his funds replenished perhaps by his visit to his old haunts, is now off again to some out-of-the-way place, hopeful that the fate of Schepps may not overtake him.

WITNESSES FOR GRAFT QUIZ.

Aldermen Get Promises to Appear from Those Who Should Know.

Alderman H. H. Curran, Chairman of the Aldermanic Investigating Committee, spent several hours yesterday on an investigation preliminary to the graft inquiry which begins officially to-day with a meeting to select counsel and decide on other details.

Alderman Curran has received scores of letters naming gambling houses and disorderly resorts which are alleged to contribute to police blackmailers, naming the police officials said to be the beneficiaries. Some of these letters go into minute detail and purport to show the exact amounts which such places have to pay to exist, and the exact apportionment of graft among the police who are accused of participating. Alderman Curran said yesterday that all of these charges touched men of higher grade than patrolman. Several of the communications are believed to come from members of the Police Department.

In addition to letters, Mr. Curran says that many who are in a position to know the inside of the gambling situation have unexpectedly volunteered as witnesses. The information contained in the letters is not fit to be used as testimony without verification. It is understood that the leaders of the Aldermanic inquiry have already employed detectives to get evidence by investigating the statements made in letters. Mr. Curran refused last night to say whether or not detectives were being used.

If the charges against police officials are supported at the Aldermanic inquiry they will be turned over to some other tribunal for further action. Mr. Curran said last night:

"The Aldermen have no power, so far as I know, to remove police officials, even if they are proved guilty of serious offenses. We might recommend their dismissal, but that is as far as we could go. Whether we could pass ordinances that would go far to better the police situation is another question on which I am in doubt. If a radical change is to be made in the method of governing the Police Department, it will have to be done by act of Legislature, I believe. In spite of the fact that our power is somewhat limited, I expect that it will do permanent good. It will throw a light on the situation, and show what reforms ought to be made."

Chairman Curran conferred with other Aldermen yesterday on the question of appointing a counsel to conduct the inquiry. President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen and Magistrate Corrigan have both been suggested. Mr. Curran refused to discuss this question in advance of to-day's meeting.

PROGRESS IN SOLVING ROSENTHAL MURDER

What Has Been Done in the 26 Days Since Gambler Was Slain by Hired Assassins.

TEN MEN NOW UNDER ARREST

Two of the Actual Slayers Still at Large—Whitman Active, but Police Inert—Gaynor's Attitude.

Twenty-six days have elapsed since the murder of Herman Rosenthal on the sidewalk in front of the Hotel Metropole a few moments before 2 o'clock on the morning of July 16 last. Yesterday there were under arrest in connection with the case ten men, of whom one alone is under indictment for murder in the first degree. The others are held on murder charges, and against four at least of these nine a blanket indictment charging first degree murder is expected when the Grand Jury resumes its sessions to-morrow.

Lieut. Charles Becker, whom Rosenthal accused of beinf his partner, and who stands charged with having planned the murder of Rosenthal for threatening to expose him, is the only man so far under indictment.

The others who occupy cells, one in Hot Springs, Ark., the rest in the Tombs or in the West Side Prison, are Louis Libby and William Shapiro, the owner and driver of the gray murder car; Jack Rose, the self-confessed collector for Lieut. Becker; "Bridgey" Webber, the gambler and proprietor of the poker rooms at Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue where the gunmen gathered for the attack on Rosenthal; Harry Vallon, Webber's partner; Jacob Reich, or Jack Sullivan, as he prefers to be known, the intimate friend of Lieut. Becker; "Whitey" Lewis, and "Dago Frank" Cirosici, two of the gunmen, and Samuel Schepps, paymaster of the murderers.

Actual Slayers Still at Large.

It is against Sullivan, Schepps, "Whitey" Lewis, and "Dago Frank" Cirosici that it is expected a blanket indictment will be found, and included in this will be the names of Lieut. Becker and Harry Horowitz, or "Gyp the Blood," and "Lefty Louie" Rosenzweig. When this shall have been found it is believed that the name of every man who can be accused of murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Rosenthal will be included in an indictment for this crime.

Two men only who are not in the hands of the police are included in this list. They are Horowitz and Rosenzweig, two of the actual slayers of Rosenthal, and to capture them it is known that District Attorney Whitman would come to almost any terms with certain of the others who could reveal their hiding place.

For above everything else, Mr. Whitman's mind is set on the conviction of Rosenthal's slayers. After that may come a searching inquiry into the graft charges with which the gambler's death has been so intimately connected.

In the development of investigation into Rosenthal's case, the fact stands out prominently that Mr. Whitman has accomplished most of the results so far obtained practically unaided by the police. It was he who made Becker's indictment and arrest possible, and the tools with which he accomplished this came to his hands with little assistance from the police.

Of the ten men now under arrest, the police sought and found just four. They are Libby and Shapiro, "Dago Frank," and "Whitey" Lewis, and of these four only the ater two are of first importance.

How the Arrests Were Made.

Jack Rose visited Police Headquarters twice to give himself up. "Bridgey" Webber was a frequent caller there before he was held as a material witness, and when he was arrested, after his release on bail, this time to be charged with murder, he was readily found and was in Police Headquarters several hours before it was decided finally to lock him up.

Harry Vallon found it necessary to introduce himself to the Lieutenant in charge at Headquarters, and then he was compelled to wait for many minutes before a detective could be found to put him under arrest.

Jack Sullivan was identified in Coroner Feinberg's Court by Giovanni Stanish, a witness whom Mr. Whitman had brought to court expressly for the purpose, and was arrested after Mr. Whitman had had him pointed out to a detective.

Lewis was found in the Catskills and Cirosici in a Harlem flat through the work of Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty's men, and credit for Schepps's arrest must go in part to Commissioner Dougherty, for as long ago as July 27 he notified the Chief of Police in Hot Springs, Ark., that the physical condition of Schepps was such that he probably would appear in Hot Springs.

But so far there has been discovered no real clue to the whereabouts of Horowitz and Rosenzweig, although scores of detectives have searched the Catskills, and more than once have announced that they were hot on the trail. The freedom from arrest of these men, two of Rosenthal's actual murderers, is known to have occasioned the suspicion in the minds of members of the District Attorney's staff that protection which was promised them, and on the assurance of which they shot down Rosenthal, is now shielding the slayers from capture.

Complaints of Police Inactivity.

As early as the afternoon of the day Rosenthal was killed there began to be rumors that the police had not done all that was possible to apprehend the gambler's slayers.

Since then complaints of inactivity on the part of police have emanated from the District Attorney's office, and it is known that the dismissal of Miss Harriet Lund, a witness of the District Attorney, from her post as cashier of Drake's Restaurant in Forty-second Street, outside of which Webber, Rose, and Becker conferred on the morning of the murder, strengthened the belief of Mr. Whitman that efforts were being made to hamper rather than to assist his investigation.

It was through a cabaret singer that trace was first obtained of the gray murder car. He noticed the number, told the police, and was locked up for his pains. On the blotter of the West Forty-seventh Street Station were two numbers reported by the police, and each of them was wrong. But with the correct number to guide him Mr. Dougherty quickly captured Libby and Shapiro. The latter told how Jack Rose had hired the car, and the search for Rose commenced.

It has developed since that Lieut. Becker knew of Rose's presence in the flat of Harry Pollok even when the police were searching for him, but it was not until July 18 that Rose surrendered at Police Headquarters, relying on the assurance of Lieut. Becker that he would merely be questioned and not held as a party to the crime. Rose's startling confession and Becker's indictment followed.

Gaynor's Peculiar Stand.

No longer than a few days before the indictment of Becker, Mayor Gaynor had been stanch in his support of the accused Lieutenant. In a letter to Police Commissioner Waldo, in which he asked that Detectives Steinert, Foy, and White of Becker's squad be sent to him at his office, he wrote:

> To be sure he (Rosenthal) was a miserable outlaw, against whom you and your predecessors have been continuously contending, but I would have the respect for the police raised so high that the accusations of such a character would not be extensively credited. * * * I cannot understand why Lieut. Becker should sit down to dinner with such a scoundrel. That he did so, seems to be admitted.

That Becker should sit at dinner with Rosenthal seemed the one point in the policeman's connection with the gambler which impressed the Mayor, and a few days afterward, when Commissioner Waldo submitted to him the question of suspending Becker and putting him on trial, the Mayor in another scolding letter replied:

> Your letter of yesterday concerning Lieut. Becker is at hand. No, do not suspend him and put him on trial without evidence to justify his conviction and dismissal by you. Let his case be carefully investigated and all the facts ascertained. Do not bend a single bit to clamor, and especially clamor chiefly created by the hired press agents of the gamblers with whom you are at war and those corrupt newspapers which have been all along and now are at the service of such gamblers and against you. But they cannot hurt an honest man.

Such was Mayor Gaynor's attitude toward Becker and toward the Police Department up to the evening of July 29. On that night Becker was indicted, and since then the Mayor had not made any public utterances on the case. From that day to this he has written no letters, given no interviews, and what his views on the case now are remain a secret.

It was not until Rose, Webber, and Vallon began to talk that real clues were obtained to the amount of graft which is paid annually by the proprietors of illegal resorts in this city, and as this net of graft was woven closer and closer about Becker there was excited a public interest in the graft situation which filled Mr. Whitman with the fear that the murder case might almost be overlooked in the demand for investigation of the graft situation. It is known that Mr. Whitman has felt that interest in the graft phase of the case was being fostered for the purpose of overshadowing the murder charge against Becker, and to defeat this Mr. Whitman turned the graft investigation over to Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, confining himself entirely to the completion of the murder cases.

Becker's Bank Accounts Uncovered.

Since then Mr. Smith has discovered several bank accounts in the name of Becker or his wife, amounting to some $25,000, and he also has unearthed accounts of $75,000 in the names of two inspectors of police. Also he has discovered two collectors for these same inspectors and has them under surveillance, so that when the times arrives they may be taken to Mr. Whitman's office.

Mr. Whitman will take up the graft investigation again, but it will not be until he has completed the cases arising from the death of Rosenthal. To-day, probably, he will listen to one more confession, that of Jacob Reich, or Jack Sullivan, the ex-newsboy and the intimate friend of Lieut. Becker, who, when he was locked in the Tombs, declared:

"I have nothing to confess. I'll not swear to a lie to save myself from the penalty of a crime with which I had no connection."

The question now is: Won't Becker break down now and confess also?

Perhaps he may and perhaps he may not. The question uppermost in the minds of those who know the District Attorney is no longer whether he will or won't. It is whether Mr. Whitman will allow him to confess if he so desires, for mercy must be extended in some degree to the man who confesses, and Mr. Whitman has none for the man he feels occasioned the death of the gambler.

FAILS IN SING SING ESCAPE.

Missing Negro Found Under Cot in Cell Next His.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The blowing of the whistle at Sing Sing Prison, which announces the escape of a prisoner, startled the whole village this morning, and the keepers who live outside the prison and were not on duty hurriedly returned to learn what had happened.

The man missing was Henry Young, 25 years old, a negro, who was sentenced on Oct. 21, 1910, to serve an indeterminate sentence of from two and a half to five years for grand larceny.

When the gang of which he is a member was about to go from the cell house to the pier to empty buckets it numbered sixty-one men, but when it reached the yard the keeper in charge counted only sixty men in line. An alarm was raised at once. After a short search Young was found in the cell next to his own. He was hiding under the cot.

When he was hauled out he said he had acted under a sudden impulse, and had dodged into the cell, hoping later to find a means of escape. He had heretofore borne a good record, and would have been eligible for parole next month, but now he will receive "bad marks" that will destroy all chance of his being paroled for some time to come.

TAFT MAN ASSAILS HILLES.

Georgia Negro Leader Charges Patronage Dicker with the Moose.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 11.—Charles D. Hilles, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, is attacked to-day in an open letter by B. J. Davis, Taft delegate at large to Chicago. Mr. Davis, who is a leader among the negroes and who was instrumental in holding the Georgia delegates in line for Taft, charges that Mr. Hilles is ignoring loyal Taft supporters in Georgia and is dickering with men who worked for Col. Roosevelt.

Clark Grier of Dublin, one of six delegates from Georgia to the Chicago Convention, who deserted Mr. Taft in the fight, is the cause of Mr. Davis's letter, Mr. Hilles being accused of trying to take away from Henry S. Jackson, Collector of Internal Revenue for Georgia, the distribution of Federal patronage in Georgia and turn it over to Mr. Grier.

Mr. Davis charges that Mr. Grier is circulating a letter from Mr. Hilles in which Mr. Hilles has indorsed Mr. Grier for the Dublin Post Office. Mr. Hilles, he says, "knows that Clark Grier canvassed Georgia with Roosevelt money after he had been instructed for Taft," and that he attempted "to bribe and browbeat the Taft delegates into supporting Col. Roosevelt."

"Notice is hereby served," says the letter, "that if the President yields to the recommendation of his Chairman, who names Clark Grier for Postmaster at Dublin, Ga., his nomination will be defeated in the Senate."

In the event of Mr. Hilles declining to notice Mr. Davis's protest the letter practically demands that President Taft dismiss him from management of the campaign or brand himself as an ingrate.

JERSEY BULL MOOSE PLAN.

To Name J. E. Gill for Congress—Wilson at Democrats' Outing.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 11.—The Bull Moose Party of Mercer County will get together next Thursday evening to arrange a full county and Congressional ticket. The Congressional nominee for the third party will be Assemblyman John E. Gill, who was elected a Roosevelt delegate in this district. No one has yet been put forward by the third party leaders here for County Clerk or for the Assembly.

An old-style convention will be held by the regular Republicans and the ticket agreed upon will be supported at the primaries. This convention will be held next Saturday. Alfred N. Barber, Secretary of the State Public Utilities Commission, will probably be the regular candidate for Congress, although Prosecutor William J. Crossley has been prominently mentioned. The Assembly ticket will probably be made up of Hervey S. Moore, George W. Adams, and Edgar C. Weart.

The Democrats of the county will have an outing next week at the Inter-State Fair Grounds, and Gov. Wilson has promised to attend. It will be held a week from Tuesday. Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., will accompany the Governor. The Democratic State ticket will probably be made up then, and the boom for Francis B. Lee for Congress will receive serious consideration.

Next Saturday will be New Jersey Day at Sea Girt, and larger crowds than usual are expected to see the Governor.

BULL MOOSE IN A DILEMMA.

Registration Law in Maryland Will Keep Out Progressive Party.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 11.—The Maryland members of the Progressive Party having cut loose from the Republicans are in a dilemma. There is to be a new registration this Fall. No man can vote unless he is registered, and in so doing he is called upon to affiliate with a party or decline. Under the law the Progressive Party will not be recognized in the registration, as voters can only affiliate with those parties which at the last general election polled 10 per cent. of the total vote cast.

There was no Progressive Party in Maryland at the last election, hence if the members of the new party are sincere in their break from the Republican Party they must this year register as declined voters. It is figured by politicians that a Bull Moose cannot affiliate as a Republican and be a consistent member of the Progressive Party, and neither can he decline to affiliate and assert he is a Republican.

The leaders of the new party will hold a conference this week and take action as to how the Progressives should affiliate at the registration.

FOUR PARTIES IN VERMONT.

Gov. Mead Sees Little Chance for Progressives in That State.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Gov. John A. Mead of Vermont does not expect the Roosevelt party to cut any appreciable figure in that State. He likens the situation there to a political merry-go-round. The Governor said to-day:

"I never knew a time when Vermont was so mixed, so confused, politically, as the State appears to be at the present time. The fact is that in Vermont the Roosevelt party comes along as a fourth party. To begin with, we have the regular old party candidates, Democratic and Republican.

"Then the Prohibitionists hooked up with the Grangers, naming as their candidate for the Governorship an extremely popular citizen, who has been at the head of the State Grange for a number of years. I haven't observed much gossip of this combination in the newspapers, but I should say that the Prohibitionist-Grangers are not unlikely to poll a heavy vote.

"When you add to this situation a fourth party, the Progressives, and hear that Roosevelt is coming to speak at Rutland and elsewhere; that the Democrats will follow with their stumpers, and that the Republicans propose to keep close on Roosevelt's heels with the best orators in the country, you can realize that for the next few weeks Vermonters are likely to be busy picking out a candidate for the Presidency."

ATTACKS AERIALIST ALOFT.

Big Baboon Creeps Toward Luna Wire-Walker—Lassoed by Indians.

Will H. Hill, the wire-walker, stood poised last evening at 8 o'clock on the thread that stretches from the main tower of Luna in Coney Island, 250 yards over the lagoon and the bandstand, to the main entrance. The reflection of the spotlight flashed from the spangles on his breast, for he had shed the farmer's garb and whiskers that make up his costume when first he steps out on the wire. He had hung by his toes and hung by his teeth and was ready to make his final bow and start off toward the tower and firm footing when it was suddenly apparent to the watching crowds below that something had gone wrong.

The wire was swaying more and more, and the wire-walker had halted and was balancing anxiously with the use of his wand. Then from the other end of the wire and moving steadily toward Hill they saw a big baboon, advancing dexterously on all fours, and shaking the wire as though bent on mischief. This second wire-walker was not on the programme. Hill found that he could neither advance nor retreat. He just kept his balance, with his eye on that baboon.

Suddenly from the tower a rope shot out at the animal's head. It fell short and was drawn in. Again it shot out, this time to land in a noose around the baboon's neck, and he was pulled steadily in. The wire's swaying subsided, and Hill made good his escape as the crowd cheered.

This baboon arrived a week ago at the Bush Terminal, brought to these shores by a freighter. He was no sooner installed as part of the Luna circus than the attendants realized that he was mean and given to the unexpected. Last evening he was affording amusement in the idle moments of some Iroquois Indians, who are part of the establishment, when he slipped past them, climbed up the tower, and was out on the wire before they knew it. It was the Indians who wielded the rope.

Hill is the man who went out on the wire a week ago, when the one-legged man who makes the crossing suspended by his teeth came to a swaying stop midway, his momentum unequal to the wind that was against him. Hill pushed the mouthpiece slowly and surely to safety.

TWO SAVED FROM DROWNING.

Four Men Dive Into Lake Switzerland and Pull Them Out.

Special to The New York Times.

FLEISCHMANNS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—When Joseph Silverstein, a New York diamond merchant, and his fiancée, Miss Anna Goldstein, also of New York, were rowing on Lake Switzerland this morning, 200 feet from shore, their boat, the Gingy, upset, and they were thrown into the water. Their plight was observed from the piazza of the Hotel Switzerland, at which they were guests, and Capt. J. O Pawling, a member of an old Delaware County family, sprang into the lake, fully clothed.

Capt. Pawling was quickly followed by Ben B. Hirsch, Ike Sanberg, and Irving Stein. The rescuers reached Mr. Silverstein and Miss Goldstein after they had gone down for the second time. Dr. Hollander had to work over them for two hours before they recovered.

THINKS BOYS ARE DROWNED.

Wandered Away from Older Sister at Manhattan Beach.

Alfred and William Jacques, brothers, aged 14 and 12, went with their sixteen-year-old sister, Marie Jacques, from their home, at 1,362 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, yesterday morning for an outing on Manhattan Beach. At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon the girl came running home and told her father that both the boys had disappeared shortly after luncheon, and could not be found. The father searched the length of the beach and all the surroundings without finding any trace of his sons. He questioned the sister more fully, and came to the conclusion that the boys must have been drowned while wading.

It is thought that they must have fallen into one of the holes with which the beach at this point is filled and drowned together. The Coney Island police were notified, and Harbor Squad C took up the search for the bodies, but up till late last night no trace of them had been found.

BROOKLYN MAN DROWNS.

Retired Decorator Falls from Boat in Removing His Coat.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 11.—William Simonis, aged 60, recently of Brooklyn, N. Y., fell overboard from a boat on Lakewood Park pond this afternoon and sank in twelve feet of water. He was trying to take off his coat at the time. With him was John Watt, who could not swim, and no one was near to help.

Mr. Simonis for thirty years had an extensive business in Brooklyn and New York as a house decorator, and had been living here after his retirement from business. He was a graduate of Leipsic University and spoke several languages, which in the civil war gave him the post of interpretor in Virginia and Washington for President Lincoln. His home for many years was at 17 Montgomery Street, Brooklyn.

Teacher's Murder the Latest of Similar Crimes in Denver Suburb.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 11.—The murder of Miss Signa Carlzen, the young music teacher whose body was found yesterday in a clump of woods in Aurora, a suburb of Denver, has focused police attention upon a half dozen similar crimes which have been perpetrated in Denver or its suburbs within six months.

Miss Carlzen was assaulted and murdered while on her way home from giving a pupil a music lesson. Her skull was crushed, one of her stockings was wrapped tightly around her thoat, and her body was mutilated with a knife.

ROOSEVELT WORKING ON CAMPAIGN TALKS

Undisturbed by Visitors, the Colonel Gets Ready for New England Trip.

SILENT ON DEMOCRATIC LOSS

"I Should Be Able to Sleep Better "Now," Says He When Told Bryan Won't Follow Him on Tours.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 11.—Col. Roosevelt was allowed to remain in seclusion by his leaders to-day, and he said that he was trying to get a complete rest before beginning campaigning. He found time, however, to devote a few hours to the preparation of addresses he is to deliver this week and dispose of a mass of correspondence.

Mr. Roosevelt showed little inclination to discuss politics, but he showed that he was keeping in close touch with the affairs of his third party when he was told that the Republicans of Ohio had come to an open split and that there would be a straight third party ticket there.

"The vote was 11 to 8," said one of the newspaper men.

"No, 11 to 10, I believe," interrupted the Colonel quickly. "There were two absentees who would certainly have voted with the Progressives if they had been on hand.

"I am greatly pleased with the outcome. There will be a third party ticket in Ohio just the same as in Pennsylvania, New York, Michigan, Illinois, and Indiana."

He was told then that reports had it that William Jennings Bryan was not going to follow him on the stump after all.

"I should be able to sleep better now," replied the Colonel, with a smile, and indicated that it made little difference to him what course his opponents pursued. He refused to make any other remark about Mr. Bryan or the fact that reports from many sections of the country are to the effect that the Democratic voters are deserting the Third party, and are letting it be known that they felt that a Democrat should have had a place on the National ticket if the idea of a popular movement was to be carried out.

Col. Roosevelt said that he expected few visitors before he started for Providence, R. I., where he will speak on Friday. He will be at Revere Beach, near Boston, the following day, and will then return immediately to Oyster Bay, if he can have the dates so arranged, and get a few days more rest before going to Wilkesbarre on Aug. 22 to attend the jubilee of Father Curran.

The Colonel was asked if he would make any comment on the fact that Dr. A. O. Zwick, a Cincinnati Progressive, had been nominated as Congressman against Nicholas Longworth in Ohio.

"No, no, not a word," he replied.

Senator Dixon, the Roosevelt campaign manager, and head of his new National Committee, and George W. Perkins, head of the Executive Committee, were expected here to-day, but Col. Roosevelt said that neither he nor George Roosevelt, a cousin, who has been acting as the Colonel's right-hand man since the Chicago Convention, had heard a word from them.

LOSING STRENGTH IN MICHIGAN.

Chairman Groesbeck Says Progressives Are Deserting Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 11.—Chairman Groesbeck of the Republican State Committee stated to-day that he had received reports showing that out in the State Progressive Republicans are everywhere growing cold toward Theodore Roosevelt and in many instances organizing voluntarily to fight his Bull Moose Party.

"If half the reports we get are true," he said, "the people who have been for Roosevelt are slowly changing their minds as they have time to think over the situation. The brilliant flashes of the Colonel's so-called progressivism caught a good many of them, but on second thought Theodore Roosevelt is appearing to them in his true light, that of a man who, disapopinted at his failure to get what he wanted, is attempting to wreak vengeance on his party.

"The Republican Party was good enough for him in 1882, when he went to the New York Assembly. It was good enough for him in 1884, when tens of thousands of Republicans left the party because they felt that Blaine was representing corrupt influences. It was good enough for him when he wanted any of the other offices he held almost continuously from 1882 until the end of his term as President.

"In the years he was active in New York he did not hesitate to ally himself with the Platt machine. He solicited and got the aid of Matthew Quay of Pennsylvania, and later, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, he did not hesitate to accept the aid of Hanna, Platt, and Quay. And the party was good enough for him when he sought to perpetuate himself by placing William H. Taft in nomination. But the minute some one resisted Roosevelt's domination and balked his fierce desire to be 'it' he started in to retaliate. In other words, of sporting blood—the true sporting blood—he had none.

"From every county in the State we have reports that Republicans are banding together to fight the secessionists. That's what I call them."

DR. ELIOT FOR WILSON.

He Says the Roosevelt Party Is Impulsive and Gushing.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 11.—Stamping the Roosevelt party as impulsive and gushing, a one-man following, Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, talked on political affairs to-day. He is an ardent advocate of the election of Woodrow Wilson, and a firm believer in the tenets of the Democratic platform. He cannot support Taft, because of the latter's views on protection.

"I have read the three platforms since landing at San Francisco," said Dr. Eliot, "and I must confess I was amused to notice that all three claimed title to the Progressive spirit. They are all Progressives, if one is to judge from the assertions in the platforms."

"Are you a standpatter or a Progressive, Doctor?"

"A standpatter? I hardly could be accused of that justly. I have voted the Republican ticket at times, and then, again, I have not."

"In reading the three platforms did you reach any choice? Wasn't there one you liked better than the rest?"

"Yes. The Democratic platform adopted at Baltimore. I think I like its construction better than the others.

"Remember, now, that I have the greatest admiration for all three candidates. They are splendid men, but I am not a protectionist, never was, and never will be. Therefore, I couldn't support the Taft platform very well.

"As for the Roosevelt movement—well, I look upon that as being impulsive and gushing, so to speak. It is a one-man following, as I view it. A certain number of men are carried away by their admiration and infatuation for a leader.

"Somehow I can't satisfy myself that such a spirit is a sound or proper one as the basis for a party. It doesn't seem likely to be endurable. It is strictly the individual, the one-man idol. That isn't a good foundation for a new party."

"What do you think of the influences and permanency of the Progressive Party?"

"I wouldn't care to prophesy. I like the Democratic platform, and I am very fond of Woodrow Wilson. He would make a sound and able President. He is in every way qualified, by experience and natural ability.

"You see, he has been more than an educator. He has held public office and written history. He is a fortunate choice. I see the Democrats had quite a tussle before they settled on a candidate. They compromised on a first-class one."

Orange. The men lay on the side of the road until ambulances arrived to take them to their regimnteal hospital.

No prostrations were reported from any of the New York camps. Four of the Manhattan regiments are encamped together near the little three-house town known as Tyler City, about five miles this side of New Haven, their position being the extreme eastern end of the Red invading army. These regiments are the Seventh, Twelfth, Sixty-ninth, and Seventy-first, under command of Brig. Gen. Dyer. Despite the fact that they are within 200 yards of a railroad station, they are so located as to be almost hidden from view from the main road; and so it was that few visitors found them to-day.

Scores of automobilists looking for friends in the Seventh returned to New Haven or Bridgeport and reported being unable to find the regiment. Some of these parties passed through Tyler City, not knowing that they were then within a stone's throw of New York's most famous foot command.

The New York and Brooklyn cavalrymen who are operating for the first time as a regiment were even harder to find than were the infantrymen. Their camp is on the Housatonic River and so well hidden that when a Squadron A or a Squadron C trooper does ride out into the open he has to ask some native how to get back to his regiment.

Several accidents to soldiers were reported to-day. In the Seventh Regiment, Corporal William Bentley of the Mounted Patrol was badly injured early this morning on his return from patrol duty. It was dark and was raining hard. Bentley rode head on into one of the big automobile vans, which the Seventh has rented for transportation purposes. He was thrown from his horse and suffered severe contusions of the head and body. To-night he is reported recovering.

Private Ambrose Donohue of the Ninth Massachusetts reported to his commanding officer late this afternoon suffering from several stab wounds. He said that he had been assaulted by three men who thought he had some money. He will go back to his home in Boston to-morrow.

Gov. Dix arrived about 5 o'clock this afternoon. He came from his home in Thomson, N. Y., by automobile, and drove the machine himself. He was accompanied by Commander Eckford C. de Kay, his military aid, and Col. M. M. Dunspaugh of his staff. The Governor is the guest of Adjt. Gen. Verbeck, and will remain in camp until Tuesday morning.

Gen. Verbeck gave a dinner in honor of the Governor to-night, the guests being the officers of Gen. O'Ryan's and Gen. Verbeck's staffs. Among them were Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Lieut. Col. Romulus C. Walton, and Commander Russell Raynor of the naval militia. The Governor will witness to-morrow's battle.

The turning-in-hour in all the camps to-night was 9 o'clock, for at 5 o'clock to-morrow morning the soldiers and troopers must be up and ready for the first day's fighting, which is to mark the advance of the Red Army under Gen. Smith in the direction of New York.

WILSON TAKES STAND AGAINST PROHIBITION

Declares for Local Option in Reply to Queries from Maine.

FOR A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

Senator Gore Advises the Candidate Not to Underestimate His Opponents' Strength.

Special to The New York Times.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Aug. 11.—Whether or not Gov. Woodrow Wilson decides to take a personal hand in the Maine campaign, it cannot be charged against him from now on that he avoided going into that State on account of the fear of taking firm ground on the question of prohibition there involved.

Gov. Wilson has received many inquiries as to where he stands on the liquor question. To inquiries now pouring in from Maine the Governor's secretaries are sending copies of a letter sent to the Rev. Thomas B. Shannon of 15 Clinton Street, Newark, N. J., declaring in favor of local option as against absolute prohibition, and declaring still further against fighting out the liquor question along party lines as a factional and party issue.

Besides making clear exactly where he stands on the liquor question, Gov. Wilson held an hour's conference with Senator Gore, the Chairman of the Committee on Organization of the Campaign Committee, this afternoon.

Gov. Wilson's secretary went over at length a campaign document written by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, which it is expected will be the chief document relied on by the Democrats to win women voters in the suffrage States. It became known that Mrs. Harriman, who is President of the National Woman's Wilson and Marshall Club, will have a very large part to play in managing Gov. Wilson's campaign in these States. She will conduct the same kind of campaign for women's votes that Jane Addams is expected to conduct on behalf of the Bull Moose party, emphasizing the tariff issue as one of overshadowing importance to women voters.

Senator Gore's visit was one of great importance to the campaign policies to be conducted hereafter. Senator Gore came to sound a warning against an easy campaign and to talk over plans to make the fight a spirited one right from the start. He discussed these plans in detail with Gov. Wilson and it is expected that they will be put into practice under the management of the Oklahoma Senator at once.

Gore for Vigorous Campaign.

At the Ardsley Hotel in Asbury Park, where he is spending the Summer, Senator Gore dictated this statement following his visit to Gov. Wilson:

"There are two blunders it is always easy to make. One is to overestimate your own strength and the other is to underestimate the strength of your opponent. We propose to avoid making either. While the conditions of the campaign are very gratifying, I feel that it is never safe to feel too safe. We propose to carry on a vigorous campaign, and while it will be carried on with every assurance of success it will not be less forcefully handled on that account."

Gov. Wilson, when asked what was the reason for Senator Gore's Sunday visit to him, said:

"It was entirely a social call, but we naturally wandered off into a discussion of a number of questions of organization and campaigning. Absolutely nothing new came up."

Senator Gore was referred to by Gov. Wilson just before the deciding ballot was cast at Baltimore as a field general so capable that it would be mere impertinence on his own part to intervene in the situation instead of trusting all to the Senator.

It is known that Gov. Wilson holds the blind Senator from Oklahoma in the highest esteem, and it is expected here that the Governor will allow the character of his campaign to be very largely mapped out by him. Senator Gore already has charge of the formation of all Wilson clubs and campaign organizations throughout the country, and he will decide on the character of the literature that is to be sent to them.

In the campaign so far there have been constant rumors that Gov. Wilson wished to avoid going to Maine on account of his fear that a decision to take firm ground on the liquor question, which the issues there demanded, would tangle him up in a general "wet" and "dry" imbroglio throughout the country.

His Views on Liquor Queston.

Here is the letter in which he removed all doubt as to his exact stand on the question:

> I am in favor of local option. I am a thorough believer in local self-government and believe that every self-governing community which constitutes a social unit should have the right to control the matter of the regulation or the withholding of licenses.
>
> But the questions involved are social and moral and are not susceptible of being made part of a party programme. Whenever they have been made the subject matter of party contests they have cut the lines of party organization and party action athwart, to the utter confusion of political action in every other field. They have thrown every other question, however important, into the background and have made constructive party action impossible for long years together.
>
> So far as I am myself concerned, therefore, I can never consent to have the question of local option made an issue between political parties in this State.
> My judgment is very clear in this matter. I do not believe party programmes, of the highest consequence to the political life of the State and of the Nation, ought to be thrust on one side and hopelessly embarrassed for long periods together by making a political issue of a great question which is essentially non-political, non-partisan, moral, and social in its nature.

A political conference which it is thought will have an important bearing on the Far Western programme of the Wilson campaign is scheduled to be held here to-morrow between Gov. Wilson and F. B. Schutz, State Chairman of the Democratic Party in Wisconsin. Mr. Schutz, who called here Saturday to arrange for the conference, was much delighted to learn that Mrs. Harriman was taking an aggressive interest in the campaign. He pointed out that in Wisconsin a lively Democratic campaign would no doubt carry the State, as the La Follette men's sympathy was with Wilson.

The campaign document which Mrs. Harriman has prepared consists of a review of Gov. Wilson's administration in New Jersey, with special reference to all laws having to do with women's welfare and the hours of women employed as laborers in industrial concerns.

Jerseymen will have their "Old Home Day at Sea Girt on Saturday, Aug. 17, and the feature of the day will be an address by Gov. Wilson to his friends and neighbors at noon.

State Chairman Edward E. Grosscup expects 10,000 Jerseymen to crowd upon the Governor's lawns on Jersey Day, and to bring with them a large number of guests representing the New York Democratic organization. Many Tammany men have Summer homes along the Jersey Coast, and all have been invited.

To handle the crowds a reception committee of 500 members has been appointed, the committee consisting of the National Campaign Committee, the New Jersey State Committee, Senator Martine, all of the New Jersey Democratic Congressmen, and the Democratic State Senators, Assemblymen, Sheriffs, Mayors, Surrogates, County Clerks, and County Chairmen. Ten special trains will bring the crowds to Sea Girt from every section of the State.

WILSON'S TREASURER HERE.

Rolla Wells Ready to Start Right in to Raise Funds.

Rolla Wells, recently appointed Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, got to New York yesterday, ready to start right in to round up funds for the campaign. Mr. Wells will have a conference to-day with Chairman William F. McCombs, Henry Morgenthau and Charles R. Crane, Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Finance Committee. Mr. Wells is an unknown quantity in the matter of raising funds for a National campaign, but those who selected him for the office believe that their judgment has not been misplaced.

Mr. Wells is almost unknown in the East. At one time he was Mayor of St. Louis. He is a lawyer.

"I had not the slightest expectation of coming to New York this year," said Mr. Wells at the Waldorf yesterday. "The appointment came to me as a kind of a shock. I have had a most enjoyable trip to the East, for the conductor on the train, who said he had always voted the Republican ticket, informed me that he was going to vote for Wilson this year. That seems to be the opinion of pretty nearly everyone.

"I have made no plans whatever and I don't know just what I am going to do until I talk things over with the members of the committee. I am pretty sure that we will have no trouble in raising all the funds we need. The people everywhere seem to be impressed with the fact that they can trust Gov. Wilson. The best way, probably, to get money for campaign purposes is through popular subscription."

Mr. Wells, who said he was "more than fifty-six years old," is of medium height with a smooth face, and is a little deaf. He has a convincing manner of talking. He said he was not intimately acquainted with either Gov. Wilson or Mr. McCombs, and that he didn't know why he was appointed. He said he was heartily in favor of the system of publishing campaign contributions, both before and after election.

It was announced at headquarters yesterday that the campaign handbook would be off the press by Sept. 1. The book will contain more than 300 pages and 50,000 copies will be the first order. Josephus Daniels, Chairman of the Publicity Bureau, promises that the book will differ from the average political handbook. Individuals will not be attacked in the book but facts, and facts only, will be used to support the Democratic arguments. Congressman James T. Lloyd is in charge of the Congressional records of the book.

FIND LAW TO DODGE BULL MOOSE WHIP

Republican Candidates for Congress Now Need Not Declare Presidential Preferences.

MAY TAKE NEUTRAL COURSE

Flinn Is Threatening Pennsylvania Delegation with Third Party Nominees if Roosevelt Is Not Supported.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Republican members of Congress who have been worrying about the position they must take in regard to the third party believe at last they have found an escape. This is nothing less than a provision of the Campaign Expenditures law, No. 31,911, forbidding candidates for Congress from promising any office or their influence for any office in return for support in their campaign. They now believe that by taking refuge behind that provision they may escape declaring themselves as between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt.

This is particularly interesting in Pennsylvania and several Western States ordinarily Progressive, but whose Representatives in Congress are anxious to maintain their regularity. In Pennsylvania the situation is already acute, with William Flinn of Pittsburgh, as the Colonel's agent, threatening active campaigns against all Republicans in Congress who do not support the Colonel.

If they can plead the law against such declaration or promise of support, they think they may get through the campaign with only a Democrat opposed to them. Otherwise they will have a third party man splitting their normal support, and that would mean long odds for the Democrat. The text of the law which is thought to apply to the present case is as follows:

> No candidate for Representative in Congress or for Senator of the United States shall promise any office or position to any person or to use his influence or to give his support to any person for any office or position for the purpose of procuring the support of such person or of any person in his candidacy.

In the Western States referred to, where the third party is the paramount issue, a declaration for Col. Roosevelt, it is declared, would certainly be "for the purpose of procuring the support of such person."

The question has been put sharply to the Pennsylvania delegation. Representative Porter, Mr. Flinn's emissary, is now in Washington, and to-morrow the delegation will probably meet to consider the whole situation. Mr. Flinn's ultimatum will then be given, and an answer of some sort will have to be formulated by every Republican on the delegation. It is suggested to-night that the ultimatum may conclude with a hint that in case a Congressman actually refuses to join openly the Colonel's side neutrality may be accepted as a sign of non-affiliation with the Taft forces. That is particularly what the Roosevelt managers want, and in that case the plea of the law against promising support may serve to ward off the setting up of an independent candidate in the district.

The legal provision is not as important in itself as it would be if the House to be elected were the one which, in the case of a deadlock, would choose a President. In that case the members elected through promises of support to a particular candidate might be unseated, and the result changed in that way. Even the present House might in a desperate deadlock unseat some of the present members who obtained re-election through such promises.

In the present case such action would mean the seating of Gov. Wilson as President. The Democrats are in a majority in the House, but on the question of electing a President the vote is by States, and there is an actual stand-off between the parties, with no majority. If, however, the Democrats unseated one or two Republicans for violating the election law the deadlock would be broken and a Democrat promptly elected.

PERKINS BACK; WON'T TALK.

Conference of Bull Moose Leaders To-day at the Manhattan Hotel.

George W. Perkins, who is to be the National organizer of the Bull Moose Party, and who stayed over in Chicago after the convention to straighten out various tangles, got back yesterday and went at once to the National headquarters of the party, at the Manhattan Hotel.

Mr. Perkins refused to discuss the political situation in any way other than to say that there would be a conference to-day at the Manhattan Hotel of the big leaders of the new party, and organization plans would then be worked out. Mr. Perkins will go to Oyster Bay within the next few days and discuss the affairs of the party with Col. Roosevelt.

There's Music in Your Soul—No Way to Get Out

DID you ever feel "I wish I could play the piano?" When you hear others who are so expert at the keyboard, remember that you are probably as musical as they, the only difference being that they have acquired the facility of expressing their feelings on the piano and you have not.

But that is no reason why you should never play. The technical knowledge you lack is substituted by the

The Standard Player-Piano of the World

When you play the Pianola Piano and add your expression (which is marvelously easy to do) the performance becomes so humanized as to be indistinguishable from fine hand-playing.

Bear this in mind: You play the Pianola Piano—it does not play itself. You are the musician; without you the Pianola Piano could not play a note.

But do not think that all player pianos are alike. The Pianola Piano had been on the market years before its first imitator appeared. While it was all alone in the field, thousands upon thousands of dollars were spent developing and perfecting it.

This is why the makers of the Pianola Piano hold basic patents on so many vital features, that no other player-piano has, or can have.

CHURCHILL SAVAGE IN ATTACK ON LAW

Cabinet Minister Denounces Unionist Leader for Inciting Ulster to Revolt.

UNFIT FOR OFFICE, HE SAYS

Such Pernicious Doctrines Would Inspire Every Crazy Fanatic, Fumbling with a Pistol.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 12.—The Unionist papers are greatly excited by a letter which Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, has sent to Sir George Ritchie, Chairman of the Liberal Party in Churchill's Dundee district.

The letter is a strong attack upon the speeches which Bonar Law, the Conservative leader, and Sir Edward Carson have made to the people of Ulster. Mr. Churchill says in part:

"Bonar Law and his lieutenant, Carson, have for some months past on repeated occasions incited the Orangemen to wage civil war upon their fellow-countrymen, and, if necessary, upon the forces of the crown, and the former has even suggested that this process in Ireland should be accompanied in England by the lynching of his Majesty's Ministers.

"No doubt it is true that these foolish and wicked words go far beyond the intentions of the speakers, and that they would be unspeakably shocked and frightened if all this melodramatic stuff in which they are indulging were suddenly to explode into real bombs and cannon, and if the ground of this peaceful kingdom were to be strewn with English and Irish corpses, slain in fratricidal strife. And if, instead of eagerly expecting to kiss hands on obtaining office, there was nothing before them but the bleak outlook of a felon's cell or a place of execution, they would be very glad to get back from such a nightmare to their perorations under the comforting protection of police and the law."

Mr. Churchill goes on:

"Bonar Law's doctrines are not only pernicious in their external aspects. There are many millions of very poor people in England who have little to lose except their lives, to whom these counsels of violence and mutiny might not be unattractive. The doctrines of Bonar Law at Blenheim are the doctrines of Ben Tillet at Tower Hill."

Mr. Churchill proceeds to accuse the Conservative leader of indorsing all the worst excesses of the Orangemen and "committing his party to a proposition that acts which are in themselves cruel, wicked, and contrary to law, become good and praiseworthy if they arise from a political motive."

After declaring that these exhibitions will not reduce the Government into weakness or violence and that the Government will pursue its path patiently and soberly, Mr. Churchill concludes:

"The time may and will come, after all these years of labor, when the direction of the national policy should pass to others, but the transference of power will not be effected by violent means. It will not come until our work is done. It will not come until the leader of the Conservative Party divests himself of the doctrines which disqualfiy him and those who back him from the discharge of official responsibilities—doctrines by which every lawless or disruptive movement in any part of the empire can be justified, and from which every street bully with a brickbat and every crazy fanatic who is fumbling with a pistol may derive inspiration."

The Standard says of the letter:

"Mr. Churchill's outburst is one of the most impassioned and virulent attacks ever made by one English politician upon another, and is the inevitable violence of despair."

The Daily Telegraph, seeking a reason for Mr. Churchill's unexpected demonstration, supposes that it is intended to proclaim that he is still unshaken in his loyalty to his colleagues and to provide an answer to the suggestion that he is playing the part of skeleton at the Radical feast.

While The Daily Telegraph describes the letter as "tedious and platitudinous," The Daily Express calls it "lurid" and its author "the new Limehouser."

The Daily Chronicle (Liberal) welcomes the letter as "a piece of measured eloquence," and The Daily News asserts that it will be read with gratitude by Englishmen whose vision is not blinded by partisanship or hunger for office.

AGROUND IN LAKE GEORGE.

Steamer Sagamore, on Bar, Lands Passengers in Small Boats.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The seamer Sagamore, the largest of the vessels operated by the Champlain Transporation Company on Lake George, was hard and fast to-day in the sands of Hague Bar, upon which it grounded during the night, with many passengers aboard. The passengers were taken off in small boats.

Efforts made by the steamer Horicon to pull the Sagamore off the bar only resulted in broken hawsers and anchor chains. It is believed a dredge will be necessary to dig a back channel. The Sagamore has a steel hull and is 224 feet long. It has capacity for 1,500 passengers.

JAR ON MEXICAN PEACE.

Senator Fall Denies Obstructing Madero's Failure to End Revolt.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Both Senator Fall of New Mexico and Senor Diddap, Washington representative of the Mexican revolutionary party, countered to-day on President Madero's declaration attributing to the Senator the Mexican Government's failure to come to peace terms with Gen. Orozco, the rebel leader.

"I thought some time ago that I might want to see Orozco to ascertain his authority for certain statements," said Senator Fall, "but I have had absolutely no communication with him. Orozco declared that certain Americans had been putting up money for Madero and gave names and other details. I wanted to find out what information he might have as authority for these statements and so telegraphed to the Mayor of El Paso. But nothing came of it. I have had nothing whatever to do with Orozco."

Senor Diddap said he had been instructed to state that the Madero Government made the first demand for peace to Gen. Zapata on Aug. 3, and sent a Cabinet Minister to propose peace to the chiefs operating in the north. Diddap contended that the failure was due, not to Senator Fall, but, so far as Zapata is concerned, to lack of official instructions of the Madero official commissioners and their insistence upon ignoring the civilians composing the Revolutionary Committee.

Immediately after the arrival of the statesman and his party in Tokio Prince Katsura went to the palace and was admitted to the chamber in which the dead Emperor's body lies in state.

MOROCCO'S SULTAN WILL ABDICATE

French Resident Governor Calls for 30,000 More Troops to Prevent Disorder.

MULAI YOUSSEF TO SUCCEED

Transfer of Power Expected To-day, When the Sultan Plans to Leave His Country.

RABAT, Morocco, Aug. 11.—The abdication of Mulai Hafid, Sultan of Morocco, is practically an accomplished fact. He probably will leave here for France to-morrow.

The Sultan has expressed the desire that one of his brothers succeed to the Sultanate and Mulai Youssef, the present Khalif of Fez, who is friendly to France, will doubtless be appointed. Negotiations to this end between Mulai Hafid and Gen. Lyautey, French Resident Governor, have been arranged.

The Sultan must publicly announce his desire to abandon power for reasons of health before he leaves the country, so as to avert the danger of an appeal to fanaticism on the ground that he had been coerced. Until such proclamation is issued Mulai Hafid's abdication will not be accepted.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The Army Gazette today says that Gen. Lyautey, French Resident Governor in Morocco, urgently has demanded reinforcements to the number of 30,000 men to enable him to deal adequately with the unrest among the Moorish tribesmen.

Mulai Hafid was formally proclaimed Sultan of Morocco on Jan. 5, 1908, after waging a "holy war" against his half brother and reigning Sultan, Abd-el-Aziz, and sending him flying to the protection of the French at Rabat

The first public mention of Hafid's name with the sovereignty was in May, 1907, when it was reported from Marrakesh that he had been proclaimed Sultan. He appears to have deprecated for some time the endeavor to put him in the perilous position of an aspirant for the throne, but by August the movement in his favor had assumed such strength that he was publicly proclaimed Sultan in several places, and was known as the "Sultan of the South" until the following January, when he was officially declared Sultan at Fez. Hafid carefully refrained from entering the capital at that time, however, but sent his uncle, Mulai Saramini, to act as Vice Regent pending his arrival.

Tribes arose to the support of the new Sultan when Hafid made use of the decision of Abd-el-Aziz to co-operate with France and Spain in carrying out the provisions of the Algeciras act and installing an international police force in the coast towns. In a proclamation Abd-el-Aziz was represented as having sold himself to the Christians, permitted the invasion of the sacred soil of Morocco by Europeans, and shown readiness to turn the country over to foreigners. With the gold he found in the palace of Abd-el-Aziz, Hafid armed his soldiers, it is said, and for the first time put Morocco on a regular war footing.

With his assumption of power came protests from foreign residents at Fez against the cruelty and oppression practiced by him against prisoners and his former opponents. Hafid is credited with replying to them by throwing to the lions the pretender to the throne, El Reghi.

On the other hand, many of the tribesmen who had flocked to his standard were praising him for his promises to abolish taxes, make an alliance with Turkey, and suspend relations with Europeans generally.

Six months after seizing the Sultanate Hafid caused general surprise by announcing his intention to have but one wife, and in June, 1908, he married a cousin, daughter of Mulai Ismail. On the same day he announced his Cabinet.

Not until January, 1909, did Hafid receive recognition from the powers, and then only upon his undertaking to recognize the Act of Algeciras and abide by all the agreements made by his predecessors.

Hafid was born in 1873, being the son of a woman of the Mzaniza tribe of the Shawia. He is a few years older than his brother, Abd-el-Aziz, who was the son of a favorite wife, and thus succeeded his father, there being no law of primogeniture in Morocco.

Despite the reports of the alleged cruelty practiced in the early part of his reign, Mulai Hafid is credited with possessing many good qualities, and is well educate, according to Moroccan standards. He makes pretensions to be a poet, and has written a book. He has three daughters and a son.

He has always been regarded as an orthodox Moslem, which accounts in part for his ability to rouse the restless tribes and induce them to come to his support. He is said to be an authority on religious and African legal questions.

CHINA TO BORROW $50,000,000

Rival Bids Said to Have Made Six-Power Group Change Its Attitude.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 12.—The Peking correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, discussing the present condition of the loan negotiations, cables:

"I can state that it is now tolerably certain that China will quietly close a £10,000,000 ($50,000,000) contract within the next few days, but who are the lucky tenders is still uncertain.

"Offers from several rival syndicates have spurred the Six Power group to a sudden volte face, and they are now offering money on almost any terms.

"An important factor in the situation is the wise change of attitude of the British Government, which no longer tolerates the idea of a financial monopoly.

"It is calculated that the above loan, with exchange transactions, gives a clear profit of £500,000, ($2,500,000.)

The greatest excitement prevails in the capital.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 11.—The excitement of the Bulgarian people over the massacre of Bulgarians by Mussulmans at Kotschana, fifty miles southwest of Uskup, on Aug. 2, continues without abatement.

The Bulgarian press is clamoring for war against Turkey. The inhabitants of Southern Bulgaria are extremely bellicose. They are holding meetings of protest against the massacre, in which 140 Bulgarians were killed, and demonstrations against Turkey are being organized in all parts of the country.

The Bulgarian Government has been asked to abandon the national festivities on Aug. 15 on account of the mourning at Kotschana, but it will probably not comply with the request.

VETO TANGLES KEEP CONGRESS SITTING

But Legislators Are Making a Determined Effort to Quit This Week.

COMPROMISE ON ARMY BILL

As Well as on Salary Measure May Win Taft's Approval—Commerce Court and Tariff Bills Doomed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Leaders of both houses of Congress are making a determined effort to end the session this week. There had been some hope that a final adjournment might be effected by Wednesday or Thursday. But, while most legislation has been either thrown into conference or sent to the President, complications arising out of vetoes and stubborn differences between the two houses make Saturday now seem more probable.

The one remaining piece of affirmative legislation is the Post Office Appropriation bill and the many riders it carries. That has passed the House, but the Senate is still considering it. One of its contentious provisions will come to a vote to-morrow afternoon. But another day will be required, at least, before the bill can go to conference. The Army bill might be put in the same category, as it has been vetoed and now has to be passed with modifications. The Executive, Legislative, and Judicial bill is not far different, as it will come back to Congress from the White House to-morrow without the President's approval.

But the measures that have been vetoed can be made practically satisfactory both to him and Congress, except the tariff bills. They are questions for compromise and recession, and little formal debate will be required. The Army bill will be called up in the Senate for final disposal after the Post Office bill, while other conferences are under way for getting the Legislative bill in shape either for the President's signature or for passing it over his veto.

The tariff measures figure little in the delays. They either have been vetoed or will be vetoed as fast as the President can prepare his messages, and that will be the end of them, save for a futile attempt on the part of the House to override the vetoes. The sugar and excise measures, owing to differences between the Democrats of the House and Senate, may never come out of conference. The Cotton bill will probably get to the President, but his veto will be ready for it.

The most trouble is threatened from the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial bill. That carries two riders, both of which would guarantee the President's veto. One abolishes his pet, the Commerce Court. The other, in his opinion, strikes a heavy blow at the civil service by insuring an appointee's tenure of office for only seven years. It is thought that both houses will recede as to the tenure-of-office provision, as a storm of protest has come from the Grand Army of the Republic and from all quarters of the country.

The Commerce Court, however, is doomed. It is not impossible that with the tenure-of-office provision out of the bill it could pass over the President's veto. That could almost certainly be done in the House, while the Senate has already shown that there is little disposition even among the regulars to spare the President's feelings.

While these differences are serious and many measures are affected, the signs that hitherto have been considered unfailing, all point to early adjournment. No one can remember when the Senate consented to meet at 10 o'clock in the morning, and then hold sessions late at night for two weeks without adjournment. Yet that has been the order of business for the last week. The older members are showing the strain and the younger members are equally weary. Besides, there is urgent call at home for them in local politics.

Some of the Progressives, it is true, would glady see the session prolonged until the campaign is over, and, as usual, they are supplying most of the talk on the floor. They realize that, while staying in Washington in the dog days is unpleasant, they have no joys to anticipate at home. Many of them have straddled on the Third Party question, and they know that as soon as they mount the stump they are going to be mercilessly interrogated. They wish to avoid that as long as possible. But even they realize that it cannot be much longer postponed. They are gradually paving the way for their home-coming by declaring for Roosevelt or—in the greater number of cases—declaring for the regular ticket.

The indications are that Congress will have to pass another emergency resolution before Thursday extending the appropriations, already twice extended, for several of the executive departments of the Government to keep them going. All the regular appropriations for conducting the Government had to be extended on July 1 for thirty days, because none of the big Appropriation bills had been passed. When Aug. 1 came these bills still remained unpassed, and another resolution had to be adopted extending appropriations on the basis of last year's allowance for fifteen days. This second period of extension will expire next Thursday.

Unless some of the big appropriation bills, yet unpassed, become law by Thursday there will have to be a special resolution passed to keep certain branches of the Government operating, even if legislation is so shaped as to enable Congress to adjourn two days later. Even if the Legislative bill, carrying salary appropriations for all branches of the Government and now at the White House awaiting President Taft's veto, is adjusted satisfactorily by Thursday, the special resolution would still be necessary to care for the Postal, Army, and Naval Services, as neither the Naval, Army, or Post Office bills will be out of the way by Thursday.

The Democratic caucus for voting on battleships will not be held until Wednesday, and Friday is believed to be the earliest day on which the Naval bill can receive the President's signature.

MEYER BACK TO HIS DESK.

Secretary of Navy Returns to Washington, via Newport, To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 11.—Secretary of the Navy Meyer, with Mrs. Meyer, left Rockmaple Farm at Hamilton to-day for Gloucester, where they boarded the dispatch boat Dolphin for Newport. The run to Newport was made during the day, and on reaching there the Secretary had a conference with Admiral Osterhaus of the Atlantic squadron in regard to several important naval problems.

Secretary and Mrs. Meyer intended to go to New York after a short stay in Newport, proceeding to Washington Monday, where the Secretary will be at his desk for the first time in nearly two months. Secretary Meyer was stricken with illness in Washington nearly two months ago, which developed into a light case of typhoid fever, and for a number of weeks he was confined to his home at Hamilton. His condition improved rapidly, and in July he went to his camp on the Restigouche River for a fishing trip, and returned much improved in health.

The Meyers have taken a cottage at Newport for the National tennis tournament opening on Aug. 19, and Mrs. Meyer, the Misses Alice and Julia Meyer, and George von L. Meyer, Jr., will join the Secretary for the play at that resort.

LAUNCH BURNS, FIVE SAVED.

Oil Stove Explodes When Yachtsmen Prepare Meal Aboard.

After five yachtsmen were rescued from a burning launch that afterward sank to the bottom of the Sound, the fourth annual regatta of the Bayside Yacht Club came to a close early last evening when the fleet of twenty-odd boats anchored off the club's headquarters in Little Neck Bay.

As the yachtsmen were leaving Stamford there was a cry of "Fire!" The score or more yachts and power boats were bunched on the Sound. Frank Purcell, in his power boat Henrietta with four friends—Joseph Smoilen, Charles Medicus, Arthur Logan, and Harold Smollen—was preparing a meal, when an oil stove exploded. Members of the Stamford Yacht Club from the shore could see the blaze. A longshoreman in a rowbat from the shore, near by, hurried to the rescue. He wielded an axe on the middle of the boat, allowing water to get inside, and then it was towed ashore.

The Henrietta sank a few feet from shore. It had been towing the Rowdy, a dory, owned and sailed in the cruise by young Medicus, who is a son of Henry W. Medicus, Treasurer of the Brooklyn Baseball Club. The occupants of the Henrietta were taken aboard Commodore Smith's power boat, the Emma J.

The Curlew, owned by Charles L. Willard and manned by his thirteen-year-old son, Lawson, led all other boats at the finish.

KILLS SELF AND DAUGHTER.

Man Out of Work Writes of Money Due Him and Turns on Gas.

Michael Brunsko, 43 years old, a laborer, and his twelve-year-old daughter, Mary, were found dead in their home—a bare room with the exception of an old mattress—on the sixth floor of 524 East 118th Street, yesterday morning. Tenants noticed the odor of gas, forced open the door, and found the two lying on the mattress dead. Three letters, written in a Slav dialect, were pinned to the wall. The man was fully dressed, the girl was in a nightdress.

Brunsko was employed for twenty-two years by the Central Union Gas Company. He was discharged about three weeks ago. Since that time, he had sold his furniture piece by piece until only the mattress and one old broken chair remained. There was no food in the room and no money, and sooner than starve to death, Brunsko wrote, he made up his mind to die by gas.

His son is in the New York Juvenile Asylum. Letters were left for Fritz Sachtbuch, chief engineer for the Washburne Wire Company, and for Thomas Balen, Chief Inspector of the Central Union Gas Company.

According to the police, one of the letters refers to a payment of $4,000 to Brunsko by the Central Union Gas Company. The money, according to the letter, was to be paid over by the company to the laborer, but had not been turned over for some reason.

FLYING BULLETS HIT TWO.

Outsiders Suffer When Four Men Start a Pistol Battle.

Four men stood under the elevated structure at 116th Street and Third Avenue yesterday afternoon engaged in an argument of increasing bitterness which reached a climax at the end of five minutes, when all four drew guns from their pockets and started firing at one another in a manner to scatter all passers-by.

Two of these, Nicholas Pebe, a peddler of 2,011 First Avenue, and John Crapone of 302 East 106th Street, a jeweler, were wounded by the bullets, and at their cries a crowd started in pursuit of the armed disputants, who fled toward Second Avenue, where they disappeared. Only a discarded revolver on 116th Street was left as a clue.

Foreign Diplomats Warn Rebel Leader Against Threatened Action, but Fail to Move Him.

MANAGUA, Saturday, Aug. 10, (Delayed in Transmission.)—The President of the Republic to-day received a message from Gen. Zeledon, commanding the Liberal forces, saying that unless the Government immediately resigned he would bombard Managua within twelve hours.

An hour later another message was received from Gen. Mena, who is in command of another revolutionary force, asking for a three days' armistice. The apparently contradictory messages are not understood and are causing confusion and alarm.

Both forces of insurgents are within few miles of the city. The advance guard of Gen. Mena can be seen from the capital.

The local consular and diplomatic crops, aroused by Gen. Zeledon's ultimatum, have protested vigorously to him against a bombardment of the city. In the name of humanity, and protesting against what they declare would be a violation of all rules of civilized nations, they are urging the rebel commander to reconsider his threat.

The American Minister has additionally notified Zeledon that he would be held personally responsible for what might happen in the event of bombardment.

Intervention by the Ministers of Salvador and Costa Rica at Managua to bring about a settlement with Gen. Mena failed, and it is reported that the rebel commander has given orders for the bombardment of the capital at daybreak to-morrow.

The schools have been suspended owing to the necessity of devoting all available funds to the equipment of the Government forces.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—For the protection of American interests in Nicaragua, 350 marines left Panama to-day for Corinto on the collier Justin. They will supplant the bluejackets from the Annapolis, who are on guard at Managua.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 11.—The cruiser Denver, which arrived here on Friday, will leave for Corinto, Nicaragua, to-day to join the Annapolis in protecting American interests. Commander Washington of the Denver received his orders yesterday, but the departure of the cruiser was delayed until to-day to complete some minor repairs.

RACE AROUND MANHATTAN.

Alma II. Winner of 30-Mile Contest of Colonial Yacht Club.

The Alma II., owned by Commodore Franklin P. Pratt of the Colonial Yacht Club, was the winner of the handicap race around Manhattan Island, held by that club yesterday. The start was made from off the clubhouse, 140th Street and the Hudson River, at noon, when twelve motor boats answered the starter's signal. The course extended northerly along the Hudson River to the Harlem River, down the Harlem to the East River, to the Battery, and back up the Hudson to the clubhouse.

The race was a handicap affair, but along secret lines. Time was taken at three places unknown to the competitors, and the handicaps were arranged according to the speed shown at the different time stations. Commodore Pratt's Alma II., the winner of the race, had a handicap of 1:03:30. Idle Time, owned by M. B. Behrman, was the scratch boat. The best time over the thirty-mile course was made by Lady Betty, owned by H. J. Russell, which finished in 3:17:41.

Twelve boats started in the contest and ten finished. The Annart, the last to finish, crossed the line at 4:40:34, but on the corrected time got second place, only thirteen seconds behind the winner. The Nelda, owned by J. B. Bayshore, and the Ruth II., owned by G. J. Bestner, suffered from engine trouble and did not finish. The summaries:

YACHTS DRESS SHIP IN NEWPORT HARBOR

New York Y. C. Craft Present Brilliant Marine Spectacle—Will Resume Racing To-day.

COMMODORE BLAIR'S CUP

Boats Will Sail to Vineyard Haven—New Yacht for Harold Vanderbilt.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 11.—If it was not for the yachts of the New York Yacht Club which are crowded in the harbor today it would have been a dull day indeed, as the various owners, guests, and officers of the 125 craft which are participating in the annual cruise of the club were back and forth all day long from vessel to vessel and to the shore on one sort of an errand or another.

The entire fleet dressed ship this morning at "colors" on signal from the flagship Diana, and Newporters were treated to their annual yacht spectacle when the yachts put on their prettiest while at anchor here during the cruise.

A grayer day overhead could not be imagined, and up to 3 o'clock rain fell almost incessantly, which somewhat interfered with the social programme, or at least that portion of it involving shore engagements.

Vice Commodore Dallas B. Pratt, Rear Commodore George F. Baker, Jr., J. Pierpont Morgan and J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., Morton F. Plant, Harold S. Vanderbilt, George M. Pynchon, and H. S. Duell, the last four being the owners of the schooners Elena and Vagrant and of the sloops Istalena and Rowdy, respectively, received from the Rear Commodore on board the Diana the cups they had won in yesterday's run from New London to this port.

There were luncheons on board Henry Walters's steam yacht Narada and Isaac Emerson's Margaret, chartered to Mrs. Henry Redmond, and in the evening Commodore C. Ledyard Blair gave a dinner to the former flag officers of the New York and other clubs, including Elbridge T. Gerry, E. C. Benedict, Arthur Curtiss James, J. Pierpont Morgan, August Belmont, Henry Walters, Royal Phelps Carroll, E. W. Clark, R. T. Paine, 2d, W. Butler Duncan, Dallas B. Pratt, Leonard Richards, George A. Dixon of Maryland, and George A. Connack.

All the yachtsmen are congratulating each other to-day on the success of the cruise so far. The yachts have been favored with fair winds on all their squadron runs to date, so that remarkably fast time has been made by every contestant.

At 9 o'clock this evening all yachts were illuminated, and Newport Harbor glowed like a huge theatre. Besides the usual rainbows of electric lights on board the steam yachts, there were red lights, rockets, and club night signal, green, red, green, set off at intervals.

The run to-morrow will be thirty-seven miles from this port to Vineyard Haven for the cups offered by Commodore C. Ledyard Blair. The following day the fleet will race back to Newport for the cups offered by Vice Commodore Dallas B. Pratt, and on Wednesday the races for the Astor Cups are to be sailed. The King Cup will be sailed for on Thursday.

The entries for the Astor Cups to date are schooners Princess, Enchantress, and Elena, and sloops Winsome, Avenger, Aurora, Dorello II., and Medora.

For the King Cup: Enchantress, Elena, Princess, Winsome, Avenger, and Aurora.

The yacht-racing contingent here to-day was very much gratified to learn that Harold S. Vanderbilt has placed on order with the Herreshoffs for a seventy-foot schooner, which will race next season in Class D, and will compete with such boats as Muriel, Taormina, and Princess, which are now racing.

Used Pianos

Low Price Advantages

Safeguarded by Quality

Buying a piano really means making a purchase for a lifetime.

That is one reason why your selection should be considered more seriously than a mere question of money.

You are buying something that is going to enter very closely into your life, in fact, becomes one important factor in shaping the happiness of your home.

People who love music often have to make sacrifices to own a piano, and those sacrifices represent a sincere belief in the integrity of the maker and the word of the seller.

Unfortunately because of that trustful belief it is presumed upon, and there are many very cheaply made and unworthy pianos sold to people who afterward spend years of regret.

The safeguard lies in not being led by some alluring inducement, but to buy only such pianos as have attained an indisputable reputation for genuine artistic worth and that are sold at an honest price by a reliable business house with an honest record to maintain.

Almost every day we take pianos in exchange as part payment for

Sterling Pianos and Playerpianos

If you find it necessary to purchase a piano for some beginner or are not ready to buy a new piano, and circumstances necessitate very careful buying, you will find this sale full of opportunities.

This means both as to the small cost of your purchase as well as the liberal terms for payment.

Not only are these pianos of the most reputable makes, but we also include in the sale a number of our own discontinued styles and factory samples as well as returned rentals from some of Brooklyn's best houses.

ARBITRARY COLOR TEST IS CHIEF CAUSE OF HIGH SUGAR

Public Is Taxed to Enrich Refiners by Cleverly Inserted Tariff "Joker" —No Reference at All to Saccharine Strength of the Commodity—Bristow Bill May Bring Relief.

BY JOHN JEROME ROONEY.

Nothing could better illustrate one of the chief underlying causes of the "high cost of living," under which the country is suffering, than a discussion of the duties on raw and refined sugars under the existing Payne-Aldrich tariff. Under the Dingley bill the duties on refined sugar were $1.95 per hundred pounds. When the Payne bill finally emerged from the Conference Committee of the House and Senate, and became a law by the signature of the President, it was found that the rate had been reduced to $1.90 per hundred pounds. As one commentator remarked, "The consumer by eating 100 pounds of sugar might save 5 cents!" But, as a matter of fact, the reduction, such as it was, made no reduction in the price, owing to the control of the market by the sugar refining combination, the rate being still so high as to be substantially prohibitory of importation.

That such is the effect of the rate of $1.90 per hundred pounds is clearly shown in the United States Treasury returns from refined sugar for the year 1911, amounting only to $57,080.51 on $97,208.40 worth of refined sugar, the equivalent of the specific rate of duty being 58.72 per cent.

This covers all sugars imported which have gone through the process of refining and which test in color over what is known as No. 16 "Dutch Standard." This "Dutch Standard" color test is highly interesting as a part of the machinery for taxing the public for the enrichment of the refiners and giving to them a monopoly of the American market. It may be described as a plan for taxing out of the market, by a mere color test having no reference to saccharine strength, the low and high grade clean raw sugars and sugars partly refined, which could be directly used by the consumer without further treatment. The result is to put the duty so high on these grades of sugar (between No. 13 and 16 "Dutch Standard") as to keep them out of the market, thus forcing the consumer to use only the refined domestic sugar.

Without this purely arbitrary color test it is estimated that 70 per cent. of all the sugar used in the United States would be brown or white raw, with a difference in the price of much more than one-half. Such sugars, it need scarcely be said, are at least as good as the refined for many purposes, such as preserves, cakes, pies, &c., and would put an immense additional supply of serviceable sugar at the easy command of the poor.

The difference in duty between refined and raw sugar is 21½ cents per 100 pounds. Carefully note the consequence. Some 3,600,000 long tons of sugar, (2,240 pounds to ton,) or 8,064,000,000 pounds, are consumed annually in the United States. That makes 80,640,000 hundredweight, and 70 per cent. of this is 56,448,000 hundredweight—the amount of unrefined that would, but for the "Dutch Standard" color test, be put upon the market at lower prices for varied uses.

The differential of 21½ cents per hundredweight between refined and raw, when multiplied by the 56,448,000, shows a result of $12,136,320 per annum, as a low estimate of the tax put upon the consumer by the "Dutch standard" color test alone. Worse yet, not one dollar of this enormous sum reaches the Treasury, but passes into the extra price of the refined sugar and becomes a part of the "protective" bounty paid to the refiner by the American public.

This "Dutch Standard" color test has resisted attack in revision after revision of the tariff. It is one of the big "jokers" of the tariff, and, in the hurry and confusion of passing tariff bills, has seldom attracted public attention. Like many other phrases in the tariff, it is too technical for common understanding.

But the Bristow Sugar bill, which passed the Senate July 27 by a vote of 52 to 3, strikes out the "Dutch Standard" color test and leaves the polariscope test only to determine saccharine strength. This was done deliberately to meet the objections pointed out above. In addition the refined sugar duty is reduced from $1.90 to $1.60 per 100 pounds. This Bristow bill was passed as a substitute for the House "free sugar" bill, the Senate Democrats offering a one-third reduction instead, but finally accepting Senator Bristow's compromise.

The Bristow bill is now before the House of Representatives, a conference committee will thrash out the differences this week, and, doubtless, a completed bill will reach the President for signature or veto within two weeks.

The operation of the duty in raising the price of sugar can be readily understood when it is seen that the foreign value per pound of the refined sugar that got over the tariff 58 per cent. wall was only .032 cent per pound and the value of the raw sugar imported was only .025 cent per pound. The latter paid a duty equal to 54.35 per cent. of the foreign market value and the total duties last year summed up $52,388,944.27.

This tax, of course, passed into the price of refined sugar for the American market; but upon the exportation of any part of this duty-paid raw sugar, in a further stage of manufacture, whether as refined or in preserves, candy, &c., under the "drawback" section of the tariff the refiner or exporter gets, upon proper proofs, a refund from the Treasury of 99 per cent. of the duties paid upon the raw sugar.

The Senate report on "Wages and Prices Abroad," (Lodge majority report, 1910,) shows (Part 3, Page 61,) common granulated sugar sells in Bradford, England, retail, at 4½ cents per pound; cubes, 5½ cents; while the same report (Document 465, Page 5,) shows that five pounds may be had in London for 20 cents, retail. United States Consul General John L. Griffiths, London, reports (Monthly Consular Reports No. 356) that loaf sugar sells retail in London at 5 cents; granulated, 4 to 5 cents; brown, 4 cents.

American refined sugar is sold in great quantities in the English market, holding its own in quality and price with all the world's competition.

There is a difference of between 2 and 3 cents per pound between the American domestic price and the price of the same sugar in the London markets. The immensity of the amount to the American consumer can be seen by referring to the number of pounds consumed in the United States.

The United States Treasury receives the sum quoted above on the meagre importations of refined sugar; the refiner adds the amount of the duty to the domestic price, securing this amount as his share of "protection," less the duty paid on the raw, but with no duty on the raw Hawaiian, Philippine, or Porto Rican; then, exporting the refined, gets back the duty on the raw.

Net result: United States Treasury gets as duty (on refined) $57,080.51, last year: American consumer pays to the refiner on whole supply a price with total duty, refined and raw, added on; the rest of the world gets the American sugar with the real duty on raw off, and the fictitious duty on the refined not added.

Then everybody wants to appoint a great commission—an International Commission—to find out why prices are high and "what is the matter with the cost of living."

NEBRASKA FOR THE DRY DOCK

Disabled Battleship Will Be Taken to Boston Yard Wednesday.

ROCKPORT, Mass., Aug. 11.—The battleship Nebraska arrived here to-day after having been damaged slightly Thursday by running on an uncharted shoal off Point Judith, R. I. The Nebraska will go to Boston Wednesday to dry dock for a thorough examination.

The battleship went on the shoal on even keel and scraped over several rocks. One plate on the bottom of the ship was started a few inches, and a compartment was leaking slightly after the accident, but an examination by divers disclosed that the damage was slight. The Nebraska proceeded to Rockport after receiving orders from the Navy Department. The accident occurred about 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon while the ship was making 15 knots an hour. The Missouri accompanied the Nebraska to this harbor.

Although the place where the Nebraska struck is not shown on recent charts, it was indicated on others as far back as 1839. Later the mark was believed to be a mistake, and taken off the new charts. The shoal consists of large boulders extending over an acre of sea bottom and covered by twenty feet of water.

KILLED BY A SODA SYPHON.

It Exploded While Storekeeper Was Charging It with Gas.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Aug. 11.—Barnet Mirskey, proprietor of a small confectionery and grocery store at 94 Madison Street, was literally blown to pieces this afternoon by the explosion of a soda water syphon that he was charging with gas. His daughter, who had asked permission to play and was just leaving the store, escaped injury, but Julius Rosefsky of 172 President Street, who was passing the store, was severely cut by flying glass. With blood streaming down his face, he ran five blocks to Dr. Korshet's office, where he collapsed from loss of blood. He will recover.

The explosion caused a panic among the twenty families living in the building. The store was wrecked. Mirskey leaves his wife and five children.

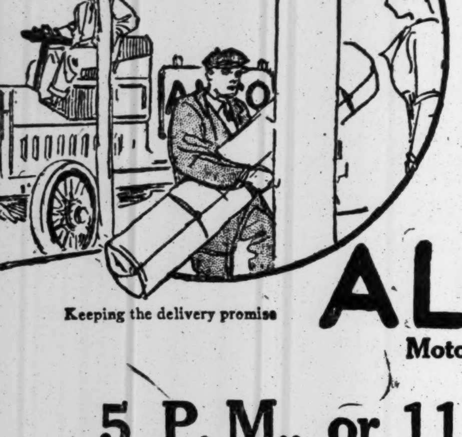
Motor Truck vs. Horse—Alco Argument No. 7



Keeping the delivery promise

ALCO
Motor Trucks

5 P. M., or 11 P. M.—Which?

New York folks appreciate having their goods delivered to their homes on time.

Some of them get their day's purchases anywhere from 9 P.M. to 11 P.M.—the result of tired horses; overworked men; too much territory to cover. It goes back for the most part to horse delivery.

Others get their purchases before dinner. The goods usually arrive by motor truck, driven by an alert enthusiastic young man—a good living testimonial to the progressiveness of a business house.

The reason these families get their goods on time is because the motor truck covers an area of territory five times that of the horse vehicle; goes over ground in one-third the time and finally because motor delivery is scientific delivery.

Alco motor trucks hold three non-stop records, which classify the Alco as America's greatest endurance motor vehicle. They deliver the goods safely; on time.

The business man who believes in service to his customers must be wise enough to look into the facts in the case of the Alco truck.

A letter or a 'phone call (Columbus 5300), will bring an Alco expert to your place of business.

STOLE FOR A CONEY NIGHT.

Took $50 from Employer and Is Worried by a $3.73 Shortage.

When John G. Lynch, a hay and grain merchant of 18 West 146th Street, departed from his office on Friday afternoon, he left one of his force, 17-year-old Albert Peterson of 349 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, in charge of the premises. When he returned at 6 o'clock the boy was gone, and so was a roll amounting to $50 from the boss's desk. Yesterday young Peterson stood contritely before Magistrate Kernochan, trying to show how he had spent a part of the money in a riotous evening at Coney Island. He returned $30.68 to Mr. Lynch, he gave an itemized accounting of his expenditures, and his only regret was that he could not account for $3.73. The shortage worried him deeply. He assured the Magistrate that he had not spent a cent of it on girls.

A considerable part of the money went for clothing, but $2.50 was less thriftily disposed of in Coney amusements, and 25 cents went for soda water. Lynch reported to the police that the boy had come to his place on Saturday and confessed.

The boy was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

PICNICKERS FIND A SUICIDE.

Body Lay in a Clump of Bushes with Revolver Clutched in Left Hand.

The body of a man who had a .32 calibre revolver clutched in his left hand and a bullet wound in his head and another in his left breast was found in a clump of bushes at Rodman's Neck, in Pelham Bay Park, yesterday afternoon, by Thomas Carbally of 1,710 Taylor Avenue, the Bronx, who was a member of a large picnic party. Carbally and his friends ran to the Morris Yacht Club, not far from where the body was found, and notified the police.

Capt. Barnett of the City Island Station made an examination, and said the man had been dead four or five days. Coroner Shongut ordered the body removed to Fordham Morgue.

There was nothing on the body that might lead to an identification. The man wore a blue serge suit which bore the tag of a firm of tailors whose goods can be bought in any part of the country. There were two discharged cartridges in the revolver. The fact that the weapon was found in the man's left hand caused a suspicion that murder might have been committed, but Capt. Barnett scouted this idea, saying the man was probably left-handed. The man was about 26 years old, weighed 140 pounds, was 5 feet 8 inches in height, and had brown hair.

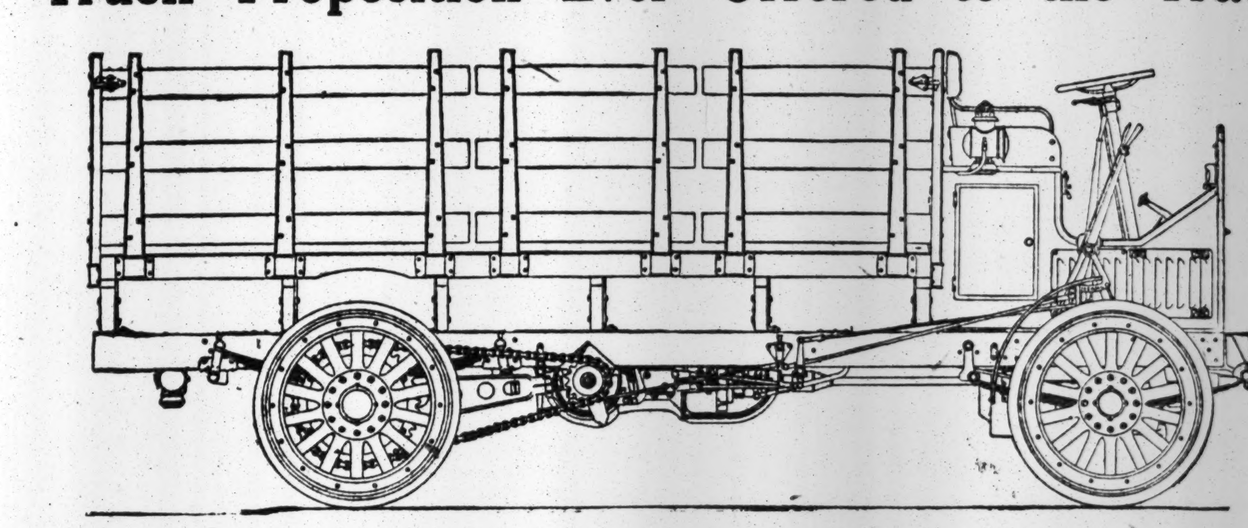
We Finance the Truck Buyer

The Universal Motor Truck Company Announces the Most Business-Like and Most Liberal Motor Truck Proposition Ever Offered to the Trade



How You Can Buy a Motor Truck—

¶ You need the truck but you can't afford to take the money out of your business.
¶ Your competitor either has one or is figuring on getting one.
¶ Your horses can only go so far and you must extend your trade.
¶ You have a lot of good horses, but you're not going to give them away.
¶ It's a big advertisement for your business. Isn't it?

¶ There's a man I know who had a small transfer business in a big city. Three months ago I didn't know him; today we are good friends. He wanted a MOTOR TRUCK but couldn't afford it. He could buy a little one, perhaps, but to do him any good he really ought to have a big one. We over-persuaded him by showing him HOW to BUY. Within two weeks after he got his truck a big contract was handed him. THE TRUCK BROUGHT IT TO HIM. Then he got another contract and ordered two more trucks. He told me last week positively that he would use seven trucks by next Spring—GOING SOME?

¶ I know another man who wanted a MOTOR TRUCK, but his business kept every dollar of capital busy. We didn't have to persuade him; he knew he wanted a big truck—3 tons—and he wanted it bad. He saw a chance for a good interurban freight trade in competition with an electric line. He could pick up and lay down package freight at store doors. The electric line couldn't. He is now hauling from 18 to 24 tons a day and he gets all the way from 15 cents to 25 cents a hundred pounds—nearly a hundred dollars a day, isn't it? Figure it out yourself. We showed him HOW to BUY the TRUCK.

¶ These trucks are PAYING for THEMSELVES, without drawing a dollar out of the business.

Here's Our Proposition—It's Very Simple

¶ YOU PAY US A DEPOSIT AND THE BALANCE ON TIME. The payments will hardly exceed what you would have to pay if you rented a truck by the day.
¶ HOW CAN YOU DO IT? The people who own our factories also own the Schlitz Breweries at Milwaukee. They made Milwaukee famous. Now they propose to make ours the greatest truck business in the world, and they have the money to do it.
¶ IS THE TRUCK A GOOD ONE? Yes, it is, or we wouldn't let you have it for a year on time. We guarantee it, besides.
¶ DO YOU MANUFACTURE IT YOURSELF? We certainly do—in the largest factory devoted exclusively to making trucks in the country.
¶ DO YOU CHARGE A LOT MORE FOR GIVING CREDIT? Not a cent. Our prices are no greater than for other standard makes of trucks, and in some cases less—$2750 for a 2-ton chassis, and $3400 for a 3-ton chassis. The bodies cost from $150 up, according to your needs—prices f. o. b. Detroit.
¶ This proposition goes for a 2-ton or a 3-ton truck, or any number of them. If you want to see the truck or inspect our service station, call or write.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 11.—Although out-hit, Cleveland scored eight runs to three for the Yankees, and made it four straight victories over the Yankees this afternoon, before the smallest Sunday crowd of the year. Had Fred Blanding pitched as well in the last three innings as he did in the first six he would have scored a shut-out with the record of 27 men facing the pitcher. For six innings the visitors were put out of the way three to an inning. The only man to get a hit, Zinn, was out at third when he tried to steal that base as Hartzell fanned.

In the seventh, however, Daniels broke the ice with a single and after Hunter had gathered in Chase's long fly, Paddock and Zinn came through with singles, filling the bases Simmons's sacrifice fly scored Daniels, but the others were stranded when Hartzell rolled to Lajoie. In the eighth, Stump started with a single, but was doubled on Sweeny's tap to Peck, and Davis struck out for the third time.

In the ninth inning, Daniels repeated his hit of the eight inning, and Chase sent him home with his drive to right field that was good for three bases. Zinn's double scored Chase, but the other three batters could not get the ball out of the infield.

George Davis, who pitched for New York, held the Naps to seven hits, but he was wild, while his support was ragged just when it should have been good. This condition, with the daring base running of the Clevelands, enabled them to pile up a safe score in two innings.

In the first inning, with one out, Hunter was walked, and scored when Jackson drove a triple to left. Jackson scored while Griggs was getting back to first on an attempted double steal, Griggs having walked. In the second inning, Peck started with a single. O'Neill and Blanding got on because of Yankee errors.

With the bases filled, Peck scored, while Ryan and Blanding were being doubled, and Hunter sent O'Neill home with a single. In the fifth Cleveland got another pair of tallies on two bases on balls, a sacrifice, and a single, Griggs being the man with a hit in the cases. Daring base running and a fumble of a thrown ball by Paddock made the final two for the Naps in the seventh. Jackson singled and stole second and third. Then Griggs walked, and with Jackson worked a double steal, Jackson scoring. As Baker was thrown out at first, Griggs went to third, and scored when Paddock let Chase's throw get away. Baker was given a chance to show what he could do at third base. This young man, who came from a semi-professional team right to the big league, looks good, though he did not get a hit.

Eleven Straight for Dubuc.

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—Jean Dubuc won his eleventh straight game to-day when Detroit defeated Boston, 4 to 2. Crawford's home run into the right field bleachers in the sixth produced the deciding tally. Loudon by handling seven chances without a slip claimed the distinction of playing the entire long home series which closed to-day without an error. Score:

Two Games for Athletics.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Philadelphia won both games of a double-header from Chicago today by scores of 9 to 6 and 2 to 1, respectively. The first game was a batting bee, in which the visitors outhit the locals. The second game was a pitchers' battle. With Philadelphians on first and second bases, Coombs flied to J. Collins, who threw to Johnson, catching B. Lord before he could return to the base. Johnson then threw to Rath at first before Lapp could return, completing a beautiful triple play. Scores:

PENNANT FLIES TO-DAY.

National League Flag Will Be Unfurled at Polo Grounds Before Game.

The National League pennant for 1911, which was won by the Giants, will be unfurled at the Polo Grounds to-day before the game with St. Louis. Among the guests will be Mayor Gaynor, Mrs. Helen Hathaway Britton, the owner of the St. Louis Club, and the only woman baseball magnate in the major leagues, and President Thomas J. Lynch of the National League.

Before the game the players of both teams will parade about the field, headed by the officials of the New York Club. The procession will take a semi-circular course, and will be grouped in front of the flagpole in centre field while the pennant is run to the top of the flagstaff. There will be a brass band and plenty of pomp and ceremony.

The game to-day will begin at 3 o'clock, so that both the New York and St. Louis teams will be able to catch an early train for the West.

HARD CAMPAIGNING FACES THE GIANTS

Critical Period of Season for New York on Coming Western Tour.

Several weeks ago the Giants invaded the West with a lead of fifteen games, and it seemed quite possible that the New York Club would have an apparently easy time annexing another National League pennant. That aspect of the league race has completely changed, and to-day the Giants face a very serious proposition. With the lead cut to seven and a half games, the team goes West to-night to engage in the toughest campaign they have encountered this season. If they win the pennant now, they will have to fight every inch of the way, because, now that Chicago, Pittsburgh, and Philadelphia have hit their true gait, the going will be difficult for the local club.

The Giants will have thirteen games on the present trip, and eight of these will be with the Pirates and Cubs, clubs which defeated the Giants in their last series at the Polo Grounds. Three games will be in St. Louis, and only two in Cincinnati. Returning to New York on Aug. 29, the Giants have a comparatively easy series of five games with Brooklyn, and then comes another big snag in the nature of seven games in four days in Philadelphia.

New York's record this season has been a peculiar one. Strange as it may seem, in about 30 per cent. of the team's victories the Giants have been outbatted by their opponents. They have ranked about the same as their opponents as hitters, and have been a shade better as fielders. Manager McGraw has developed a run-getting club, a scoring machine which had been the greatest kind of a success up to a few weeks ago.

Of late the team has fallen off in batting and in run-getting. And when the teams mainstay on the mound, Marquard, cracked, the pitching staff fell off in its work, with the one exception of the reliable Mathewson.

The Giants can no longer depend on defeating the weak teams to strengthen their position. They have to face clubs like Chicago and Pittsburgh, who have shown that they are just as strong as the Giants, going at their present fast gait. No one expects now, in the event of the Giants winning the pennant, that it will be a large margin. It was Manager McGraw's plan this year when his team got far in front to make his lead as great as possible, so that the club could have a good rest before going into the world's series. Last season the team had to play hard, right up to the end of the season, and the players had no chance for rest before the series with the Athletics.

The branch of the game in which the Giants have been most deficient all season has been fielding. Their errors have been frequent and costly, and have been only offset by their aggressiveness on the bases. The players realize that the coming series in the West will be the critical period of the league season.

The New York Club will go West on an early train to-night, and will drop off to-morrow at Goshen, Ind., to play an exhibition game. Manager McGraw wants his team to have two nights' rest in Chicago before tackling the Cubs on Thursday. After the Chicago series the team goes to St. Louis for three games, then to Pittsburgh for five games, and to Cincinnati for two.

The Yankees have had another unsatisfactory visit with the Western teams, and failed to win quite a third of their games on the road. The club returns to the hilltop to-morrow, with Detroit for an opponent. Manager Wolverton is still experimenting with the infield, and has made changes from day to day. New Yorkers have had no chance yet to see the new infielder, Del Paddock, in action, but he is said to be a valuable addition to the team.

The Yankees can hope to make no great showing this season, but Wolverton believes that he has rounded up a number of valuable youngsters, and by the season's end will have an aggregation which will be able to set a fast gait at the opening of next season.

OLYMPIC ATHLETES RETURN.

Eighteen Members of American Team Arrive on New York.

The American liner New York, which arrived yesterday from Southampton, brought over eighteen of the American athletes with trophies from the Olympic games in Stockholm. They were led down the gangway by the young giant, Ralph Rose of California, who carried a 16-pound shot in his hand like a toy and asked a reporter to hold it for him a moment while he signed his name. They were met at the pier by numbers of friends who waved their hats and cheered as the liner was coming alongside.

The men kept in training the whole way across on the deck of the ship, and in the sports on Thursday afternoon, Katherine Kennedy, a young American actress, who is a female athlete, ran second in two races, against the champions on board, and received one of the souvenir cups they were given in Stockholm.

The list of competitors returning included C. C. Childs, W. H. Fritz, J. J. Gallagher, P. C. Gerhardt, M. W. Hawkins, K. Huszagh, "Duke" Kahanamaka, the Hawaiian champion swimmer of the world, who is on his way to Philadelphia and Atlantic City, where he is, at the last-named place, to give exhibitions of surf riding on a plank; N. J. Kramer, A. P. Lane, M. McClure, W. M. McCurdy, M. McDermott, Percy McGillivray, N. P. Nerich, P. H. Pilgrim, and H. N. Putnam.

FAST HEATS ON SPEEDWAY.

Trixie H. and Dick Welsh Win Feature Events at Matinee.

Nine events comprised the card yesterday in the weekly brushing on the Harlem Speedway, and many of the races were productive of excellent sport. Six of the events were decided in straight heats, while the other three went in split heats.

The feature of the card was the event for Class AA trotters. Four horses made up the field, with three annexing a heat, a fourth being necessary for a decision. Charles G. Schmidt carried off the honors with his bay mare Trixie H. by winning the initial and final heats. The second heat was landed by E. O. Benzen behind Promise, after leading all the way from the start. The third heat, which was expected to end the affair, brought out a new winner in Kippewa, and it was a toss-up then for the victor. In the fourth meeting Trixie H. showed her ability to stand the test, and came home in front after a hard drive with Kippewa, both horses being put under the whip.

The Class AA pace came next in importance, and was well contested. James Kennedy drove his roan gelding Dick Welsh to victory over I. V. Hunt's champion mare Clover Patch, which was driven by Frank Reilly. The last heat of the race was a nip and tuck battle between Clover Patch and Dick Welsh, the latter being given a decision in what appeared like a dead heat.

The season will close Sunday, when the presentation of six silver cups will be made to the owners of the winning horses. The summaries:

POLO PLAYERS REST.

Rain Prevents Usual Practice at Narragansett Pier.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 11.—A heavy morning rain prevented any practice play at the Point Judith Polo club to-day, as the turf was too soft. The players met at the beach and the Casino and talked of the semi-finals of the junior championship to-morrow, and each of the four teams to be engaged found supporters. Kansas City, which is especially strong in team tactics is to oppose the Piping Rock four, and Cooperstown, who deprived Bryn Mawr of the title on Saturday, is to play Great Neck, which is headed by W. Russell Grace, and includes also J. Watson Webb, Hamilton Hadden and J. M. Milburn, Jr. The final will be on Wednesday. Tuesday the play begins for the Atlantic cups with no less than thirteen teams entered. The final is scheduled for Aug. 23 and the Ranelagh and individual points cups have also to be played for probably within the fortnight by utilizing the two fields. Thursday is to be given up to Gynkhana, with all the young girls taking part, and on Friday there is to be a sale of polo ponies under the auspices of the club.

SWIMMERS FAIL TO FINISH.

Brown and Rademacher Quit in Race to Coney Island.

Alfred Brown and Frank Rademacher, Captains of the Flushing and Hackensack divisions, respectively, of the American Life Saving Association, yesterday attempted to swim from the Battery to the station at the foot of West Twenty-fifth Street, Coney Island, but both failed. The contest was for a side bet of $500, and it was announced that another attempt would be made in two weeks.

Brown and Rademacher dived off the sea wall at the Battery at 8:23 o'clock yesterday morning. They soon encountered difficulty with the harbor currents, and it became apparent that they stood no chance of hanging up a new record. For three-quarters of an hour they struggled in sight of the Battery Park crowds. They finally succeeded in crossing to the Brooklyn side and encountered a more favorable tide, but Rademacher was forced to give up at a point off Sixty-fifth Street, South Brooklyn, with a cramp in his leg.

Brown continued and made fine progress until off Coney Island Point, where he encountered adverse currents. He battled hard, but to no avail, and at 1:12 P. M. he was lifted into one of the launches which followed him. Brown, who had been in the water four hours and forty-nine minutes, was exhausted when taken aboard, but revived quickly.

RUNNER QUEAL DEFEATED.

A. E. Wood of England Wins, Ten-Mile Match Race with Ease.

A. E. Wood, the English champion at long-distance running, found an easy victory awaiting him yesterday afternoon at the Newark Motordrome, when he ran Billy Queal, the American ten-mile champion, off his feet at the latter's own distance in 56:11 3-5. Queal made a plucky fight, but was out of condition, and a stitch in his side in the third mile forced him to lay off on the board track of the motordrome long enough to give Wood a half a lap start. From then on Queal was completely out of it, and stopped in about every succeeding mile to walk a while, suffering all the while with the pain in his side. Once or twice Queal made spasmodic attempts to cut down first the lap, and then the two-lap lead, but these did not amount to much, and he ran in abreast with Wood at the finish mark, two laps behind the English runner.

ALL-STAR SHOWS AT THREE CLUBS

Many Pugilists of Note Scheduled to Box in New York This Week.

All-star shows at three local clubs will furnish all the important boxing bouts scheduled for New York during the coming week. Both the Garden Athletic Club and the St. Nicholas Athletic Club, which have been furnishing all the big bouts for several weeks past, are again to the front with high-class shows, and the Royale Athletic Club appears in the same class with an all-star card of real merit.

At the Garden Athletic Club to-night the feature event of the all-star show will bring together Jack Britton, the Chicago lightweight, and Eddie Smith of Harlem. Britton is anxious to make amends for his rather disappointing showing recently when he fought Harry Stone, and has trained hard for to-night's bout. The Chicagoan is said to have fought an eight-round draw with Packey McFarland, and a few months ago he outpointed Pal Moore. Smith is a local lightweight who has been coming along fast, and will undoubtedly give Britton a hard fight.

In the semi-final of the ten-round bouts Dave Kurtz of Newark will clash with Al McCoy, who has been substituted for Tommy Maloney. These boys are welterweights. The other ten-round bout will show Young Reilly and Packey Hommey, two New York featherweights, in action. Both rank with the best of the young featherweights, and this bout should prove as good as the main event.

The St. Nicholas Athletic Club will put on another of its high-class cards Wednesday night, featuring with a heavyweight bout between Gunboat Smith of California and Porky Flynn of Boston. Smith's decisive victories recently over Hugh McGann and Andy Morris at local clubs stamp him as a heavyweight of considerable ability. In Flynn he will face one of the hardest hitters in the heavyweight division and an experienced fighter who has clashed with all the topnotchers of his class. Flynn returned from Australia only a few weeks ago, and last week he defeated Jim Barry at Boston.

In the ten-round semi-final Frank Picato of Chicago, who made a big hit with New York boxing enthusiasts three years ago, will clash with Willie Beecher of the east side. In the other ten-round bout Young McCartney, the clever Philadelphia welterweight, will hook up with Joe Stein of New York.

Young Ahearn, who has outgrown the lightweight division, but retained his speed with hands and feet, will clash with Kid Graves of Wisconsin in the main bout at the Royale Athletic Club of Brooklyn to-morrow night. Graves has made a decided impression in his few bouts in Brooklyn, and is considered a coming champion across the bridge. Willie Jones of Brooklyn and Young Fitzsimmons will come together in the second of the ten-round bouts, while the first will show Willie Howard of Brooklyn and Charley Griffin of Australia. This is easily the best card that has been arranged for any Brooklyn club in many months.

Jimmy Jarvis, who claims the lightweight championship of Harlem, has been signed up with Billy Cramer of St. Paul for the main bout at the Olympic Athletic Club of Harlem next Friday night.

Harry Condon and Jimmy Barry will come together in the feature event of to-morrow night's show at the Bayshore Athletic Club of Bayshore, L. I. Sailor Bill Sykes and Sailor Brooks will clash in the semi-final.

The usual week-end shows will be held Saturday night at the Fairmont and St. Nicholas Clubs of New York and at the Royale and Gowanus Clubs of Brooklyn.

JOY LEADS, BUT LOSES.

La Cubana Wins Yacht Cruising Race on Time Allowance.

On corrected time La Cubana won the second cruising race of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club yesterday. The course took the craft from the starting line off Ulmer Park Pier in Gravesend Bay to the westward of Romer Shoals Light, thence to and around Scotland Light vessel, Ambrose Channel Light, and back to the finish line off the clubhouse.

Joy led throughout the contest. The craft had a fifty-five-minute advantage off Ambrose Channel Light, but ran into a soft spot and finished first by only one minute and fifteen seconds actual time. Off Scotland Light the yachts picked up a heavy fog and had considerable trouble finding their way. The fog lasted almost two hours.

PATHFINDER'S HARD TASK.

Flanders Electric Encounters Hard Rains in Tennessee.

Special to The New York Times.

LORETTA, Tenn., Aug. 11.—After three days of the hardest rains ever seen in this section of Tennessee, and especially near Lawrenceburg, the red clay roads became practically impassable for traffic, but the pathfinders in the Flanders electric coupé came through and excited the countrymen as nothing else could have done. The streams were badly swollen and mud holes deep. The day's work netted fifty-one miles, with about as many steep hills and a dozen steep fords.

Lawrence County, in which forty miles of to-day's trip was made, will spend $200,000 on highway improvement at once, and promises to have excellent roads for the next tour. Some work is already being done. The route followed is to be known as the Jackson Highway, from Nashville to New Orleans via Memphis and Jackson, Miss. To-morrow the pathfinders travel in three States, Tennessee, Alabama, and Mississippi, passing through Florence and Sheffield to Corinth, Miss., with better road conditions promised ahead.

Brooklyn Auto Dealers' Outing.

Brooklyn and Long Island automobile dealers will hold their annual outing Thursday. The scene of the festivities is at East Rockaway, at the White Cannon Inn. The fun starts at 8:30 o'clock, when the parade forms at Bedford Avenue and Bergen Street, Brooklyn, and there will be something doing every minute of the day and part of the night. At 10 o'clock the ball game begins, then follows a buffet lunch. The sports include a 100-yard dash, lying start, (each man flat on his back till the gun is fired;) potato race, obstacle race, shoe race, three-legged race, bicycle race, tire rolling contest, swimming races, and duck chase. The prizes include silver medals for the winning ball team, silver cups, gold watches, cigars, barrels of oil and gasoline, silk dusters, speedometers, storage batteries, and presto tank.

New Auto Records at Calgary.

CALGARY, Alberta, Aug. 11.—Barney Oldfield set two new records for country roads yesterday. He drove a mile in 41 4-5 seconds, clipping a second and a half off a mark set at Wildwood, N. J. His other new mark is 18.1-5 seconds for half a mile. Driver Ditsch drove a 300-inch car a mile in 46 2-5 seconds, which is a record for this class of car.

WRAY CAPTURES RACE.

Denver Motor Cyclist Wins Hour Contest at Stadium-Motordrome.

W. H. Wray of Brooklyn won the hour race last night at the Brighton Beach Stadium Motordrome, covering 69 miles ½ lap. Johnny Albright of Denver was second with 67 miles 2½ laps to his credit, and George Lochner of Syracuse third with 65 miles 1 lap. A. Chapple had engine trouble and was far in the rear, his tally showing 22 miles 1 lap. Fully 10,000 persons enthused over the speed shown by the riders.

With but few intervals, Albright kept in the lead the entire distance, all the riders stopping at different times for oil or through mishaps.

Johnny Constant, the American amateur record holder, showed the Simon Pures the way in both heats of the three-mile race, defeating Howard Wray, Jimmy French and Ray Hoffler of Indianapolis in straight heats, with the times 2:29 1-5 and 2:25 2-5.

Billy Wray and George Lochner had a merry time in the five-mile professional race, which was decided in one heat. The latter got away in the van and went off at a great clip, leading for two miles before Wray poked his wheel in front and finally winning by half a wheel in 3:53. The summary:

Three-Mile Race, (Amateur.)—First heat won by John U. Constant, New York; J. B. French, New York, second. Time—2:29 1-5. Second Heat—Won by Constant; French second. Time—2:25 2-5.

LOWERS KRAMER'S COLORS.

Anderson Defeats Champion in All-Nations Race at Newark.

Frank L. Kramer, the champion bicycle rider, was defeated yesterday at the Newark Velodrome, when he finished second to Norman Anderson of Denmark in the one-mile all-nations race. Anderson broke loose from the field at the half mile and jumped into a lead of one-half a length. Kramer made no attempt to go after him, but kept with Feiol of France and Grenda of Australia until the bell lap. All three then broke away and made a desperate sprint, but Anderson wabbled in a half wheel length ahead of Kramer. Grenda was third and Feiol fourth.

The summaries:

One-Mile Novice, Amateur.—Won by Fred Wolsin, New York; E. E. Davis, Belleville, second. Time—2:24.

MARATHON CYCLE RACE.

J. Selner First in Road Contest on Long Island.

J. Sellner of the Empire City Wheelmen, with an allowance of five minutes, won the second annual cycling Marathon yesterday at Floral Park, L. I. The event, which was held under the auspices of the New England Wheelmen of New York, attracted seventy-five cyclists, of whom thirty-five finished the race. The roads were in fair condition, despite the early morning rain, and no serious accident occurred.

The contest was a close one throughout, and the winner secured the verdict by the margin of about a wheel from N. Gutoff, who was also placed on the five-minute mark. The pair, together with A. Dawson, the third man, kept together throughout the race and furnished an exciting finish. The cyclists to finish follow:

Albright to Race King.

Johnny Albright, the Denver star, who suffered defeat at the hands of Arthur Chapple and Eddie Hasha at the Stadium motordrome at Brighton Beach recently, but has been winning the open professional events handily, will make an effort to regain public favor when he meets Freddie King of Kansas City in the feature event of an eleven race card to-morrow night. This will be Albright's real chance to break into the limelight again, as King is one of the best men that has been racing through the season at the Newark Motordrome. King has been anxious to get the match with Albright for some time.

Tennis on Local Courts.

G. A. L. Dionne of the West Side Tennis Club scored his second leg on the Woodmere Singles Cup yesterday by winning the final of the lawn tennis tournament on the courts of the Woodmere Country Club at Woodmere, L. I. Dionne, as the playing-through cup holder, met Arthur M. Lovibond of the Hamilton Grange Club in the final and defeated him in five sets at 3—6, 6—3, 5—7, 6—1, 6—4. One of the semi-finals in the doubles was decided, in which H. S. Rothschild and Leo Leventritt defeated Leonard Beekman and A. L. Latimer at 4—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Team work played the all-important part in the victory of S. Howard Voshell and Frederick C. Baggs yesterday in the final match of the Edgemere Club lawn tennis doubles on the courts at Edgemere, L. I. The pair that has performed so well throughout this season defeated Walter Merrill Hall and L. Millens Burt of the Hamilton Grange Lawn Tennis Club after four rapid-fire sets at 3—6, 6—0, 6—3, 6—4.

NEW YORK, MONDAY, AUGUST 12, 1912.

THE NATION'S WORD.

We beg respectfully to submit to President TAFT that there is a certain incongruity in sending the head of the State Department to Tokio as a sign of our friendship for the Empire of Japan, and, in the Canal bill, showing that neither friendship nor honor can withstand the impulse of National greed. Japan and Great Britain are allies. They are powerful commercial and naval nations. They are deeply interested in the new channel between the oceans that we have nearly completed. We have pledged to one of these nations in solemn treaty, and through that nation to her ally and to the world, that this channel shall be open to all on equal terms. Now by an act of incredible folly and wanton selfishness we propose to deny equality and grab advantage for ourselves, or for a small but rapacious class among ourselves. Thus in the name of enlightened commerce we put the stamp of debased coinage upon our promises. And it is in that coinage that the value of our friendship will be appraised.

We are aware that the President has, without, we hope, due consideration, given his approval in advance to the essential part of this action. But it is not too late to revise his opinion, or, if he does not care to do that, it is not too late to reject the plan on account of the mass of irrelevant, impracticable, and, perhaps, unconstitutional matter that has been added to the original proposition. And we beg him to remember that this action of the Senate is, in one way, worse than it would be if we could carry out our high-handed scheme without interference. We cannot. We shall inevitably be called to account in that tribunal which it is our proud boast that we did most to create and to clothe with authority. In the creation and development of this tribunal Mr. TAFT has had an honorable part. Does he wish, at the close of his term, to see his Government summoned before this court to defend an act of bad faith, to put forth miserable pettifogging pleas in explanation of broken promises, to squirm and writhe under exposure of dishonor such as in private life robs a man of the respect of decent men? We cannot believe it. Mr. TAFT has done some weak things through hasty action, and has suffered for them. If he gives his judicial judgment time to work, and weighs the thing he is asked to do in the scales of personal and National conscience, we shall expect him to condemn and to kill it.

WISDOM COMES WITH COUNSEL.

There is one passage in the speech of acceptance by Gov. WILSON that throws a clear light on the whole utterance. It is the closing passage. The candidate had given his solemn pledge that he could not have accepted a nomination which left him bound to any man or any group of men, and had declared that no man can be just who is not free. He concluded:

> To be free is not necessarily to be wise. But wisdom comes with counsel, with the frank and free conference of untrammeled men united in the common interest. Should I be intrusted with the great office of President, I would seek counsel wherever it could be had upon free terms. I know the temper of the convention which nominated me; I know the temper of the country that lay back of that convention and spoke through it. I heed with thankfulness the message you bring me from it. I feel that I am surrounded by men whose principles and ambitions are those of true servants of the people. I thank GOD and will take courage.

This is earnestly and even fervently spoken. We have no doubt that Gov. WILSON has a profound sense of the opportunity offered to him, and of the difficulties by which he will be beset. If he is surrounded by true servants of the people, he knows that among his followers and among their leaders there are those who do not measure up to his standard. With these he openly proposes to deal with the wisdom that comes of counsel. By that means and that alone he can organize his Administration and accomplish concrete results.

The same truth applies to his dealing with thorny questions. He is as far as may be from the spirit of the fanatic who runs at great duties with his head down and his ears deafened to all suggestion by his own bellowing. He is equally far from the cunning demagogue who promises what he knows he cannot perform that he may stir the unthinking. He proposes to take counsel of men of good-will in every walk of life, to seek knowledge of those who know, and not of those who are excited by ignorant hatred and mistrust. That, we take it, is the saving element of keen common sense in the purposes and the mental operations of this philosophic and broad-minded aspirant for the office of Chief Executive. It is a characteristic of all leadership and indispensable to great leadership.

POISONED MEAT.

It is a disgraceful state of things that was described in the columns of THE TIMES yesterday as to the sale of diseased meat in this city. It is the old story of divided authority, of everybody's business ending by becoming nobody's business. The excellent inspection of the Federal Government cannot touch the vile stuff that is shipped from a point in the State to another point in the State, though it passes the boundaries on the way. The State inspection, inadequate at best, is made at the widely scattered points of origin. The municipal inspection is crippled by want of funds, and between the three there is no efficient co-operation.

There are plausible excuses for the miserable failure to protect life and health that results from this confusion, but excuses are not an antidote to poison in the alimentary organs. The clearer it is made that no one part of the wretched hodge-podge of protective inspection can be distinctly held accountable for the terrible conditions, the more the whole "system" is condemned. The remedy lies in concentration and harmonious action. We should say that careful study of the subject by skilled representatives of the Health Departments of the State and city and the Federal authorities could produce a plan that public opinion would compel the Legislature to adopt.

CERTIFIED INVESTMENTS.

Last week the investment bankers of the country organized in this city for the purpose of promoting their business interests by safeguarding their customers' investments. Many, perhaps most, investors want something new, because bargains are oftenest found among new undertakings, the old and seasoned investments being out of reach. There is no lack of those who will recommend new investments, the Post Office having stated that incredible losses are made by those who invest in answer to the advertised invitations of irresponsible "bankers." It is a foolish thing to do, and it is unnecessary, for it is always possible to choose among many reputable and responsible bankers or brokers. The difficulty is that there is no recognized standard beyond membership in Stock Exchanges, or unvouched personal probity. The new organization provides a body free from the undeserved reproach due to this prejudice against Wall Street and Exchange operations, and it will establish standards of investments available to all who will avail themselves of it. In this manner the Real Estate Exchange of this city provides appraisals by responsible appraisers, even though they do not claim infallibility. In Canada there is an organization which goes so far as to guarantee values, to the extent that they will appraise for a fee, and if the property cannot be sold at the price fixed it can be tendered to the appraisers at a percentage below the appraisal. Thus loss is not avoided, but it is limited, and fair risks can be taken.

It does not appear that the Investment Bankers' Association of America contemplates anything like this. Its proposed functions are merely for self-help, and for education of their clients. Capital is drifting elsewhere through the anti-railway prejudice of this country, and that is for the benefit neither of the country nor of its bankers or investors. The best investments in the world have been American, and still ought to be so. A broad market ought to be made by keeping money at home, and by preventing it from drifting into wild-cat investments. An important influence can be exerted also in forming public sentiment outside of investors, and thus preventing good investments on their merits from being prejudiced by narrow and wrong views of public policy. There is a field for the new organization, and the names associated with it are ground for hope that the difficult task will be attacked with intelligence and character.

PRECEDENTS REGARDING "PROGRESS."

Discussing the platform written to the order of the Third Term Candidate, Miss ADDAMS said:

> The platform we adopted is wonderful. It's like a Lloyd-George programme, and, as I said, at last we are really standing for something.

But the American Georgeites are standing for more than the British Georgeites will stand. The American programme of social and industrial justice far exceeds the motion of Mr. MACDONALD for a minimum wage and a more equal division of the fruits of industry. But the House of Commons rejected the motion by a vote of 226 to 45, or by a vote exceeding that of the strict Georgeites against the Laborites. The Liberals had the support of some of their opponents on a proposal which is moderation itself compared with the inexhaustible fount of happiness for all at others' expense which was tapped at Chicago.

Is there not food for thought in the disclosure how far the modern movement for reform has identified itself in several lands with a movement for the equitable distribution of wealth at the expense of the wealthy? It does not seem to occur to the poor that they have anything to lose by curbing swollen fortunes. If those fortunes were in gold and diamonds they might be distributed once without impoverishing any poor, and with some benefit to a few poor, although without substantial benefit to all the poor. Modern wealth, however, is not in precious articles, but in factories and railways and steamships. These are not capable of distribution with retention of their values. They are worthless unless they are used, and they can be used only by employing labor. To despoil the wealthy malefactors would be to impoverish the wage earners who live on their payrolls.

Mr. SCHWAB did not enrich himself by despoiling his employer, Mr. CARNEGIE. He enriched himself by creating wealth, which made employment for thousands. When the Equitable Building was burned, and the richest storehouse in the world was emptied, the most precious articles in the vaults were title deeds, not gems nor metals. There is no workingman with a modest home, or with those hopes of one which every American has right and reason to entertain, who is not interested in the safeguarding of title deeds. There is no way to distinguish between the title deeds of the trades unionist and the wealthy malefactor. Both are creations of the law, and the aggregate of the small holder dwarfs the holdings of the richest man. Rich and poor are in the same boat when it comes to distribution of property by law and to undermining muniments of title by law. The defects in the administration of the law are lamentable, but they are not the defects of the law. No one objects to the reform of the law's defects, but everybody ought to object to the unsettlement of the foundations of law, and the substitution of the caprices of either an individual or a still more irresponsible majority of the people.

WOMEN AS PARTY WORKERS.

The woman suffragists in Chicago have stopped working primarily for suffrage and are helping direct the campaign of the Roosevelt Third Term Party. They have been flattered into their new activities. "For the first time in American political history," writes JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN in The Chicago Tribune, "women are "to participate in the direction of a "National campaign." Four women, including JANE ADDAMS, were appointed as members at large of the National Committee. They are to spread the gospel of Progressivism in the suffrage States and throughout the Union. The leaders of the new party fully realize the "tremendous influence of women," and propose to make "every effort to obtain its use in behalf"—not of woman suffrage, oh, no!—but "of the candidacies of ROOSEVELT and JOHNSON."

Mr. ROOSEVELT is not enthusiastic for woman suffrage, he has said so; but he is in a white heat for the cause of "my candidacy." If women can help in the advancement of that cause, he will say that he is a suffragist, and he will set them to work to persuade and educate the voters as to the real meaning of the principles and purposes of the new party. Among these principles and purposes, which are numerous, "votes for women" has a very subordinate position.

DRINKING CUPS FOR HORSES.

Individual drinking cups and shower baths for horses are the next thing on the humanitarian programme, according to the announcement to-day of the Bureau of Municipal Research. It is all very much to the point—among the 90,000 horses in Manhattan there are 6,500 deaths yearly, a large proportion of them due to glanders, which is communicated by the filthy horse troughs. Of the 240 public watering places in Manhattan, 97 are reported in bad condition, 15 are not in working order, and the flagging is broken about the troughs in 64 cases. For an occult reason, just one-half of them are placed in front of saloons, while there is a call from express companies, department stores, manufacturers, and other owners for more drinking fountains in their vicinity, with facilities for watering the horses from individual pails, together with showers of the type recommended by Commissioner LEDERLE, to keep the horses from being overcome by the heat.

Suggestions have come from the Police Department of sites where fountains should be erected and kept clean. This is a new reform, but it is welcome.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Commendation from a Political Foe. To be appreciative, even when unsympathetic, and accurate, even when antagonistic — those are among the higher ideals of what, in contrast with the thick-and-thin partisanship of other days, may be called the new journalism, and any newspaper must feel, and may pardonably express, satisfaction and pride when it gets convincing evidence that its efforts to attain and exemplify those ideals have been successful.

Such evidence is coming to THE TIMES just now from many quarters in the shape of recognition by the friends and followers of Col. ROOSEVELT that its reports of his Chicago Convention were as notable for their fairness and fullness as they were for the skill displayed in the use of words, and that they supplied every reader of the paper with what every sensible man must have wanted, whatever his political affiliations—the means of knowing exactly what happened, and how, at that remarkable gathering.

A most curious result of this is that speakers at National Progressive meetings have already acquired the habit of praising THE TIMES with enthusiasm and advising all their hearers to read it. At a meeting for organization purposes held in New Rochelle Friday night this was done repeatedly by the orators, and with especial emphasis by WILLIAM H. HOTCHKISS, Col. ROOSEVELT's State Chairman for New York, who made—as he is likely to do wherever he goes—quite the best speech of the evening.

Now, the sincerity of Mr. HOTCHKISS's belief in the wisdom, the honesty, and the soon-coming success of his new party cannot be questioned by any one who hears him, any more than can the moving effect of his calm and simple eloquence as he rehearses the party's brief history and prophesies for it a Nation-saving, almost a world-saving, future. He, if any man, might be expected to resent such editorial criticism as his paragon statesman has received from THE TIMES, and in his anger to look for, and find if he could, in its news columns, injustice, untruth, misrepresentation—and what not that is obnoxious to himself and his fellow-devotees. It was evident from what he said that he had found nothing of the kind, and from his auditors came no murmur of dissent as they listened to his eulogy of a hostile paper.

We conclude, therefore, that in this matter, at least, THE TIMES has done what it tries to do in all matters—has presented the facts, unexaggerated, unminimized, and uncolored—has told the truth, that is, without regard to consequences, political or other.

A Demand Wholly Imaginary. Irritation and weariness, with more than a trace of disgust in both, are the emotions, surely, that will be created in the minds of many who read the conclusions reached by the Illinois Railway and Warehouse Commissioners after investigating one of the worst of the recent railway accidents—the one on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Road at Western Springs on July 14. Thirteen people were killed then and many more injured in a collision that was most distinctly of the "avoidable" kind, and yet the Commissioners in their wisdom decide that the responsibility for this slaughter lies—where? On the company or its employés? By no means. The causes of the accident, they say, are—

> First—The demand of the general public for through trains at a rate of speed dangerous to the traveling public.
> Second—The demand made by the Government for similar fast rate in the carrying of mail to appease the demand of the public.
> Third—The acceding of the railroads to the prevailing demands by which trains are scheduled to run close together at a highly dangerous speed.

Which is all rot and nonsense, pure and simple. There never was and never will be any demand from either the general or the traveling public for speed incompatible with safety. The public likes fast trains, no doubt. It patronizes and pays for them when they are offered by the competing roads—and none other ever does offer such trains—but it invariably makes the perfectly reasonable assumption that the railway managers know how fast their trains can safely run and that they will not be operated at any greater speed.

That the traveling public or the Government uses the trains that are dangerously fast, if such there be, is because the danger has been carefully concealed from them. Let a road advertise that its "flier" puts the lives of passengers in serious or even measurable peril and see what happens to the "demand" for that particular part of its service. The result might be enlightening to the Illinois Commissioners if they are merely stupid; it would certainly be confusing to them if, consciously or unconsciously, their verdict came from a desire to put the blame for that accident on somebody who couldn't be punished.

Montclair's Dark Mysteries. While not denying that there would be serious inconveniences and annoyances incidental to a gathering of birds in vast numbers on the trees shading a residence street, it is still hard to believe that the people in Crescent Avenue, Montclair, have suffered such grievous woes that their fierce antagonism to these feathered neighbors is fully justified.

To be sure, we have received letters from them a many, telling of deafening chatterings intolerably matutinal, and they have narrated other grievances to which, when asked, "How would YOU like that?" we can only answer, "Not at all!" There remains, however, the unexplained and apparently inexplicable mystery, Why do the robins and grackles and starlings gather in such multitudes on those particular trees?

When one does not understand a thing the inclination to doubt is very strong. No other suburb suffers, or so far as known ever has suffered, from a plague of birds. On the contrary, the others would gladly have more of these same visitors than they can get by urgent invitation and generously scattered crumbs. The dark suspicion rises that if Montclair has been peculiarly and uniquely afflicted, it must be in consequence of Montclair's sins, also peculiar and unique.

The town, to a passing traveler, looks like an abode of at least near-innocence, but appearances are proverbially deceptive, and, in the very nature of things, in a divinely ordered world it cannot be for nothing or without a reason that Montclair has been selected for a punishment at once undeserved and unprecedented.

If birds could only talk English or even the patois of New Jersey, we might get new light on this dark subject. The letter writers of the town give us none at all.

FARMS FOR RESIDENT ALIENS.

Plan to Advertise in Foreign Tongues Among Thrifty Immigrants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An association should be formed for the direction to our idle and semi-idle fertile farms of resident skilled farmers who have saved money. The usual commission of about 5 per cent., which is paid for the sale of an average farm, would in time make this association self-supporting. A publication printed in the respective languages which our experienced immigrant farmers understand would soon reach the right sort of parties, and reveal to them that land hunger can be appeased in this country; that the dreaded isolation can be avoided by settling in groups, and that co-operation in buying seed, stock, and implements, as well as in the marketing of the farm produce, does result in prosperity. In time this publication also could become a source of profit to the association.

A fund of about $10,000 would be plenty to provide for this association up to the time when its income would be sufficient for the defraying of its expenses. Surely this would be practical philanthropy, it would be legitimate business, and it would efficiently augment the general welfare.

LAJOS STEINER.

New York, Aug. 10, 1912.

MISS TARR'S ACCURACY

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The opening sentence in your excellent editorial article on the subject of "Gov. Wilson's Champion 'Typist'" ought to be read by every stenographer in the country. It would inspire stenographers generally to try to reach that degree of skill you mention as being necessary to expedite the daily work of the Nation.

But there are two statements in the editorial that, it seems to me, are not wholly true—especially in view of the development of modern shorthand systems. One of these is that "shorthand is not an exact system; at best it is a method of mnemonics." The other is that "one shorthand system is as good as another; it is all a matter of nerves and brain."

The system Miss Tarr uses is not a system of "mnemonics"; it is as exact as longhand itself. It happens that Miss Tarr was my stenographer for more than two years. Most of her transcribing was from my own shorthand notes—letters, original articles of a semi-technical nature, and manuscript of textbooks, all of which were written in shorthand. This method was adopted because it saved the stenographer's time in taking dictation and involved no waste of my time. In the majority of cases the notes were hurriedly written and in far from perfect shorthand, so far as the execution was concerned. But invariably the transcripts came back clean and errorless. If the shorthand had been a system of "mnemonics"—in other words, but a "slight aid to the memory"—it would have been impossible for her to transcribe, simply because she had never heard the matter and there would have been no "memory" upon which to hang a single word.

It would be impossible for a writer to take an address of the length of Gov. Wilson's at the speed at which Miss Tarr wrote it, and with any system of "mnemonics" be able to reproduce it with the fidelity that Miss Tarr did. I would wager that Miss Tarr could lay aside her notes of that speech for several years and then transcribe them without a material variation from her original transcript.

As for one shorthand system being as good as another, one incident is enough to dispose of that theory. In the international shorthand speed contest at Washington, D. C., in 1910, Miss Tarr won third place and established a world's record for accuracy on "solid" matter. In this contest were many of the best shorthand writers of the country with less than ten years' experience, some of them reporters with National reputations, and writers of the system Miss Tarr writes won first, second, and third places. Miss Tarr, who was then scarcely more than 16 years of age, began the study of shorthand less than a year and a half before the contest took place. The boy who won second place was but 16 years of age and had had less than one and a half years' experience.

Miss Tarr's feat was simply the combination of a young woman with brain and nerves admirably adapted to shorthand work and a system of shorthand that was exact and did not depend upon memory to make it legible. Miss Tarr is unquestionably one of the best shorthand writers the world has produced, and your tribute to her skill is well deserved.

It is possible for the writer of any of the standard shorthand systems to read the notes of another writer of that system. Shorthand symbols are, nevertheless, merely hints of recorded speech. The usual business vocabulary is restricted. A record of notes from dictation that is not customary would be difficult to read. —[Editor.

THE NATURAL LITTLE MISS.

An Oldster Explains Why She Need Not Attract Attention.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a controversy between correspondents of THE TIMES on why early marriages of men are uncommon, "E. M. R." says that they are not scared by the whitewashed faces of the girls. She might have added that they cordially approve of the bathing costumes. Perhaps they do, but as wives they would prefer those less economical of fabric. She says girls use certain means to attract attention and succeed. No conquest. A monkey climbing an electric pole with sworn determination to bite a slice out of the light would also attract attention of those with nothing else in mind. She adds that "the more theatrical a girl looks, the more attentions she receives from men." One who admires theatrical costumes and conduct off the stage, even though he shaves daily, is not a man, but merely an ass, liable to get into trouble.

She continues: "Their beaus outnumber those of the natural little miss." The fine girl so contemptuously designated misses nothing. She has but one beau, who becomes her husband, and thanks heaven for his good fortune because she becomes a very large Mrs. in his estimation, for, like wisdom, "her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace."

We next receive the astounding intelligence that "the entrance of women into business has improved its condition beyond all other means." Heretofore those versed in economic science, and common veterans of trade, have believed that the development of natural resources and other equally slight causes have contributed to prosperity. She further says "that men recognize in women the power or ability of keen thinking, far-sightedness, and intuition not possessed by any man." Jumping Texas, or, rather, holy Michigan! I have never met with such men, never having visited an insane asylum. The declaration then claims for women all the developments of the arts, sciences, invention, and government for which the trousered and bald-headed sex has received credit. At this point, the gigantic intellect rested, after the modest statement that "this satisfactorily refutes the remarks of 'Well Mated.'"

Omniscient, impeccable, infallible!

THE CANADIAN "CONSTITUTION."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Allow me to add a little to your discussion of the recent decision of the Privy Council, holding ultra vires the act of the Dominion (of Canada) Parliament regarding marriages in Quebec. The source of all legislative authority, both of the Dominion and Provincial Parliaments, is the British North America Act, an act of the British Parliament. The Privy Council simply decides, as it and the Canadian Courts have frequently decided, that such authority has been transcended. Strictly speaking, this is not a decision that the Dominion act is "unconstitutional," because it is not held to violate a self-imposed restriction, such as our State and Federal Constitutions contain; but simply that the Dominion Parliament went further than the Imperial act permitted. The analogy of the British North America Act to a constitution is in many ways striking and useful; but it is fundamentally different, nevertheless, in being merely an act of Parliament itself.

"Ingeneer" and Engineer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With regard to the controversy about the way to differentiate the professional appellation of learned engineers and of enginemen allow me to offer the following suggestion:

The European languages use the word "engineer" only for the professional man, but—and this is the crucial point—they all spell the word with an initial "i" instead of the English-American "e."

English, engineer; German, ingenieur; French, ingénieur; Italian, ingegner; Spanish, ingenier; Dutch, ingenieur; Russian, inzhenyer; Swedish, ingeniör.

Should the American public and press really feel the need to differentiate between the two classes of engineers, let it adopt the spelling "ingeneer" for the ingenious engineer, and leave the spelling "engineer" to the engine-driving and engine-operating engineers.

BULL MOOSE PLATFORM DEVOID OF A NEW IDEA

Many Planks Only a Paraphrase of Pledges of the Socialist-Labor Party of 1896.

It was said by a very wise man of true statesmanlike quality that the least government is the best government. There must be lawmakers and interpreters and executors; but there is too much law, or, rather, too much legislation. The people, to whom every empiric appeals when he has some selfish object in view, are not given a fair chance, or, as the text of the day has it, "a square deal." Appeal is made to their prejudices, their distresses, their emotions, instead of to their reason and intelligence, but the evils from which they have suffered have been only the evils which under the influence of false teachers they have themselves authorized. They do not think. They take for granted whatever any visionary "leader" who has wormed himself into their confidence teaches, until overcome by their fears they become like little children who, walking with fear and dread on some lonesome road in the night time, see lurking in every shrub and bush some frightful fiend intent upon their destruction. It is human nature—"for we are but mortal after all."

There has never been a new religion that has not attracted its followers; the world is full of lords and gods and full also of devotees who bow down and worship stocks and stones. The world is full also of political parties that have their adherents who, mistaking symptoms for incurable disease, would kill the body to save the soul; would abandon the ordinary means of obtaining relief from the burdens they bear for new and untried, or, worse still, oft-exploded theories advanced by any tyro or trickster who may capture their confidence. It has always been so; it will always be so—wherever a false god is erected there will be priests to minister unto him and people to follow him; wherever a new political idea is advanced or an old idea worked over into the confusion of the times there will be some stalwart and strenuous anointed leader to "stand at Armageddon."

There is nothing in the platform declared by the Bull Moose Convention at Chicago that has not been written into the platforms of other political parties.

"The true theory of economics is that the machinery of production must belong to the people in common," was only the way the Socialistic-Labor Party of 1896 had of saying what the Bull Moose people at Chicago resolved, with the singing of hymns and the offering of prayers, that the people should have "the ultimate authority to determine fundamental questions of social welfare and public policy."

The "pledge" of the Bull Moose that a law shall be enacted "which will make it impossible for patents to be suppressed or used against the public welfare in the interest of injurious monopolists," is only an adumbration of the declaration of the Socialistic-Labor Convention, which resolved that "inventions should be free to all; the inventors to be remunerated by the Nation."

The "belief" of the Bull Moose people "in a graduated inheritance tax as a National means of equalizing the obligations of holders of property to Government" is only a slightly new way of saying what the Socialist-Labor Convention said when they declared for a "progressive income tax on inheritances."

The declaration of the Bull Moose Convention that "the issue of currency is fundamentally a Government function," is the "square deal" way of saying what the Socialist-Labor Convention, held in this City of New York, resolved sixteen years ago, when it demanded that "the United States have the exclusive right to issue money."

The resolution of the Bull Moose Convention that "the natural resources of the Nation must be promptly developed and generously used to supply the people's needs, but we cannot safely allow them to be wasted, exploited, monopolized or controlled against the general good," was a little longer, but not more definite or effective than the declaration of the Socialist-Labor Convention for "Congressional legislation providing for the scientific management of forests and waterways, and prohibiting the waste of the natural resources of the country."

In 1896 the Socialist-Labor Convention demanded that "all public officers be subject to recall by their respective constituencies." That was definite and positive; rather more so, it would seem, than the resolution of the Bull Moose people that "the Progressive Party, committed to the principle of government by a self-controlled democracy expressing its will through representatives of the people, pledges," &c., "the policy of the short ballot, with responsibility to the people secured by the initiative, referendum, and recall." If Charles H. Matchett, the candidate of the Socialist-Labor Party, was not taken because of his progressive disposition, why should Theodore Roosevelt, who comes trailing after him sixteen years later, be accepted now?

"The supreme duty of the Nation is the conservation of human resources through an enlightened measure of social and industrial justice." Of course, it is; everybody will agree to that, not because the Bull Moose people said it at Chicago, but because it is an idea that has been always expressed or implied in every declaration of principles uttered by all the political parties of the country, and is no whit better or more conclusive than the declaration of the Socialist-Labor Party which "saw the light" sixteen years ago and resolved that "we may put an end to the barbarous struggle (the present class struggle) by the abolition of the classes, the restoration of the land and of all the means of production, transportation, and distribution to the people as a collective body, and the substitution of the co-operative commonwealth for the present state of planless production, industrial war, and social disorder, a commonwealth in which every worker shall have the free exercise and full benefit of his faculties, multiplied by all the modern factors of civilization."

The parallel runs through most of what has been said by the Bull Moose Convention and what was said by the Socialist-Labor Convention held sixteen years ago, with this difference, that the Socialists knew what they wanted and the Bull Moose do not knew except as they might be able by muddying the waters to estrange the people of the country from their proper political allegiance. The Socialist-Labor people demanded "an efficient employers' liability law," the right of the people "according to the referendum principle, to vote upon all measures of importance," the "equalization of women's wages," and "universal and equal right of suffrage, without regard to color, creed, or sex." These "demands" have all been worked into the plans of the Bull Moose Party as necessary "to build a new and nobler commonwealth," along with other even more radical and dangerous and desperate declarations deemed by the leaders of the herd as necessary to the attainment of power over a self-governing people.

The most fervid of the delegates attending the religious assembly at Chicago were the women delegates. Dr. Jane Addams does not like some of the positions Mr. Roosevelt has taken, but she led a procession around the hall because he comes nearer promising to do the things she has been working for all these years than any other leader who has manifested himself. This was rather hard on Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, who was a candidate for President twenty-eight years ago. She ran on an "equal rights platform," which declared, among other things, that "we shall recommend that the laws of the several States be so amended that women will be recognized as voters." Since that time there have been many who have preached the same doctrine, and all the time Mr. Roosevelt was holding office there was George Harvey preachifying that woman should vote. In 1884 the Greenback National Convention at Indianapolis demanded that "for the purpose of testing the sense of the people upon the subject, we are in favor of submitting to the people an amendment to the Constitution in favor of suffrage regardless of sex." How tame in comparison to this explicit declaration is the statement of Mr. Roosevelt that he is willing that the question should be settled by a referendum to the women of the several States and the pledge of the Bull Moose platform "to the task of securing equal suffrage to men and women alike." The National Party, which was led by the Rev. Charles E. Bentley, declared in its platform in 1896 that "no citizen should be denied the right to vote on account of sex."

There is absolutely nothing new in the Bull Moose platform. It was built for one man. Nothing went into it that he did not at the time approve, and nothing in it will hold him if, in the light of after-discovered evidence, he shall find that it will interfere with his designs upon the Government. Although "a thing of shreds and patches," it must not be regarded for a moment as any the less dangerous to the peace of the country and the cause of good government.

BOY SCOUT FIRE FIGHTERS.

Fire Chiefs Welcome Their Assistance and Offer Suggestions.

The Nation-wide plan of having Boy Scouts take up actively the work of preventing and fighting fires is receiving the co-operation of Fire Chiefs throughout the country. Letters have been received by James E. West, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America in New York, telling what the boys can do to prevent fires and what are the essential things a boy should do in case of a fire. Furthermore, the Fire Chiefs say they will be glad to give the Boy Scouts instructions whenever the boys visit Fire Headquarters.

The suggestions which the Fire Chiefs make are being compiled carefully by George H. Merritt, one of the Secretaries at the National headquarters, and it is planned to put out in the manual a special chapter on fire fighting. William Guerin, Acting Chief of the Bureau of Fire Prevention in this city, has made many helpful suggestions. He suggests that when the boys build a fire they make sure that it does not spread to the adjoining brush; that they never leave their camp until they have extinguished their fires; that they be careful about the throwing aside of lighted matches. He also suggests that the Boy Scouts send postal cards either to the Fire Department of the Bureau of Fire Prevention whenever they find an accumulation of papers or rubbish exposed to the public view or any place where it is likely to cause or promote fire.

> Be sure that your father, mother, and the rest of the family know the location of the nearest fire-alarm box.
> Go to the nearest fire station and learn how to give an alarm.
> In case of fire keep cool. Run to a box at once and pull the alarm. Opening the door rings the bell, but does not give the alarm. After the door is opened pull down the hook that you will find inside the box. This gives the alarm.
> Stand at the box until the engines arrive so that you may tell the firemen where the fire is.
>
> In case of a fire in your house where you have a telephone, call 'Fire Department Emergency.' Wait until the firm-alarm operator comes on the wire. He will ask you the street and number of your house and your telephone number. Don't leave the telephone until you have answered all his questions.
> Never pull a false alarm. Do all in your power to keep other scouts from pulling false alarms. Just as much damage and just as many accidents may occur in responding to false alarms as in responding to alarms of fire.

Letters also have been received from B. F. Dowell, Chief Engineer of the Fire Department of the Executive Board of Portland, Ore., and Henry R. Yates, Chief Engineer, Bureau of Fires, Schenectady, N. Y.

POLICE CRIME VIGILANTES

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What an admirable, yea, wonderful thing is legislation! How gratefully our excellent police force must have welcomed the law which enables them to "plant" a pistol when they so desire and thus "send up" for seven years a gangster, say, and by this means coerce him to do their bidding, even to the point of committing occassionally necessary private assassinations. At the same time this highly intelligent and beneficent law deprives the householder of the possession of a weapon of defense even in his own home.

What would become of our cherished and elaborate system of police graft which makes millionaires of generation after generation of "men higher up"? How could our gallant defenders of law and order secure the necessary collusion with the underworld were it not for the beneficent saloon and gambling legislation which is guilelessly intended by the dear public to regulate, yea, suppress those evils?

It is futile to look to more legislation for redress, but is it too much to hope that some time in the dim future the people of New York will be sufficiently aroused, say after a dozen or so more police murders have been perpetrated, (of course broken heads, police perjury, "plants," &c., are too commonplace to count,) to form for themselves an Anti-Police Crime Vigilance Committee with the aim of finally ridding the community once for all of the hideous incubus of legal lawlessness that does more to corrupt the moral atmosphere of this metropolis than all the other forces of evil put together?

HER BOOK.

I much admired her golden hair;
I talked of authors, Keats and Moore,
And Ibsen's wild, fantastic lore.
With rapt, adoring looks she heard,
And hung upon my every word,
To find a maid so erudite.

"Here I have met at last," I thought,
"The kindred soul I long have sought."
"What book of all," I asked, "do you Admire the most? Pray tell me true."
I waited for her lips to frame
Some famous work's familiar name,
My faith her answer sadly shook,
She promptly said, "The pocketbook."

Mrs. Pembroke Jones received a visit from Building Inspector Mortimer D. Sullivan, who inspected the pavilion erected for a series of dances inaugurated by Mrs. Jones Evidently the city official was satisfied, as the dance went on without interruption. CONANT FOR LAND CREDIT.

Returning from Conference, He Says We Might Learn from Europe.

Among the passengers arriving yesterday on the French liner Lorraine from Havre was Charles A. Conant, the writer on finance, who has been at The Hague as technical delegate for the United States to the international conference on bills of exchange. He said that a draft of a uniform law to be adopted by the Continental powers had been framed which would simplify and promote dealing in bills.

Mr. Conant added that he saw United States Ambassador Herrick in Paris working on a report on the system of agricultural credit in Europe, which had been called for by Secretary Knox.

"Europe is far ahead of us," said the banker, "both in centralized mortgage banks like the Credit Foncier, and in local mutual credit societies. I think that the time has come to take this up in the United States, but care should be exercised in framing a law in order to avoid the mistakes made in Europe when the system of agricultural credit was first introduced."

Capt. Murras said that the Lorraine had been laid up in dock for some time, and for two months was without a crew, owing to the strike. His new crew made the ship a few hours late, but as they are getting accustomed to the engines and boilers, he expected to make 19½ knots an hour going back. He crossed at 41.50 north and 47 west, but did not see any ice.

OLYMPIC GAMES' LESSON.

Pastor Says They Teach Us to Try to Do Our Best.

The Rev. H. P. Vaughn, who attended the Olympic Games in Stockholm, preached a sermon last night at the Labor Temple. He said that the motives that prompted the competitors to do their best were good motives to have in every-day life.

After reviewing the old Olympic Games and the desire to please the gods that prompted them, Mr. Vaughn said:

"I wish we had more superstition in our daily lives. If each of us firmly believed that there was a special god that held us as individuals responsible for dirty streets, the thoroughfares would be clean.

"At the first games in 1896 there were 14 contests, of which the United States took 9. Our athletes were much criticised as specialists. In 1909 our athletes took 17 out of 22 awards, and again the criticism was made. When in 1904 we took 21 out of 23, it was believed that the best form of Olympic games would be found if the United States competed among themselves, but the criticisms remained. In 1908 our percentage was a little lower, but still we took more than a majority.

"When the programme was in the making for the Stockholm games there were two events put on destined to throw out the specialists and to bring to the front the best all-round athletes. An Indian, a real American, took both of them."

The Rev. A. B. Simpson's Mission Pledge Record in Maine.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 11.—Thirty-five thousand dollars was pledged in twenty minutes for missionary purposes to the Rev. A. B. Simpson of New York at the annual missionary collection service of the Christian and Missionary Alliance here to-day. At a later meeting about $16,000 more was promised, bringing the total contributions for the day up to about $51,000, the same as last year. The pledges ranged from 50 cents to $3,000. Rain to-day made the attendance smaller than in former years.

COWS STUCK FAST IN TAR.

Four Men Have a Hard Time Setting Them Free.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 11.—The services of four men, working hard, were required to-day to get four cows out of a bed of tar in the yard of Richard Olinsky. The cows, which are Frank Bergen's, were driven home late last night, and turned loose in the large yard of Olinsky. In one corner of the yard Olinsky had barrels of tar melting in the sun. When the sun came out strong this morning the tar melted and flowed over the ground.

The cows grazing about kicked over one of the barrels, and in a few moments all four animals were held fast.

SHUBERTS TO OFFER FIFTY PRODUCTIONS

NEW BERNARD SHAW COMEDY

"Fanny's First Play" at Little Theatre—Grace George in Reinhardt Chinese Play.

The first complete announcement of the definite theatrical plans of the Shuberts was made yesterday. It shows that this firm will have the direction of more than fifty dramatic and musical companies this season. The list given does not include the projects of the managers allied with the Shuberts, nor a number of foreign and American pieces for which the Shuberts hold the rights, but which are not slated for early production.

One of the most important of the new dramatic productions to be offered directly under the Shubert management will be George Bernard Shaw's comedy, "Fanny's First Play," which will be presented by Granville Barker's London company that has been appearing at the Kingsway Theatre. Winthrop Ames has made an arrangement with the Shuberts whereby this piece will be the initial attraction at the Little Theatre, opening on Sept. 16. Granville Barker will come to America himself a little later in the season, to present, by arrangement with the Shuberts, a series of plays, including "The Voysey Inheritance," "Waste," and "Prunella; or, In a Dutch Garden." Shaw's "Major Barbara" probably also will be presented. Marguerite Clark will have the principal rôle in "Prunella."

The Shuberts will present Carl Rossler's comedy, "The Five Frankforters," under the title of "The Golden Lane," at one of their Broadway theatres. This production will be made in association with Great and Engelbach of London, who have been presenting the piece there. The version is by Capt. Basil Hood.

"The Master of the House," which is to open the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre on Aug. 22, is by Edgar James, who acknowledges his indebtedness to a German original. The piece has been staged by Julius Steger, who played the leading rôle in Chicago last season, but who will not appear in the present company. Two other plays, by American writers, that the Shuberts will produce during the early part of the season, are a drama by Constance Skinner, formerly dramatic editor of The Chicago American, and a farce by Edgar Franklin and Matthew White, Jr., dramatic editor of Munsey's Magazine. Miss Skinner's play is called "Birthright," and the farce is entitled "The Cinch." Another American play to be produced is Lucille La Verne's dramatization of Will Harben's novel, "Ann Boyd."

Only Two French Offerings.

Of the plays from German sources, those scheduled for early presentation are "Love and Hate," by Louis Lehar, a cousin of Franz Lehar, the composer; "Die Kinder," a satire by Hermann Behr, author of "The Concert"; "The Hawk," a thief play by Gustav Esman; "The Dirigible Airship," a farce by Emil Norini and Ernst Baum; "A Thousand Kronen," a farce by Alexander Engle and Julius Horst. The only drama from the French will be a version of "Les Petites," by Lucien Nepoty, and the only French comedy is "Aime des Femmes."

The first of the Shubert musical productions, outside of "The Passing Show of 1912," now running at the Winter Garden, will be "The Merry Countess," which is to open at the Casino Theatre on Aug. 20. Sam Bernard will soon begin rehearsals of a new musical comedy, the title of which has not been selected. The music of this piece is by Franz Lehar, and the American book is the joint work of Paul Potter and Edgar Smith. An elaborate production will be made of Offenbach's operetta, "Belle Helene," after the manner of Reinhardt's Munich production, "Liebe Augustine," which is now running in London under the title of "Princess Caprice," will be presented soon.

Among the strictly American musical productions will be "The Girl and the Miner," by Rida Johnson Young, with lyrics by Paul West and music by Jerome Kern; a new musical comedy that is being written by George Bronson-Howard, and Gertrude Hoffmann in a new revue.

Included in the foreign musical works will be "The Perfume Shop," by Cosmo Gordon Lennox, with music by Leslie Stuart; "Kean," a musical version of "The Royal Box," by Charles Cassmann and music by Alexander Stefanides; "Cousin Bobby," by Jacobson and Wagner, with music by Karl Millocker; "Madame Flirt," a farce, with music by Anselm Gotzl and book by Heinz Reichert, adapted by Leonard Liebling; "The Millionaire Bride," by A. M. Willner and E. Line, with music by Heinrich Berte; "The Astrologer," by Rudolph Schanzer, with music by Robert Leonard, and a new German musical piece called "Samples." A unique musical production will be the French revue called "Sherlock Holmes and Arsene Lupin," in which the famous detective and famous thief are the principal characters. The largest of the musical productions will be the Hippodrome entertainment of "Under Many Flags" and "Flowers of All Nations."

Big Productions with Brady.

In conjunction with William A. Brady the Shuberts will present "Turandot," Reinhardt's production of a Chinese play. Grace George will have the principal rôle in this. A dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" will be presented in association with Mr. Brady, and also "Shan Magan," an Irish play by George R. Jessop, and "The Drone," another Irish play. The Shuberts, Mr. Brady, and Arthur Collins of the Drury Lane, London, will present two Drury Lane productions at the Manhattan Opera House, the pantomime "Op o' Me Thumb," and the melodrama "The Whip." The Shuberts and Mr. Brady are also associated in the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company, which will be seen in two more Gilbert and Sullivan operas in the Spring.

In association with Winthrop Ames the Shuberts will present three plays, "June Madness," by Henry Kitchell Webster; "Romance," by Edward Sheldon, and "Hans Sonnenstosser's Ride to Hell," a modern German comedy, by Paul Apel. The Shuberts are also associated with the Authors' Producing Company in "The Ne'er Do Well" and also with "Within the Law."

E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe will continue under the Shubert direction this season, playing a Shakespearean repertoire. Among the old musical plays that will go on tour are "The Kiss Waltz," James T. Powers in "Two Little Brides," Gaby Deslys in "Vera Violetta," and "The Whirl of Society," with Al Jolson. "The Blue Bird" will be sent on tour again, and "Sumurun" will be presented in association with Winthrop Ames. The original "Bunty Pulls the Strings" company will remain at the Comedy Theatre for some time longer, but several other organizations will offer the Scotch play on tour. Several companies will also appear in "A Butterfly on the Wheel," with Lewis Waller in partnership with the Shuberts. Mr. Waller will begin his second American season at Daly's Theatre next month in a new play by Edward Knoblauch called "Discovering America."

Eucharistic Congress on Sept. 12.

From Sept. 12 to 15 the International Eucharistic Congress will be held in Vienna. This is a gathering of Catholics from all parts of the world. Special steamship and railroad rates have been arranged for this event, and the hotels of Vienna have decided to make a joint rate of eighty cents a day for rooms.

NEW BRADY HOUSE TO OPEN.

Debut of the 48th St. Theatre To-night with Broadhurst Farce.

William A Brady's new Forty-eighth Street Theatre will have its opening to-night. It has the distinction of having been completed late last Spring, several months before its opening date, and there will be no odor of fresh paint to form an atmosphere for the first night. The bill is a new farce, "Just Like John," by George Broadhurst and Mark Swan.

This theatre is in Forty-eighth Street, between Broadway and Sixth Avenue, and directly west of Mr. Brady's other theatre, the Playhouse. It has a street frontage of 95 feet and a depth of 98 feet. The style of architecture is Colonial, and the construction is of brick, with glazed white terra cotta trimmings, on a limestone base. The interior decorations are in old ivory, with gray tapestry panels and gray hangings, carpets, and seats. The lobby is of veined Italian marble, with doors of golden oak enameled in white. The seating capacity is 969.

Only light, humorous plays will be put on here. The auditorium is of the modern intimate type, bringing the spectators into close touch with the players. The proscenium opening is 36 feet in breadth and 31 feet high, and the stage is 32 feet deep, with a width of 71 feet to the side walls. There are ten dressing rooms, several of them with private baths. The stage is particularly well equipped for productions, and the electrical apparatus is largely new in design. Footlights will be used only on rare occasions, and the stage will be lighted from the top and sides.

Mr. Brady said that he found it advisable to have two theatres here to make sure of having an adequate New York outlet for his productions. He is able to avoid sharing profits with theatre owners who have not shared in the risk of productions, and may continue the run of any work in which he has faith, even if the public does not immediately recognize its worth. George Broadhurst and Philip M. Bartholomae, who are stockholders and Directors in the William A. Brady Theatre Company, that will control the new house, will have suites of offices in the building. Mr. Brady's offices will remain in the Playhouse.

OPERA COMIQUE FOR CENTURY

De Koven to Give Spring Season—Bessie Abott as Prima Donna.

Negotiations are under way between the De Koven Opera Company and Liebler & Co. for a Spring season of opera comique at the Century Theatre, following the run there of "The Daughter of Heaven." The season, under the personal direction of Reginald De Koven, will be given with the co-operation of the Metropolitan Opera House, and will consist of the production of new works and the revival of standard pieces.

The singing organization will be headed by Bessie Abott, who now has the prima donna rôle in the revival of "Robin Hood." Mr. De Koven is now in Europe completing arrangements for the American rights to several works of importance. Details of the plan for the Century Theatre will be completed after his return.

Speeches may be made and principles of the movement explained. The talks will be sandwiched between vaudeville acts.

Mrs. Mabel Livingston of the Woman's Suffrage Party has entire charge of all arrangements and assurances of support, according to Mr. Hammerstein, have been received from Mrs. Thomas Landen, Mary Shaw, Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, Mrs. James Lee Laidlaw, Mrs. Harriott Stanton Blatch, Miss Harriet May Mills, Mrs. Pierce Bailey, Max Eastman, Miss Leonora O'Reilly, and members of the Trades Union League. Last year Oscar Hammerstein gave the use of his London Opera House to the woman suffrage advocates.

ASK CLEMENCY FOR ITALIANS.

100 Telegrams Sent to Dix to Save Five Murderers Who Die To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 11.—More than 100 telegrams from all parts of the country were received here during the day addressed to Gov. Dix. They were from Italians who urged clemency for Cou, Mario, Calli, Zaua, and Ginsto, who, it is expected, will be executed early to-morrow morning in Sing Sing Prison for complicity in the murder of Mrs. Hall at Griffin's Corners, Westchester County, last Fall.

The Italian representative here, Signor Bachelli, was also importuned to use his influence with the Governor and thus "save the State the disgrace which the execution of these five Italians will bring on it."

Two weeks ago the condemned men asked for Executive clemency. Gov. Dix denied the appeal before he left for Connecticut to witness the army manoeuvres. Because of this denial came the flood of telegrams to-day. The Governor's private secretary, John A. Mason, and his Military Secretary, Reckford De Kay, are out of the city, so the messages will not be taken out of the envelopes until after the executions.

Gov. Dix is in Bridgeport, Conn., today, and will not return to New York State until to-morrow afternoon or evening. Justice Tompkins sentenced the Italians to be executed during the week of Jan. 15, but an appeal to the Court of Appeals acted as a stay. The highest court in June held that the prisoners were rightfully convicted and fixed the time for their execution.

THIS ZOO GUINEA PIG IS A SNAKE CHARMER

THEN CALLED ON THE LIZARD

Who Never Did Care for Him, but Again His Cold and Glittering Eye Saved Him.

A very fat guinea pig, a fluffy ball of white and brown, with snappy little beads of eyes that gaze out upon the world fearlessly, has furnished Raymond L. Ditmars, Curator of the Zoological Park in the Bronx, and Charley Snyder, his assistant, with another interesting puzzle, which they are still far from solving. The guinea pig was one of a fast increasing group which are from time to time killed off to replenish the snakes' bill of fare. The act which lifted this particular pig above the others of the family and brought it to the attention of Curator Ditmars and Snyder occurred when several days ago he managed to get into the inclosure of two hungry boa constrictors, and not only lived but so liked his experience that he sought further adventure in the retreat of the eight-foot monitor lizard.

The little animal was kept in a room at the north side of the reptile house, and back of the glass front inclosures containing the various members of the snake family. It was feeding time for certain of the big snakes, and Snyder, with a supply of fresh killed guinea pigs and rats, was in the narrow passageway back of the snake house feeding several Indian rattlers. The little brown and white pig, which had become accustomed to his quarters, wandered out into the space where the keeper was working. The little animal was very inquisitive, but Snyder gave him no more than passing attention. He unlatched the door back of the inclosure containing two boa constrictors, and, holding it slightly open, stooped down to pick up a rat. Then, noticing that the snakes were quiet, he changed his mind and closed the door to open that leading into the home of the Indian rattlers.

He gave the reptiles their allowance of food and stood for a few minutes watching them in the process of slowly swallowing their portions. Then he turned again to the door of the boa constrictor cage, and as he opened it he saw a sight which filled him with surprise. In some way the guinea pig had climbed up to the cage and gained entrance to it. It had probably slipped in in that moment of indecision when Snyder, holding the door partly open, had decided to feed the Indian snakes first.

A Sight for Hungry Snakes.

Both snakes were hungry, for it had been several days since they had been fed, and one of their especial delicacies is guinea pig. Yet neither has made any attempt to eat up the fearless visitor, and when Snyder caught sight of the little animal he was in a comfortable position alongside the tail of the longest snake, and that reptile was lazily stretched out across the bottom of the cage. If anything, Snyder said, it appeared to be much pleased with the unexpected visitor.

The other snake, half coiled, he said, was regarding the pig with interest mixed with amazement. The guinea pig appeared to be content, and was sitting, regarding the half-coiled snake with a steady stare. Snyder closed the door softly and called Mr. Ditmars to witness the strange scene.

When they got back and opened the door the reptiles and the pig had changed positions. The guinea pig had crossed the inclosure and was in front of and within half a foot of the amazed snake, watching with apparent curiosity its fangs darting in and out. The snake, which had been lying across the bottom of the cage, had moved over toward the door, watching for the coming of the keeper. It was paying no attention to the pig.

"I would never have believed this if I had not seen it," said Snyder as he turned to the Curator. At the sound of his voice the guinea pig, which had by that time outstared the snake, came over to the door, skipping across the one on the floor to get there. As it did so the snake regarded the pig with mild interest, but that was all.

Evidently stimulated by his adventure in the boa constrictor cage, the pig went hunting more the day after his visit to the snakes. This time it got into the sun room at the east end of the reptile house. In this room are the reptiles that are sick or in the process of shedding their skins.

When Mr. Ditmars heard of this second visitation, the pig was endeavoring to make friends with the big monitor lizard. Now, the lizard feeds upon eggs, which it bolts, shells and all, and it does not feel amiably disposed toward guinea pigs or rats.

When discovered the little animal was sitting comfortably in front of the lizard, regarding it with a steady look that was returned with interest by the reptile. When Ditmars approached the lizard ambled forward, changing its course so as to move around the guinea pig.

Its Hypnotic Eye.

The whole affair was so extraordinary that Mr. Ditmars and his assistant are giving much study to it. Why two hungry snakes should refuse such a tempting morsel as a brown and white guinea pig, and not only reject him as an appetite satisfier, but show a desire to make friends with him, is so contrary to the natural course of events that both men are seeking a reason. Snyder inclines to the belief that the guinea pig possesses what he calls a hypnotic eye and that in this the snakes recognized one of their own kind, and the lizard also found in the pig's stare an all-compelling force.

Mr. Ditmars said yesterday that it was the first time in all his experience in the handling of snakes that he had ever known of an animal snake charmer, and, like Snyder, he said that he believed it only because he had seen the exercise of the pig's power. So it is probable that the guinea pig will escape the fate for which it was raised and it will not be killed for snake food. Already Ditmars and Snyder call it the Snake Charmer, and the name is going to stick.

Three fine Texas rattlesnakes have been added to the collection in the reptile house. They are the three that broke out of their cage in a baggage car while on their way to this city and terrorized a brakeman, a conductor, and an express agent. When the train finally reached the New Jersey terminal Charley Snyder had to be sent for to recapture the snakes before the freight and express matter could be handled.

The reptiles were sent by express from Texas to a man in Brooklyn, and after their experience in the car the man to whom they were consigned did not want them.

A Suggestion for New York Merchants

There are over 100,000 Summer visitors drifting in and out of New York EVERY DAY.

Over 100,000 people from all parts of the world. Money to spend. Desire to spend it. Friends back home to be remembered.

Go into any good hotel and watch Mr. and Mrs. Visitor when they come down for breakfast. Mr. Visitor stops at the hotel newsstand and buys a newspaper. Every morning.

Mr. V. wants to know what's going on in politics, he wants to see how prices are holding—in short, he wants his news of the day.

Mrs. V. has come to this greatest of all shopping centres to do some PURCHASING. Unfamiliar with New York, she naturally seeks information regarding the stores where the best assortment and values may be had.

A canvass of the newsstands of New York's leading hotels shows that the sale of THE NEW YORK TIMES far exceeds that of any other metropolitan daily.

30 Years of Age

This is the age at which the average man has a clear idea of the line of work in which he is to specialize. He understands that the age of thirty is the age at which he must steady himself for the struggle to realize his ambitions, and to lay the foundation for a competency. It is more or less natural for him to be tempted by the promise of big returns on his money, but he will find that IT PAYS BEST IN THE LONG RUN to invest in those securities which combine a good margin of safety and a fair rate of income with a reasonable chance of growth in value.

If you in laying the foundation for your competency would like to have us point out those investments which we regard as suitable for such a purpose, we should be pleased to send you our Circular No. 808, "Conservative Investments."

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

Very good ground for the increasing confidence with which many look to the future was supplied in the Government crop report of last Friday. The promise which it contains is so far ahead of the expectations of a few months ago, when the damage to the Winter wheat crop was still fresh in the minds of the business and financial community, that it is not at all strange to find that many lines of business are feeling a greater impetus than could reasonably have been hoped for early in the year. Recovery from the depression of last year was, it is true, expected, but the prosperity which now seems to be shaping itself for the immediate future is greater than all but the most optimistic would have predicted. The hope that nothing will intervene to check growing trade was strengthened last week by the evidence which was supplied, that those who are seeking the suffrage of the people are prompted not to decry big business, but rather to emphasize the fact that the business of this great industrial Nation should be fostered and supported. It is true that some of the proposals which are coupled with these general views regarding the manner in which the business interests of the country should be treated are in themselves at variance with a policy of fair treatment of the agencies of production and commerce. Nevertheless these general expressions suggest that politicians see signs in the situation that those who would succeed in gaining popular support must adopt a friendly attitude toward business. Specifically, the stand taken by Mr. Wilson in his speech of acceptance last Wednesday served, for one thing, to set at rest the fear that he would advocate rough-shod methods in dealing with the tariff. He took no such stand, but, on the contrary, emphasized the need of dealing with this matter in a manner to cause the least possible disturbance. Excessive tariff rates cannot be altered without causing some temporary uneasiness to those most directly concerned, but the advantages to be gained in the long run will so greatly outweigh the temporary inconvenience that there is no reason why such a tariff revision as Mr. Wilson suggests should, viewing the business interests of the country as a whole, be regarded in any disturbing light.

Wall Street paid less attention to the third party convention in Chicago than was deserved by the incidents attending the organization of this new political factor, but even in that quarter there were signs that the profession of a friendly attitude toward business was regarded as desirable. On the other hand, the third party's platform and Mr. Roosevelt's explanation of his aims contained so much that would result in serious disturbance that it is only the part of prudence to caution the financial community lest the indifference which it was inclined to show last week toward the third party movement should pave the way for suddenly developed fears, some time between now and election, should it appear that the movement is a much stronger one than Wall Street was last week disposed to admit.

While there can be no question of the soundness of the grounds on which a hopeful view is being taken of the future, there is present the possibility that optimism in the stock market may lead to the too ready acceptance of every favorable suggestion. There were signs that some such disposition prevailed in some quarters last week, though the movement of the market as a whole was not sufficiently pronounced to suggest any wide extension of the speculative position. It does not appear that the volume of money employed in Stock Exchange loans has materially increased during the last week or two, and this is well, for it must be borne in mind that the money needs of this Fall promise to be unusually large. Business is expanding in many directions, and the size of the crops will call for much money in their marketing.

One of the noteworthy features of last week's price movements was the improvement in many railroad stocks, which, as a group, feared somewhat better than the industrials. It is clear, of course, that the very large crops which are now promised mean a great deal for the railways, particularly those directly serving the States of surplus grain production. Several important earnings statements were issued last week, and these made a varied showing, reflecting as they did some of the ill-effects of the handicaps in the matter of high operating expenses and high taxes with which so many railroads have been confronted. Thus the Southern and Union Pacific reports for June and for the twelve months of the fiscal year showed declines in net earnings greatly in excess of any which could be accounted for by the relatively small decrease which those systems reported in their gross earnings. But the experience of the railroads are differing considerably, as last week's statement show. These included the preliminary report of the Great Northern Railway for July, which showed a large increase in gross for that month, adding to the gains of the past fiscal year, in which the road's net as well as its gross showed rapid expansion. The experience of the most favored lines cannot, however, be cited against the needs of those less advantageously placed, and it cannot too often be emphasized that it behooves the public through its appointed agents to weigh most carefully any proposals which would put further tax on the already greatly diminished net income of the country's railway system as a whole. If the prediction of authorities on railroad affairs is borne out there is likely to be supplied this Fall a striking object lesson of the necessity of maintaining the facilities of the railroads up to a capacity adequate to meet the country's traffic needs. There is reason to expect a car shortage of large proportions this Fall, and the inconvenience to which the country would thereby be put should prove a strong argument against putting the railroads under handicaps which prevent their responding fully to their duty to the public. But if the railroads have a duty to the public, so, too, has the public toward the railroads, and while the management of these will not be able to escape all responsibility for a congestion of traffic should it occur, yet the larger share of the responsibility must rest upon those who have made it increasingly difficult for the railways to finance the purchase of new equipment, the improvement of existing lines, and the construction of new ones. If the attitude of the people at large toward the railways is becoming more friendly, as some think that it is, a serious car shortage this Fall might, as a practical argument, go far toward convincing the public of the need of a little less stringent handling of the country's railways.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE

LONDON IN CONFIDENT MOOD.

Political and Business Conditions Are Regarded as Promising.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Capel Court closed the week in an exultant mood, the brokers believing that the defeat of the Liberals at Manchester was calculated to inspire investors with confidence and bring them into the market.

Apart from political considerations, which are possibly overestimates, business conditions are excellent and the markets generally are ripe for a recovery.

The floating supply of stock at present quotations is small, and if the public begin to buy, the markets favored are bound to show a distinct advance.

PARIS BOURSE IS ACTIVE.

Firmness in All Departments Promises Well for the Future.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Despite the holiday time, which is generally characterized by slackness of business, the Bourse showed last week greater animation than for some time past.

The firmness, maintained in almost all departments, is regarded as evidence of fundamental strength, which is likely to bring about brisk business as soon as the holiday is over.

Rios were as usual a salient feature of the week, although the activity was almost equally divided among all departments.

BERLIN SPECULATION LIGHT.

Canadian Pacific Shows Marked Strength Among the Railroads.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—Turkey's domestic complications and fears of unfavorable developments in the local money situation discouraged speculation and induced considerable realizing on the Boerse last week. The close, nevertheless, was fairly firm.

Mining stock received more attention than any other. Canadian Pacific was the only railroad that showed greater strength. This was due to the July report and the American crop outlook, as well as to rumors of an impending increase of capital.

WATER FRONT DELAY PUT UP TO TOMKINS

Board of Estimate Committee Says He Insisted on His Own Improvement Plan.

ANOTHER READY AT THE TIME

But He Would Not Consider It, and Even Threatened to Resign if His Own Were Rejected.

The sub-committee of the Board of Estimate known as the Committee on Harbor Front Improvement, consisting of President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, Controller Prendergast, and Borough President McAneny, issued a statement yesterday denying that it is responsible for the delay in the completion of the plans for the improvement of the city's water front, which involve the elimination of the surface tracks of the New York Central Railway along Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, as well as the improvement of the South Brooklyn water front. The responsibility is placed entirely on Dock Commissionr Tomkins.

The committee says statements made editorially and at meetings of civic bodies have created the impression that it was dilatory in its work, while the Dock Commissioner has at all times pressed these improvements for consideration and action. Quite the contrary is the case, says the committee. In the first place, it says, the railway improvement involves the consideration of the treatment of the entire line and layout of the New York Central Railroad along the west side of the city and of the freight terminal facilities of all railroads carrying freight to and from Manhattan.

The record shows, says the committee, that the matter was first taken up, not upon the motion of the Dock Commissioner, but by resolution of the Board of Estimate, on July 17, 1910, and that from that time to the present the committee has been engaged in a constant study of the question. The committee goes on to say:

> It has, through its engineers and technical advisers, prepered and presented to the Board of Estimate an elaborate plan for the elimination of the west side nuisance which, in the opinion of the committee and in the opinion of many prominent engineers, presented a satisfactory solution of the question. Had this pain been adopted by the Department of Docks, the question of the west side nuisance south of Sixtieth Street might now be settled.
>
> While the committee had this matter under consideration, the Dock Commissioner submitted a different plan for the elimination of the same nuisance which, while it doubtless had many merits, was not, in the opinion of the committee, the best solution of this question. The Dock Commissioner then and since, however, took the position that if his plan were not accepted he could give his consent to no other, and would consider a rejection of his plan a reason for his resignation from office.
> This might have occasioned a deadlock had not the committee been unwilling to take a like absurd position with regard to the plan presented by it. Since that time it has been engaged in a study of both plans with a view to the ultimate adoption of whatever may be good in each. It has further been in constant conference with the New York Central Railroad with a view to a settlement of the entire west side question, from the Spuyten Duyvil Creek to the Battery, and the committee will be prepared to submit to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in September an interim and partial report which will present a settlement of this question from Spuyten Duyvil Creek to the Sixtieth Street yards. The committee believes that it will be prepared before the end of the year to present a final report covering the remainder of the west side from Sixtieth Street to the Battery.

Regarding the South Brooklyn water front improvement, the committee says the matter was sent to it only this Spring by resolution of the Board of Estimate; that since then it has been in frequent conference with the Dock Commissioner and with private interests involved; that it will present a report at the first meeting of the Board of Estimate in September which will start the contemplated improvement, and that some time in the early Fall it will be prepared to submit a final report covering the whole subject. The committee then says:

> In considering the expedition of these plans, it should be emphasized that while the law gives the Dock Commissioner the opportunity to present the Board of Estimate a physical plan for the improvement of the South Brooklyn water front, which plan the Board of Estimate under the law may then authorize the Dock Commissioner to adopt, he has not done so, but has waited for the Committee of the Board of Estimate to make a formal request upon him to submit such a plan. While the committee has seen no reason for initiating a matter of this kind that the Commissioner can initiate on his own motion at any time, it will, for the purpose of forwarding the improvement, present a resolution to the Board of Estimate at the meeting of Sept. 19, requesting the Dock Commissioner to prepare and present such physical plan for adoption.

One important point, says the committee, seems to have been lost sight of, and that is that the Board of Estimate cannot act in adopting final plans for any of the extensive improvements contemplated until the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has exempted the present dock bonds from the constitutional debt limit.

"The record of the application for this exemption," says the committee, "shows initiative and dispatch on the part of the Board of Estimate and the Controller, but apparent dilatoriness and procrastination on the part of other officials involved in the application."

The committee also points out that the Dock Commissioner, in addressing the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, stated that "he was in no hurry to have these bonds exempted for fear that the funds realized might be used for rapid transit purposes instead of dock improvements, and therefore the application was not pushed." The committee then states that the Corporation Stock Committee of the Board of Estimate, made up of the same members as the Harbor Improvement Committee, long ago determined and informed the Dock Commissioner "that of the $75,000,000 approximately of bonds to be exempted $50,000,000 would be reserved exclusively for docks, an amount which the Dock Commissioner has stated to the committee will be sufficient. Responsibility for the delay must rest with those who fear to have the bonds exempted."

The committee states finally that it would appear that the Board of Estimate will be prepared to submit complete plans for the improvements "long before the funds necessary to their execution will be released by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court."

BUSH'S HARBOR PLAN.

Would Have a Union Freight Terminal on Bayonne Waterfront.

Irving T. Bush, President of the Bush Terminal Company, before sailing for Europe on Saturday, told about his plan for the establishment of a union clearing terminal for freight of all railroads on the Bayonne water front. To this terminal freight cars would be taken on floats from the various private terminals and new ones yet to be established all around the harbor and assembled for the various railroads at Bayonne and sent on their way from there. Tracks of one of the present trunk lines would be used in conveying the cars across Newark Bay, and in the country back of Newark a new connecting railroad would be constructed to some point on the West Shore Railroad, connecting with all the other lines on the way. Trains of cars brought from many points would be made up at the Bayonne terminal and sent over this road to the various lines for which they are destined.

The great advantage of this plan, Mr. Bush points out, is that floats may be sent from any of the present private terminals or from the new ones to be established, loaded with cars for all the various railroads. At present a terminal can send out a float loaded with cars of only one line, and so the harbor is filled with partly loaded floats, causing a loss of money to the shipper and consumer alike, and also a loss of time while the float is held back for the arrival of more cars.

Under the new plan, Mr. Bush says, small union terminals may be established at points wherever convenient all over the harbor. Wherever there is enough manufacturing going on to keep a shipping clerk busy, a terminal may be established and floats dispatched to Bayonne bearing cars for all the railroad lines. Mr. Bush predicts that the adoption of this system will encourage the establishment of manufactures in all the boroughs of the city and extend the business of the city instead of continuing the present congestion.

"When, under present conditions, an independent terminal is established, it can be self-supporting only when there is a volume of business sufficient for the maintenance of a separate float service to each road," says Mr. Bush. "This manifestly makes it impossible to start such terminals except in developed sections of the port. Under my plan the work of floating from existing private terminals will be greatly economized by the use of large floats on which cars for all roads can be loaded indiscriminately. The separation of the cars for the different roads will not take place until after the floating is performed. It is apparent that if this plan is adopted it will be possible to give Staten Island and other outlying parts of the harbor, through the establishment of small union terminals, freight facilities equal to those of Manhattan.

"It is obvious that at any point at which freight from all the proposed union terminals is gathered together it may be loaded for destination in through cars. The cars then may proceed on their journey by way of the junction points of the connecting railway—through the country back of Newark to a point on the West Shore Railroad—and the various railroads. Each Brooklyn terminal now handles a large volume of less-than-carload freight, but not enough to load in through cars except in cases where the destinations are important points. At any point at which these shipments and those from the present outlying terminals may be gathered together there will be a volume sufficient to insure through loading.

The parties in interest in this plan are three. Two of them are the communities of New York and neighboring New Jersey. The third is the railroads as a group. Each will ask how it will be benefited and why it should favor the plan. The advantage to New York and New Jersey is perfectly apparent. It will place all parts of New York upon a shipping equality limited only by geographical conditions.

"The operation of this plan will be a real and definite beginning in overcoming industrial New York's greatest handicap. It will lessen in great measure the west side's congestion, and is likely to point a way for its final relief, for it can be made to serve the east side, and thus subtract its traffic from the west side congestion. It will aid Harlem, Queens, Brooklyn, and Richmond. It will make it possible for each borough to accommodate such industries as its advantages attract.

"New Jersey will benefit greatly by it. It will give convenient terminals and junctions where final loading for destination may be done, and will connect these points with an industrial railroad which will open industrial communities and opportunities far beyond any which now exist. It will connect New Jersey's industries with every railroad, on one hand, and with the harbor of New York, through the Bayonne terminal, on the other."

UPON request we shall be glad to submit offerings of readily marketable railroad or industrial bonds suitable for trust funds or those of the unrestricted investor.

Inquiries indicating the yield and class of investment desired will facilitate a prompt reply.

RUBBER INACTIVE BUT FIRM.

Prices Held Up Last Week, Though Trading Was Generally Limited.

Trading was generally limited in the New York crude rubber market last week, and while from all accounts there was no falling off in the manufacturing activities of consumers, little disposition was shown by them to buy more than required by urgent needs. The real feature of the week in this market was the way prices held up under the lack of demand on the part of buyers. As far as could be learned, no closing quotations showed declines from opening levels, while the closing minimum price for up-river fine showed an advance of 1 cent per pound over opening figures. There was apparently a lack of selling pressure throughout the week, sellers for hold their stock indefinitely rather than the most part having appeared willing to offer concessions to stimulate buying. From the way consumers purchased required supplies it was evident, according to a prominent trader, that they were holding off purposely in the hope that continued inaction would soften prices. This contention being true, it is evident from closing quotations that they played a losing game. There was a small amount of business of a jobbing nature done during the week, and the aggregate volume of rubber taken by consumers reached fair proportions despite the generally limited size of individual sales. The firmer tone developed in London near the close of the week was reflected in the slightly added strength in this market indicated above.

There was little feature to the week in the foreign markets, no auctions having been held as far as could be ascertained, and trading having been generally as limited as in this market. With the regular fortnightly auction in London due on Tuesday, there will, in all probability, be more activity in evidence in markets on both sides of the Atlantic in the present week.

BUSINESS WORLD, MARKETS AND TRADE

WHEAT STILL SINKS WITH BRIEF RETARD

OATS LOW, CORN FLUCTUATES

Cotton Falls as Needed Rains Keep On—Great Fruit Yields Meet Reports of Rich Pasturage.

The wheat market made new low levels for the season during the week, rallied a little, but on Saturday was at about the previous low level as a result of the Government crop estimate. The weather conditions were a little unsettled part of the week in the American Northwest, creating a little apprehension, but with improvement in the weather later this apprehension disappeared. Conditions were favorable in Canada. In the Central West there were heavy rains which it was claimed would interfere with threshing to some extent. Movement of wheat in the Southwest was heavy. The increase in the visible supply at the opening of the week was small notwithstanding the heavy movement of the preceding week. Shipments into distribution have been active, and there was some question whether the active distribution of wheat would not have material influence on the situation. The level of prices which has been established has appealed apparently to large flour buyers. There have been large transactions during the week, and a large amount was reported under negotiation at the close. Advices from Minneapolis were of heavy sales, one mill alone selling 250,000 barrels during the week, and buyers in a number of cases were reported to have covered their requirements from four to six months ahead. This heavy buying will naturally make for a large milling output and steady consumption of the wheat.

The Government report which came at the close Friday was the most important factor of the week. This report, while not quite up to some of the private estimates, seemed to be about in line with trade ideas. A good many insist, however, that the hard Winter wheat crop was understated. In Kansas alone the State Secretary estimates the crop at 97,000,000 bushels, compared with the Government estimate of 85,770,000 bushels. The Government estimate for the four States, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas, made the outturn 168,000,000 bushels, compared with 105,000,000 bushels last year, an increase of 63,000,000 bushels in the hard Winter wheat crop.

In the soft Winter wheat States from Missouri eastward the crop this year is placed at 67,000,000 bushels, against 177,000,000 bushels last year, a decrease of 110,000,000 bushels. The three States of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois have an aggregate this year of only 29,000,000 bushels, against 112,000,000 bushels last year. These States will have to be very large buyers of wheat from outside the State limits, which will make a large demand on hard Winter wheats and on Spring wheats to supply the domestic requirements in those States. In Michigan the crop is only 7,000,000 bushels, against 18,000,000 bushels last year.

In the Northwest the crop was figured at 19,000,000 bushels more than last month, and 100,000,000 bushels more than last year. Some of the private estimates have been as high as 350,000,000 bushels of Spring wheat. It is possible that as threshing advances the yields in the Northwest will confirm these crop ideas.

Accepting the Government figures as given at 680,000,000 bushels for the total crop, with the carryover estimated at 77,000,000 bushels, it gives a grand aggregate supply for the season of 757,000,000 bushels, compared with 707,000,000 bushels last year. Last year's crop figures, however, were evidently understated, as the distribution shows that more wheat was used up, exported and carried over into this year's crop, than was produced, according to the Government figures. The requirements this year will be increased by the growth of the population, and owing to the extremely persistent and conservative buying on the part of consumers the last six months, supplies of wheat and flour in the hands of distributors are believed to have been greatly depleted. The visible supply of domestic wheat alone is about 21,000,000 bushels less than last year, which is an important factor in the immediate supplies of wheat for distribution. The quality of the wheat, particularly of the hard wheat and the Spring wheat, is very fine this year, and, according to all reports, the milling qualities are excellent.

European advices indicate an outturn of the crop outside of the United States and Canada slightly under last year, but the conditions for harvest have been somewhat unsatisfactory, and there has been urgent demand for good dry wheat for mixing. The quality of the Argentine and Australian wheat is rather inferior, and the demand for the high quality American wheat may be very good right through the season on account of its quality and the need for such wheat for mixing purposes. The export demand last week was somewhat disappointing, but this has been partly due to an advance in ocean freights. During the last two or three weeks ocean freights have advanced equal to 2 or 3 cents a bushel, and this advance has not been fully absorbed either by an advance abroad or decline here.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—The fluctuations in September corn last week were erratic, due to the oversold condition of the market. Speculative operators who had sold September on account of the price, owing to the favorable appearance of the new crop, found that cash corn did not weaken, and these speculative sellers were forced to come in at a sharp advance in prices. Cash corn maintained its level, and has ranged from 4 to 7 cents over the September delivery, according to the grade. The new-crop months have been an entirely different proposition. With the development of general rains throughout the entire corn country, East, West, South, and North, all apprehension as to the moisture supply disappeared, and the question now is simply of a late Fall, in order to mature the crop. The Government report, which was issued Friday night, showed a little loss in condition for the month, but with thirty days less of allowance for depreciation, the total crop was figured the same as the previous month. As the rains which have covered the country have come since Aug. 1, this condition was not shown in the Government statement, and therefore must be taken into consideration in estimates of the probable outturn. The Government indications of 2,811,000,000 bushels are 280,000,000 bushels more than last year. This is not the only factor, however, to be considered. With the present promise of 2,811,000,000 bushels and the rains since Aug. 1, there is possibility of a record corn crop this year.

The corn crop cannot be judged on its own basis as to possible values, but the crop of other feedstuffs must be taken into consideration. The oats crop is a record one, with the total indications 285,000,000 bushels more than last year. The barley crop is a record one, with the outturn 42,000,000 bushels more than last year. This makes a grand aggregate increase in these feeding grains of 607,000,000 bushels, compared with last year. The hay crop is given at 18,000,000 tons more than the revised figures for last year. The yield per acre is .35 ton more than a year ago, while the acreage is given at slightly over 6,000,000 acres more than reported last year. The recent rains, however, have brought another factor into consideration, and that is the question of late Summer and Fall pasturage, also the second crop of hay and rough forage crop supplies. This means a very great deal in the conservation of grain in feeding questions, and will naturally reduce the consumption of grain on the farm very materially in feeding operations.

OATS.—New low record prices were made for oats last week with quotations down to 30⅛c for Chicago September, or within about 1 cent a bushel of the extreme low made as a result of the big crop of two years ago. The extreme low, however, two years ago, was made in the Winter. From the low point the market recovered nearly 2c a bushel, largely due to active covering of shorts owing to the general rains through the Central West and Northwest, which it was feared would not only delay thrashing in the Central West, but interfere with harvesting in the Northwest. The Government crop report was about in line with expectation, showing a record promise. As most of the oats are cut by this time the September report of condition is rather a general report of harvest condition and does not mean much as a question of growth. With the very favorable promise for other feed grains the immense hay crop, the improvement in pasturage conditions as a result of the rains, the situation as to feed stuff supplies this year, is an extraordinary one. It is evident that the total supply of all feedstuffs is of record proportions, while the question as to the demand is another factor. With the reduction in the supplies of cattle and the reported decrease in the supplies of other livestock the requirements for feedstuffs have by no means kept up with the actual gains in the total crop outturns of feedstuffs this year compared with last.

PROVISIONS.—The interest in hog products has been a very quiet one during the week. The fluctuations have been narrow and the market has again lacked tendency. The marketing of hogs has been a little larger, although not enough so to be a serious influence adversely. Distribution of product continues slow, and the large stocks of lard at Chicago are not moving into distribution. The Government report on the feedstuffs crops was a very favorable one, and, with the rains since July 1, confirmed the ideas of a very large feedstuffs supply this year and much lower prices for feedstuffs than last year. While it takes considerable time to increase the supply of cattle, the increase in the supply of other livestock is more quickly obtained, and there will be every inducement in the low prices for feedstuffs and the high prices for livestock to increase the supply of food animals for market as rapidly as possible. The marketing of hogs continues about 10 per cent. less than last year. The supply of cattle, however, is disappointingly light, and quotations the last week have been at record figures, choice cattle selling at slightly over 10c at Chicago. The high prices for cattle and beef naturally mean an increase in demand on lower-priced animal foods, which should bring a larger ultimate demand for hog products.

COTTON.

The cotton market Saturday closed within a few points of the extreme low of the movement and at about 140 points, or $7 a bale under the high quotation made two weeks ago. The great advance in cotton which carried the market up from 11¼ to 13¼c was influenced very largely by weather conditions as well as the technical position. The last half cent advance was evidently due to a stampede of shorts and heavy covering by interests which had fought the advance. The break in the drought did not occur until a day or two after the high was made, but since then the weather conditions have made for steady betterment of the crop outlook. In some sections the rains have been excessive, particularly in Northwestern Louisiana, where there was over five inches of rain reported Satuday morning and there have been plenty of heavy rains in the East Gulf States. Aside, however, from some areas in Texas the entire belt has received ample moisture. It is probably a safe statement that there is barely one-eighth of the area in which the crop is suffering for lack of rain.

This naturally means a very material change in the prospects for the crop. Based on the Government report of condition July 25, and on previous averages of condition and yield, the Government report was figured as pointing to about 12,500,000 bales. With the relief afforded by the rains, there is ground for a radical change in the crop idea, and that is brought out clearly by the drop of 140 points in the market. There is possibility now, not of less than an average yield per acre, but of considerably more than an average yield, and some extremists were expressing opinion that the outturn might be very little short per acre of the results obtained last year. Such a result would mean a crop of approximately 14,000,000 bales, and possibly 14,500,000 bales. The lateness of the crop, however, makes it clear that weather conditions must be of the best during the Fall and a killing frost no earlier than the average, but if anything later than the average, in order to make such a result.

The movement of new cotton is so far comparatively light. Receipts, however, are expected to increase pretty steadily, but the August movement is bound to be small. The prices for spot cotton at the South are held firmly, and the basis is a high one. The movement of old cotton is small. The into-sight for the past week was only 23,761 bales. The into-sight for the season has been 15,510,000 bales, against 11,785,000 bales last year. The Census Bureau report of the total crop was 16,109,000 bales, so that there are still about 600,000 bales of cotton at the South left over from the production of last year. This is a supply to be taken into consideration in the calculations on the requirements and supplies for the coming year. The total takings of American cotton by spinners so far this year have been 14,731,000 bales, against 11,840,000 bales a year ago. The takings so far this season have been 602,000 bales less than the into-sight, which, with the amount of cotton at the South not yet brought forward, makes a total supply to be drawn upon of 1,200,000 bales more than last year. The amount of cotton actually used up is somewhat uncertain. At the beginning of the season European spinners' stock were 230,000 bales more than last year. On July 1 spinners' stock in Europe was 680,000 bales more, showing that of the spinners' takings in Europe so far this year 450,000 bales have gone to increase the stocks of cotton on hand. This is also an item to be added to the total available cotton to be taken into consideration in the question of supplies for the coming year. If this same condition has prevailed on this side it would further add to the visible and invisible available supply.

To what extent the enormous amount of cotton which has been used up has replenished stocks and created normal conditions as to stocks of goods, the situation is far from clear. It is certain, however, that the demand for goods has been very persistent this Summer, and one of the very important factors in the big bull movement of cotton was the large amount of orders which the mills have booked both in Europe and America for Fall delivery of goods. Until the last reaction in cotton came there seemed to be a steady and persistent demand for goods at steadily advancing prices. If this demand meant that the immense output of the last year had been used up and the trade was in the market for fresh supplies, it would show an immensity of demand which would mean the necessity for an immense cotton crop again to fill the requirements.

With a supply of old cotton at the South of approximately 600,000 bales between the total crop last year and the amount brought into sight, an excess of the visible over last year of nearly 700,000 bales and with European spinners' stocks about 450,000 bales more than last year, it would give a total of about 1,700,000 bales increase in the probable carry-over of old cotton to be added to this year's crop. A crop of 13,000,000 bales of American cotton with this increase in carryover would give apparently as great a supply of American cotton as the actual consumption of the past year.

General trade conditions are very encouraging. The last Government report on the grain crops was indicative of ample supplies of food and feed stuffs. The combined wheat, rye, and potato crop is practically a record one, while the crop of feed stuffs is a record one, and conditions are very favorable for the second crop of hay and Fall pasturage conditions. The reports on the vegetable crops are good and the fruit crop gives promise of being heavy. Such results can only make for good business, and good business means active distribution of cotton.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The cottonseed oil market was without interest the early part of the week, becoming depressed late, with active liquidation in the old crop months. The change in attitude was evidently due to the growing confidence in the new seed crop. The spot situation in old oil has been a very slow one for weeks past, and the demand for distribution has in no wise kept pace with the believed supplies on hand. Refining interests were credited with holding a good deal of old oil against probable demand during the balance of the old crop months. The demand which was expected failed to materialize. Domestic distribution has been slow, and foreign demand has been disappointingly light, not only on old oil but for the new crop oil. Last year at this time Europe was a free buyer of new crop oil, which has not been the case excepting in a very limited way this year. Another factor of considerable importance has been a very disappointing demand for fish packing, owing to the small run of fish. As long as the dry weather kept up in the Southwest and the wet weather in the East apprehension of a small crop of cotton gave confidence to speculative holders of old crop oil, and also to the holders against actual distribution. With the very material change in cotton crop prospects and the changed ideas regarding the cotton crop, reflected in a decline of nearly 1½c a pound in cotton in less than two weeks, a decided change in ideas as to the probable seed crop developed, and speculative holdings of old crop oil came on the market, resulting in a quick break, while the new crop months were lower, in anticipation of increased offerings of new crude oil by the South.

CANNED GOODS MART DULL.

Little Immediate Demand for Any of the Staple Lines.

The New York canned goods market was generally quiet last week, there having been little immediate demand for any of the staple lines. The usual midsummer dullness reduced trading in canned vegetables to a minimum, peas alone having shown anything that resembled active movement in this end of the market. Offerings of low-priced peas were for the most part below the quality wanted by buyers, but suitable brands selling around $1 were taken as freely as they could be obtained. The medium and better grades were generally in small demand, but retained their values because available supplies were limited. Corn, both spot and future, did not receive a great deal of attention from buyers. Futures held their strength, however, despite the dullness. Spot tomatos met a moderate call, but prices were easy, from all accounts because of the proximity of the Maryland canning season. There was little demand for futures, but offerings were generally small, and the market retained a firm undertone.

Trading in canned fruits was seasonably slow, the demand for spot goods having been reported very light. The call for futures was rather spotted, a good part of the buyers having evinced a tendency to hold off pending the expected downward revision of prices. Reports from the Pacific Coast received in the market during the week indicated packers to be well sold up for this year, several of them having been forced to withdraw one or more lines as a result.

The demand for the various lines of canned fish reflected the laxness of the rest of the market. Trading in domestic sardines was disturbed somewhat by the attempts of some factors to dispose of the balance of certain grades of last year's pack at prices below those asked for the current year's stock. Salmon was in fair demand. According to advices from the Northwest, opening prices on new-pack salmon will be named late this year, owing to the delay caused by recent labor troubles.

ROAD'S HUGE PROFITS CUT.

Railway Into California Oil Field Paid Big Dividends on Watered Stock.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 11—In its best days the Southern Pacific never enjoyed larger profits anywhere than it has had from a little line it is operating in the oil fields around Bakersfield in conjunction with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé. Attention to this road has been called by an investigation by the State Railroad Commission, which has resulted in a cut in rates on it of from 10 to 50 per cent. Even with this concession to shippers it is expected to return dividends that would make any investor happy.

The little road is known as the Sunset Line. It runs from Bakersfield through the west side oil fields to Shale, and shares traffic with a branch of the Southern Pacific which runs through another part of the oil field. In order to prevent troublesome competition the two big systems united in the ownership of this line, and, being free from rivalry, they proceeded to put up rates. There has been a great volume of traffic, easy to handle, and earnings have fairly poured in.

With the reform administration in power in California, shippers who believe that too much has been exacted appealed for relief. The Railroad Commission found that the little concern has paid a 60 per cent. dividend on $500,000 capital stock in 1910 and had followed this with a 100 per cent. dividend the next year, with earnings so far in 1812 that promised similar results. Further than this, it was discovered that huge quantities of water had been dumped into the capital. The road had been built easily and had practically paid for itself as it went along. On this point the State Board says:

"It must be remembered that of the $500,000 capital stock on which the dividends were paid $470,000 was issued for right of way, which a witness testified cost approximately $4,000 and cost this company nothing."

It was found that the McKittrick branch of the Southern Pacific had had earnings not very much smaller, and so the extensive cuts in rates were ordered on it also.

COTTON GOODS EXPORTS UP.

Year's Trade Amounted to 476,778,499 Yards, Valued at $31,388,998.

Records compiled by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor show the total yardage of cotton goods exported from the United States in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1912, to have been 476,778,499, valued at $31,388,998. Compared with similar shipments in 1911 and 1910, the 1912 figures plainly show the extent to which American export trade in this merchandise has developed in the last few years.

Figuring the gain over the exports of 1910 at approximately 167,000,000 yards, only 7 per cent. of it was contributed by our trade with China, conceded to be by far the heaviest buyer of American cottons. This small percenetage may be attributed principally, it is said, to two things—the increased amount of trade other countries are obtaining with China and the internal disturbances that have retarded trading in the Chinese markets for a considerable period. Philippine trade, the second largest in 1912, contributed roughly 18 per cent of the above gain.

Exports to Canada have nearly doubled since 1910, the total yardage forwarded into that country in 1912 having been close to 19,300,000. Central American business has also nearly doubled, while Cuban imports have nearly tripled.

The gain of 1912 imports into Cuba over those of 1911 was just a shade lower than the entire importation of 1910. Practically without exception the exports from this country in the year just ended show a substantial gain over those of both 1911 and 1910, the gain over the latter year's shipments in many instances having been surprisingly large.

CHECK ON FAVORING BANKS.

MacVeagh Corrects Discrimination In Depositing Government Funds.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Government discrimination in designating National banks as depositaries for Federal funds is gradually being corrected under a change of policy by Secretary MacVeagh, who is increasing the number of depositaries without augmenting the aggregate of the Government's deposits.

This is being done especially in small cities. In towns with only two banks the Secretary is dividing the Government deposits between them to avoid discrimination. In the large cities the advantages enjoyed by the depositaries are regarded as negligible.

Secretary MacVeagh has also just designated as Government depositaries a large number of non-depositary banks with which the Department of Justice and the Post Office Department have been depositing funds for many years. It was only recently discovered by the Attorney General and Postmaster General that non-depositary banks were being used by their departments.

BACHE PROTEST DISMISSED.

Mrs. Bache Must Pay Duty as a Resident.

A protest filed by Jules S. Bache, the banker, before the Board of United States General Appraisers has been decided against him. Mr. Bache maintains a residence, in New York, but for some years past his wife, Florence Bache, has spent most of her time in Europe, having an apartment at 38 Avenue Marcerue, Paris, where she has her children in school. The testimony relates that she and her husband live amicably, that she makes frequent trips to the United States and that then she resides with her husband.

When Mrs. Bache arrived here from Europe on Nov. 8, 1910, she offered to make a baggage declaration as a nonresident. This was refused by the customs officials and her personal affects were assessed. The day following Mr. Bache wrote to the Secretary of the Treasury protesting against the assessment of duty on his wife's personal effects and on Feb. 7, 1911, this letter was forwardede by the Chief of the Division of Customs to the Collector at this port. If this letter was to be construed as a protest it was not received until almost three months after the arrival of Mrs. Bache, and as the board's jurisdiction is entirely statutory in that any one dissatisfied with the action of the collector must give notice within fifteen days after liquidation of duties, the protest was dismissed.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Newcomer Not Entitled to $100 Free of Duty.

Tom Chan, who hails from Hong Kong, arrived in the United States recently, bringing with him two trunks, containing wearing apparel and other personal effects, on which duty was assessed under the provisions of the Tariff law of 1909. As he intends to make his home in this country he contended that he was entitled to $100 worth of merchandise free of duty under the provisions of Paragraph 709. As Mr. Chan was not a returning resident of the United States the board ruled that he was not entitled to the benefit of the $100 provision, but as to whether he was entitled to free entry of part of the merchandise, the limitations of the protest without testimony precluded any return, but that the collector's decision was correct.

Pieces of broom corn, about four feet long and tied together in bundles, were assessed for duty as "non-enumerated manufactured articles" and were claimed to be entitled to free admission as "vegetable substances, crude or unmanufactured." The appraiser reported that the classification was made on the authority of previous ruling of the board that birch canoes were dutiable as "non-enumerated manufactured articles." Although Judge Hay was unable to appreciate an analogy between the two decisions, he called attention to other conclusions reached by the board and sustained the protest.

ROADS ORDER HEAVIER RAILS.

Made Necessary by Big Engines—Car Shortage Predicted.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 11.—Increase of railroad equipment is forcing operating companies to adopt rails of a heavier type than formerly. The Pennsylvania is making preparations along these lines. Much new track will be laid this year, as the present rails have been found too light to withstand the wear and tear of the larger locomotives and heavier trains now in use.

Particular complaint is made about the effect of the rolling stock on the curves of the mountain sections since the installation of the new six-driver type of locomotives. These engines, weighing 300,000 pounds, exert such pressure that spikes are loosened.

There will be a shortage of at least 79,000 cars throughout the country in October, according to railroad men, and they are urging manufacturers to get as many shipments as possible out of the way before the crop movement begins.

WHOLESALE PRICE CHANGES.

Forty-five Items Show Advances and Nineteen a Decline.

Dun's list of minimum wholesale prices quoted in the New York and nearby markets last week showed a large number of fluctuations from levels of the previous week. Sixty-four commodities showed a variation, forty-five having advanced and nineteen declined. Fifteen of the advances tend to bear out the belief that the cost of living is increasing, ten of them having been noted in foodstuffs and five in wearing apparel. Seven of the declines affected foodstuffs.

Of the individual markets, hides showed the greatest strength, with eight advances and no declines. Cotton goods reflected this strength. The metal market showed eight advances, but they were offset to some extent by the four declines shown. Drugs and chemicals showed the greatest individual weakness, five recessions from former quotations having been indicated. The remainder of the changes were scattered.

Southern Growers Arrange with Germans for Financing Crop.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 11.—Announcement has been made by George Dole Wadley, President of the Southern States Cotton Corporation, that after an all-day conference of Directors from Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, and Georgia, he will leave for Germany on Wednesday to close a deal looking to the financing of the entire cotton crop of the South up to $300,000,000.

A special representative of a big German firm of cotton factors and bankers has investigated thoroughly the condition of the crop in this country, and as a result of his report Mr. Wadley has been requested to visit Germany at once. The conference was immediately called to determine the position to be taken when he arrives there.

The Directors of the corporation further announce that when their project is financed, fifteen-cent cotton will be guaranteed, and that Southern growers will, through this agency, be enabled to double their receipts. The present billion-dollar crop, in other words, will be $2,000,000,000.

Organization has been perfected in hundreds of counties throughout the cotton belt. The corporation proposes to market the entire crop direct from the planter to the spinner.

NEW ENGLAND.

Rockland Breakwater, Me.

On the shore of beautiful Penobscot Bay with the pine covered Camden mountains rising behind it.

Mountain and Seashore

In Delightful Combination.

Sea bathing, boating, sailing alternate with canoeing on the exquisite little lakes up in the mountains. There is mountain climbing, riding, automobiling, tennis and golf. The golf links closely rival the famous seaside links of Scotland. The wonderful Maine air makes every activity doubly enjoyable.

The social life has an individuality and charm that draws people back year after year. In cuisine and service, the Sam-O-Set is without a rival on the Maine coast. It is under the management of the Ricker Hotel Co.

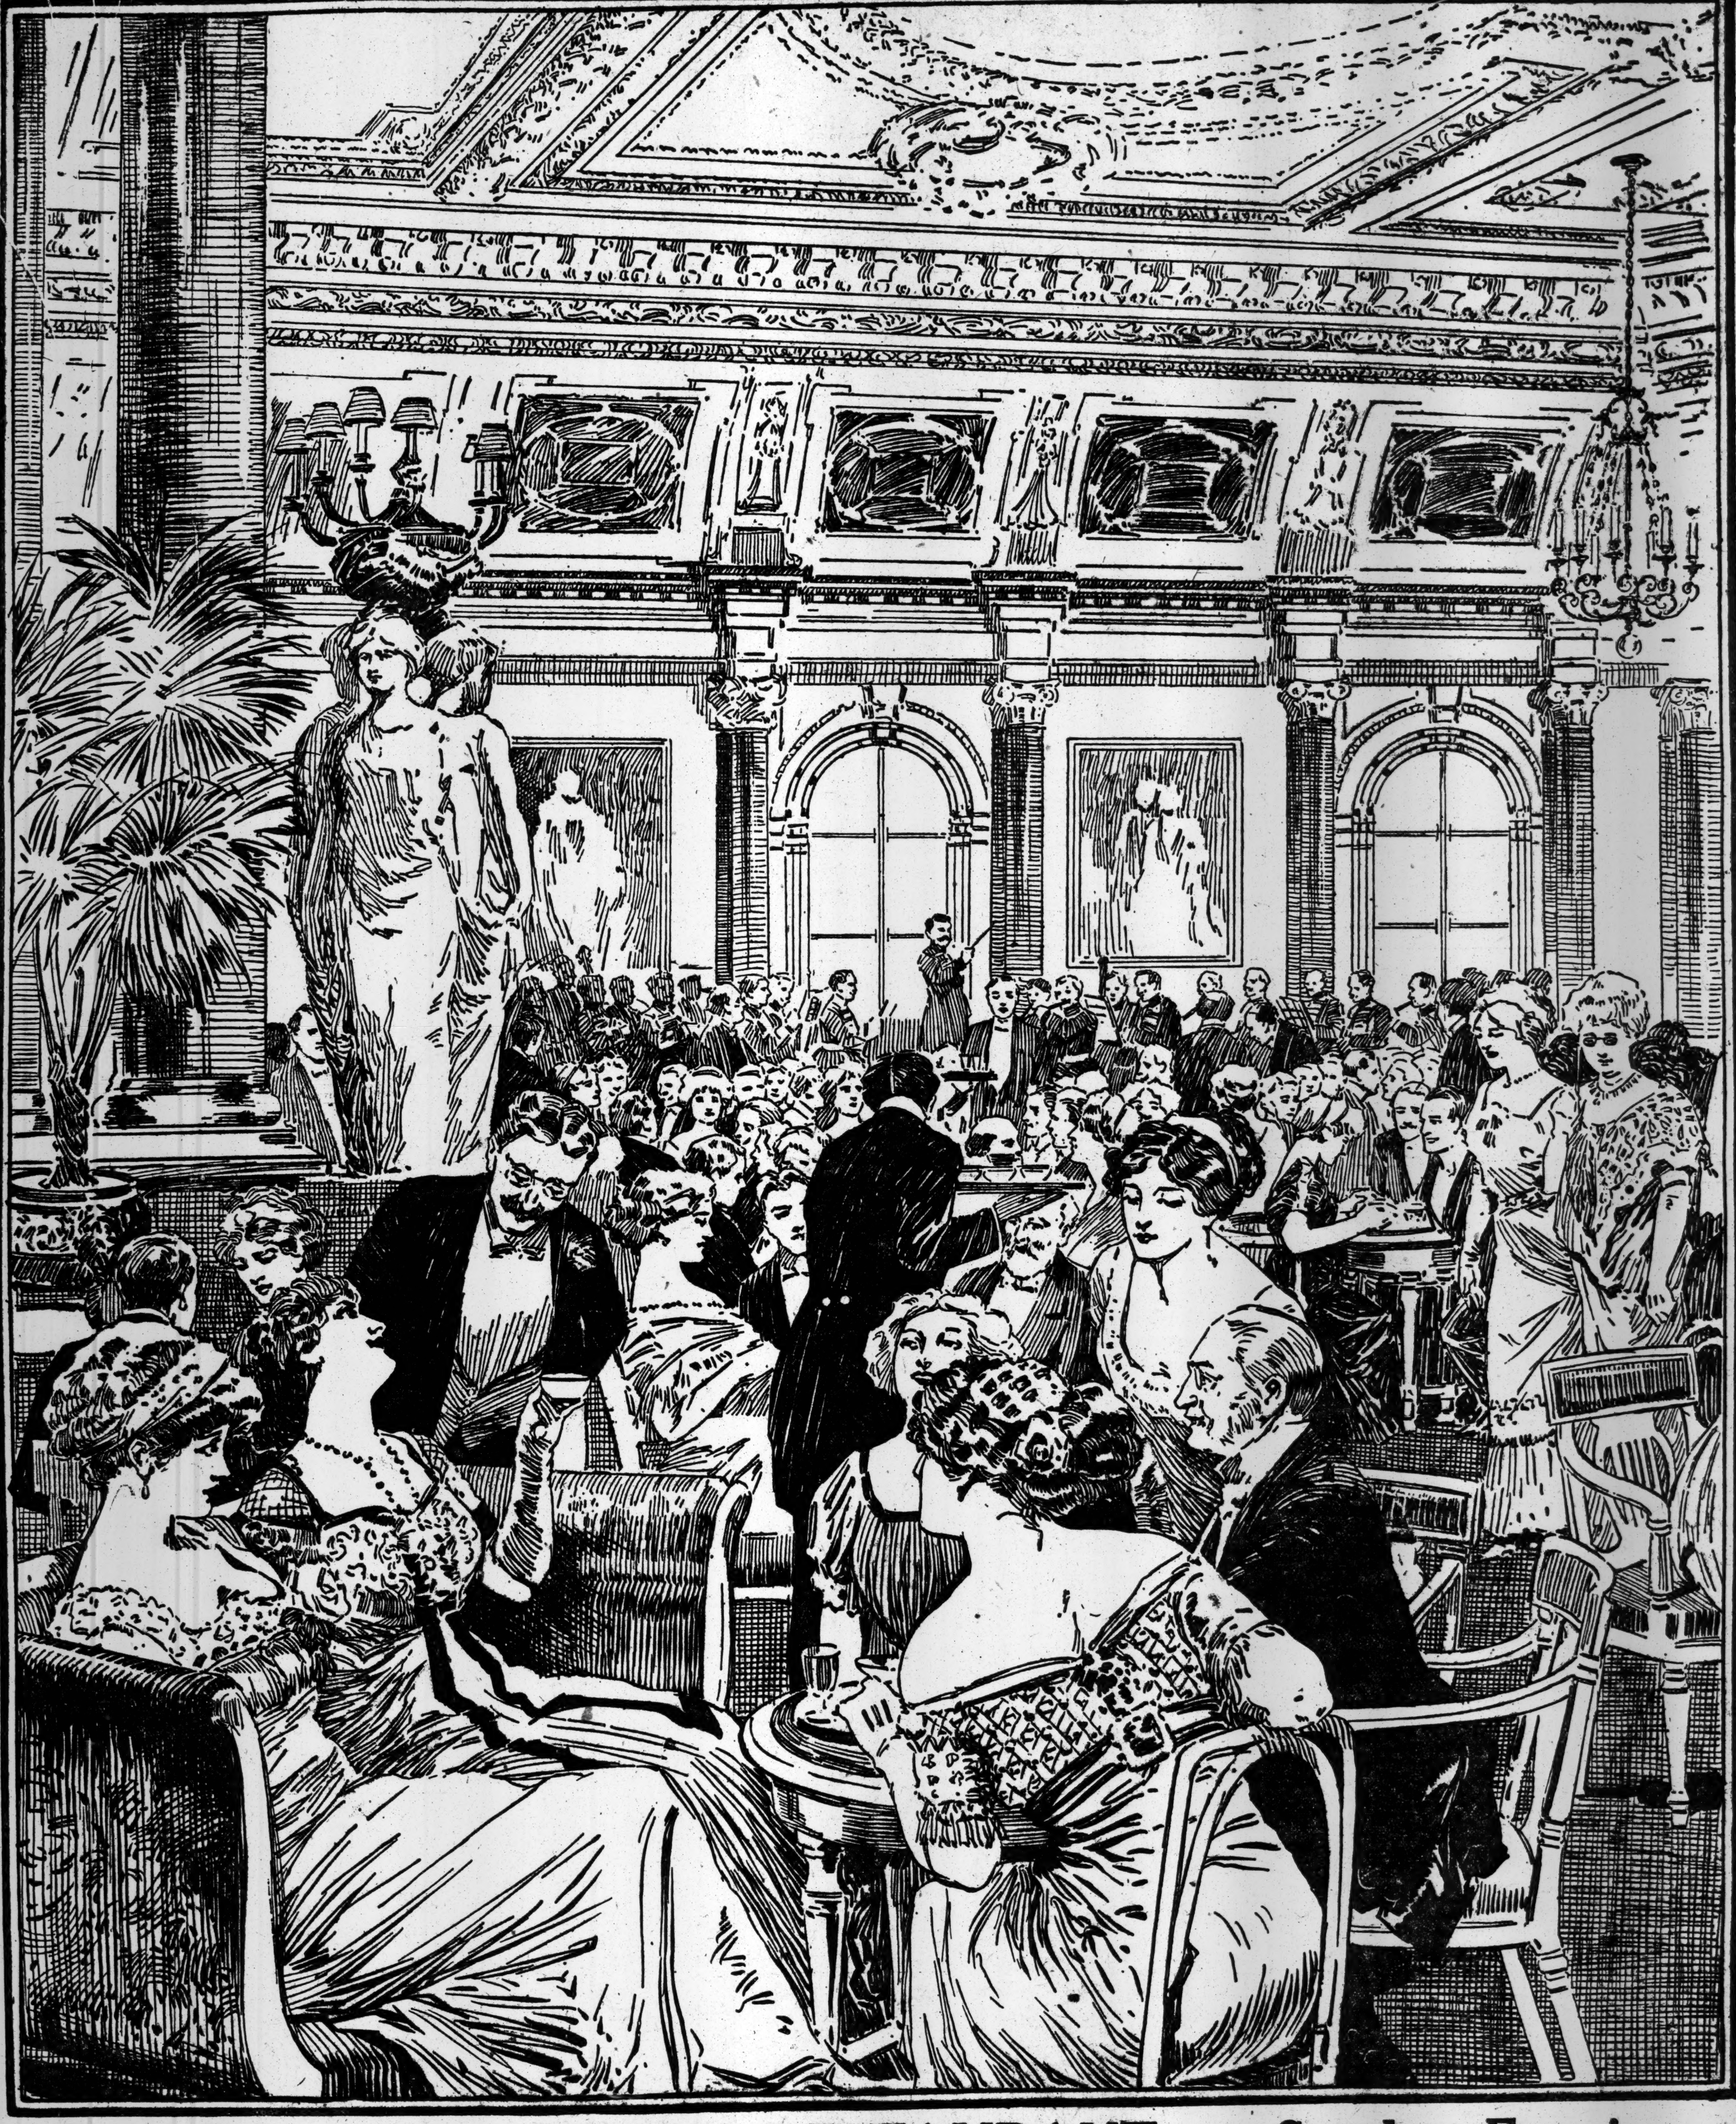
THE NEW YORK TIMES.



The Foyer of the SAVOY RESTAURANT on Sunday Evening.

EXTRACTS FROM THE LONDON PRESS:—

"Sunday evening at the Savoy Restaurant is once again one of the sights of London. There will be six hundred persons or more dining there to-morrow night; many of the celebrities now over here will be present."

From The Evening Standard.

"Sunday night is the great night at the Savoy Restaurant, and brilliant in the extreme is the sight it presents. Lovely women, flower-laden tables, the glimmer of shaded lights, and the ripple of music and laughter fascinate the eye and charm the ear. . . . No stranger of distinction is permitted to miss a Sunday dinner at the Savoy."

From The Ladies Field.

"It is evident that Sunday evening at the Savoy is to be as great an institution as ever during the coming winter. The demand for tables in the restaurant is already reaching the limits of managerial capacity."

From The Westminster Gazette.

"For visitors to London who are desirous of beholding famous people of whom they have heard or read there is no better vantage place than the foyer of the Savoy Restaurant. In that brilliant rendezvous may nightly be seen members of the noblest families in the land, men and women distinguished in the world of literature, science and art, with millionaires and M.P.'s in close proximity. On Sunday evenings the company includes the leading lights of the drama and opera."

From The Gentlewoman.

"'London is always en fete,' said a French gentleman last week to summarise his impressions of a visit to Britain's metropolis. The Savoy Restaurant certainly conveys that idea, for probably in no other city in the world can such brilliant assemblies be seen as nightly gather there for dinner and supper. There must have been quite 800 people dining in the Savoy Restaurant on Sunday last. The winter garden was crowded; from the balcony came ejaculations in foreign tongues on the beauty of the Thames at night."

From The Tatler.

"The Savoy is as cheerful a great restaurant as is to be found in the world. . . . I never stand at the top of the crimson steps leading down through the cafe-au-lait marble pillars with gilt capitals into the great foyer without feeling inclined to rub my hands together, as the good-tempered uncles always do in plays, and to say, 'Now I am going to have a jolly good dinner, and am going to enjoy it thoroughly.'"

From an article by Lieut.-Col. NEWNHAM-DAVIS, in The World.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The disturbance that was central over the upper lake region Saturday night has diminished considerably in intensity and area, and its centre is now passing down the St. Lawrence Valley. During the last twenty-four hours it caused unsettled weather and local rains in practically all districts east of the Mississippi River. West of the Mississippi River the weather remained generally fair, although the barometric pressure is considerably below normal over the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain region. The temperature has risen somewhat in the Mississippi Valley and the Plains States, and it has changed little elsewhere.

There will be showers Monday in the North Atlantic States, and at widely scattered points in the Southeast and along the north border from Minnesota to Michigan. In other parts of the country the weather will be fair Monday and Tuesday.

The winds along the New England Coast will be moderate south, shifting to west; the Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate, southwest and west; South Atlantic and East Gulf Coast, light variable.

Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have moderate to brisk south to west winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Monday, preceded by showers in interior. Tuesday, fair; light to moderate southwest winds.

Western New York—Fair Monday and Tuesday; light west winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey—Probably fair Monday and Tuesday; light to moderate south to west winds.

New England—Local showers Monday. Tuesday, fair, moderate south, shifting to west winds.

	1911.	1912.		1911.	1912.
8 A. M.	72	68	4 P. M.	92	78
6 A. M.	75	70	6 P. M.	87	77
9 A. M.	81	70	9 P. M.	79	76
12 M.	89	81	12 P. M.	74	74

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 75; for the corresponding date last year it was 82; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 73.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 78; at 8 P. M. it was 79. Maximum temperature, 82 degrees at 1:30 P. M.; minimum, 68 degrees at 8 A. M. Humidity, 81 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 68 per cent. at 8 P. M.

CENSORSHIP.

By advertising your wants on this page you can secure the benefits which are derived from the confidence readers have in The New York Times.

One reader says:

"The rigid censorship in regard to misleading advertising which you have instituted and maintained is, I believe, the backbone of your success, and it is nowhere better illustrated than in your want columns. Your insistence upon a clear wording of the advertisements you publish is not only a protection, but a literal education for your patrons. The classification of the page is an evidence of attention to minute detail.

"The Times deserves much credit for making its Want Department, not a heterogeneous, unstable collection of chances, but a sound business proposition."

The type used for "Wants" is called agate. By counting seven words to the line in small type, or four words if set in capitals, you may readily estimate what your advertisement will cost you by consulting the following table of

TYPHOID EPIDEMIC TRACED TO ONE MAN

Thirty-two Cases and One Death Scare Moorestown, N. J., and Its Vicinity.

MILK HANDLER A "CARRIER"

Test of a Dairy Manager's Blood Shows That He Has Typhoid, Without Knowing It.

Special to The New York Times.

MOORESTOWN, N. J., Aug. 11.—One man innocently spread a typhoid epidemic that has thrown Moorestown and the neighboring townships into a state of terror, with a total of thirty-two cases and one death. Dr. F. F. Stroud, Inspector for the local Board of Health, and State Inspectors Bowen and McDonald are fighting the epidemic.

The inspectors said they located the trouble in the milk supply from the David Roberts farm. For care in handling and marketing milk the dairy is one of the best in the country, according to the local inspectors' records, yet in every case where the fever has developed, the milk from this dairy had been supplied to that home. The inspectors made blood tests of all the employes on the place. A report just received from the State Laboratories, according to Dr. Stroud, shows that Ellis Kinsler, manager at the Roberts farm, an expert dairyman, is what is known among physicians as a "typhoid carrier."

"Kinsler's blood shows the typhoid reaction in virulent form," said Dr. Stroud to-day. "Yet the strange thing about it is that the man himself has not known he is ill. On two recent afternoons, he says, he did not feel very well, but attributed it to the heat or some other minor cause. He did not even stop work, yet all this time his system was shedding the germs that we are now satisfied caused the epidemic. Such cases are rare, and a dairy is by far the most dangerous place in which we could find a typhoid carrier.

"Two of his children, Barbara and Daniel, are now critically ill with the fever. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott, living on the farm, have been taken to the hospital suffering from typhoid, and Robert Smith, also living on the place, has been stricken."

Of the twenty-seven typhoid patients in Moorestown proper the health authorities say every one was a consumer of the dairy of which Kinsler was overseer. One of the town victims is David A. Roberts, son of the owner of the dairy farm. The young man is critically ill at his home on Maple Avenue. Miss Rebecca Benner is so far the only victim to die in this epidemic.

"With the milk supply from the dairy shut off and every other dairy under closest observation and with the people using every precaution to protect themselves, I believe we have the epidemic under control," said Dr. Stroud. "One new case was reported this morning, but residents should not be alarmed if several cases develop in the next week, as the disease does not show itself until about a fortnight after infection. I urge the necessity for boiling all water and milk, and cooking all food until the danger is over."

Fifty citizens attended the last meeting of the Health Board and urged Chairman William B. Lippincott and his fellow-members to spare no expense in their efforts to halt the epidemic. Millionaire residents of Moorestown, the richest suburban town in South Jersey, promised to contribute any amount needed.

An indignation meeting of citizens has been called at the Town Hall for to-morrow night to demand a different source of water supply than that of the upper branch of Pensauken Creek.

WALL ST. TYPHOID CASES.

Charged to Bottled Water Used by Brokers Instead of Croton.

The typhoid rate of Manhattan Borough as a whole was never lower than at present, but through the Wall Street district there are conspicuous absences explained in the same way—"home, sick with typhoid fever." Most of these cases do not figure in the Manhattan statistics, because the victims are men who live out of town, in widely scattered communities of Long Island, in Westchester, Connecticut, and New Jersey.

Various explanations are given for the prevalence of typhoid this Summer in banking and brokerage circles. But the general idea is that the responsibility rests on certain bottled water supplied to banks and Stock Exchange houses.

One day last week a TIMES man was in a prominent brokerage office in the Wall Street district. He stepped to the water cooler to help himself to a drink. The manager of the office said:

"I wouldn't do that if I were you."

"Why not?" asked THE TIMES man with considerable surprise.

"Well, we've had a lot of typhoid down here recently, and some people say it is due to this bottled water. At any rate, nobody down here drinks any city water, and the victims hail from so many commuting points in different directions that the only theory is that the water supply all around New York must be bad."

This statement aroused the curiosity of THE TIMES man, who pressed the manager for further information. In a few moments' time the manager counted up on his fingers and thumbs a score of typhoid cases in offices he named, including the names of two men who had died during the last week. It was said that two banks and a trust company had changed the source of their bottled water supply since the matter became common gossip in the Wall Street district.

Dry Sunday at Coney Island.

In connection with the warnings given by W. W. Farley, Excise Commissioner, to the hotel keepers of Coney Island, detectives under Lieut. Costigan served warrants yesterday on twenty-five waiters, bartenders, and hotel keepers. They were arraigned at the Coney Island Police Station for violation of the excise laws, and their trials were set for Aug. 14. After the visit of the detectives the island was dry for the rest of the day.

BOMB FOR YOUNG WOMAN.

Rejected Suitor May Have Sent Machine That Wounded Expressman.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Aug. 11.—Startling displosures, indicating that the infernal machine which exploded in the High Point office of the Southern Express Company on Saturday was destined for a High Point society girl, followed a rigid investigation of the case to-day by United States District Attorney A. E. Holton and Police Chief Ridge. Information furnished by this woman to the authorities has caused the police to search for a man who lived at Thomasville, N. C., and is said to have good business and social connections.

The inquiry, the authorities assert, has established the fact that the infernal machine, which seriously wounded W. H. Brisbee, the express company manager, and his cashier, Alton Morton, was sent from Thomasville.

It is said that the package was entered at the Thomasville office on Dec. 20 last, and that, through a mistake in billing, it was waybilled to "Charles Hoover, High Point." The original shipping tag, it is declared, however, bore the name and address of a High Point girl. Expressmen made unsuccessful inquiry for the young woman, declaring that it hardly could have been meant for her, and on Saturday were on the point of consigning it to the "old hoss heap" when it exploded. No explanation for the error in waybilling has been offered.

The young woman to whom the package was addressed is said to have conferred with District Attorney Holton to-day. She told him, it is said, that the suspect became infuriated last Fall when she refused his offer of marriage, and that he left the house in a rage, declaring he would send immediately by express certain trinkets which he held as presents from her. The box, supposedly bearing the trinkets, the police allege, contained the infernal machine which exploded in the hands of the expressmen on Saturday.

HELD FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH.

Mrs. Trest Had Been Married Only a Week When He Died.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—Mrs. Frieda Trest, who keeps a saloon at 1,301 Germantown Avenue, and her head barkeeper, Edmund Geunkle of 4,811 North Mascher Street, were arrested to-day on charges preferred by the Coroner's detectives as the result of suspicious circumstances surrounding the death last Wednesday night of Mrs. Trest's husband, who is said to have died of arsenical poisoning.

Mrs. Trest was the widow of Fred Hartmann, a baker, and on Aug. 1 married Trest. They disagreed immediately. Last Monday Trest was confined to his room. Mrs. Trest said her husband had fallen from a car at Twenty-eighth and Jefferson Streets. A neighbor who heard Trest calling for help went to his room. Trest denied having fallen and asked for water.

Trest was known to possess nearly $5,000. He was insured for several thousand dollars. It is said at Police Headquarters that Mrs. Trest has her husband's will, in which everything is bequeathed to her.

LED HUSBAND TO JAIL.

Mrs. Levine Took Him Along the Street Held Firmly by the Ear.

Mrs. Pauline Levine, an athletic woman of 22, living at 51 Bristol Street, Brownsville, amused a large crowd yesterday by hauling her husband, Louis Levine, a shoemaker, from the front of her home to the Brownsville Police Station by the ear. She had him locked up to await examination to-day on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The manner in which she arrested her husband without the aid of a policeman excited the admiration of Desk Lieutenant William Eggers.

"That is the way to do it, Madam," he said. "If others with grievances would make their own arrests we'd be saved a whole lot of unnecessary trouble."

Mrs. Levine said she had left her husband, taking her four-year-old child and supported herself and the little one by working in a business office. When he went from his own home, at 292 Watkin Street, to her home yesterday, she lost her temper and rushing out to the sidewalk, where he stood, while neighbors looked on, she shook him sharply in spite of his size.

"I'm going to lock you up," she cried, and seizing him by the collar with one hand and by the ear with the other she hauled him half a dozen blocks to the Station House.

FIND MAN BEHEADED.

Body Bore an Emblem Marked O. D. H. S.—May Be a Suicide.

Special to The New York Times.

WINDSOR, Conn., Aug. 11.—The head of a man was found on the Joseph Lebeau place by a farmhand to-day, and seventy-five yards distant the body was discovered by a town constable.

The man wore expensive undergarments, black Oxford shoes, a soft hat, and a gray woolen suit. Doubt exists as to whether the man committed suicide and the head was moved by some animal or whether he was murdered and the head separated from the body.

Assistant Medical Examiner Flynn believes it is a case of suicide. He says the body had lain in the woods several weeks. No papers were found in the man's clothing to identify the body. An emblem bore the initials "O. D. H. S."

TRAMPS KILL TRAVELER.

John Sullivan, Whose Relatives Live Here, Thrown from Train.

Special to The New York Times.

ONEIDA, N. Y., Aug. 11.—John Sullivan, a mason of Wallkill, Ulster County, died this morning of injuries received when he was thrown off a fast freight train, which passed through here this morning, by two tramps who shared the car with him. He had been robbed of $4 and badly beaten.

Sullivan's legs had to be amputated. He was dicovered by a brakeman of an eastbound freight. Sullivan said he had a brother in New York City, a cabman, with a stand at Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street. A sister, Mrs. Norton, lives at 657 Tenth Avenue. An aunt, Mrs. Simpson, lives at West New York, N. J.

NEW GIANT GAS PLANT TO COST $100,000,000

TUNNEL UNDER EAST RIVER

Astoria Plant Will Cover 350 Acres —Unit No. 1 a Fuel Feeder for Unit No. 2.

The recent completion of the first half of Unit No. 2 of the Consolidated Gas Company's plant at Astoria marks another milestone in providing for New York the largest single gas plant in use anywhere in the world, as well as the most economical producing plant, owing to this very magnitude of operations. The first unit completed produces 20,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, and the half of Unit No. 2 which has just been completed has a capacity of 20,000,000 more. The entire nine units of which the plant is to be composed will have a productive capacity of 250,000,00 cubic feet of gas daily. The enormous capacity can be realized when it is borne in mind that at present the total consumption of Manhattan and the Bronx is 110,000,000 cubic feet. The entire plant, when finished, will be larger by far than the giant gas plant of London, which supplies the metropolis of the world.

Each unit is a manufacturing city in itself, constructed at a cost of from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000, and the entire plant, it is estimated, will represent an outlay of from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000. It will spread over an area of 350 acres.

Unit No. 2 is to be devoted to the manufacture of water gas, and is fed by coke, a by-product from Unit No. 1, in which gas is produced from anthracite coal. Unit No. 2 consists of one generator house, 85 feet by 211, and 100 feet high. In the generator house there are four large freight elevators for transporting coke from the basement to the third floor, where the machines are stored. The machines are all operated by a system of levers and hydraulic and electrical devices centred on the second floor.

South of the generator house are five steel and cast iron water tube condensers for cooling the gas, each condenser containing 2,000 cast iron tubes 3 inches in diameter and 12 inches long. East of the generator house is a pump house, 24 feet by 50 feet, containing fifteen pumps for handling oil tar and for circulating water from the steel tar separators located in a concrete pit 96 feet by 113 feet and 15 feet deep. South of the separators there is a huge 400,000-gallon steel storage tank for tar, and south of this an immense relief holder 139½ feet in diameter, with a storage capacity of 1,000,000 cubic feet.

To guard against fire in a plant so filled with most inflammable stuff there has been built on the water front east of the generator house a salt-water pumphouse, 30 feet by 41 feet, containing two large fire pumps and three pumps for supplying water to cool the gas condensers. At the north end of Berrian Island and removed from the plant proper are two steel oil tanks, with a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons each, surrounded by high earth embankments, built for confining the oil to the island in case the material catches fire from any cause. Such a sea of oil as is there stored would, if let loose on the East River, destroy a multitude of boats. At the north end of the island and also on the water front is an oil pumphouse for pumping gas oil from the tankboats to the storage tanks. All the buildings are of brick with concrete foundations, with slate and book tile roofs, except the generator, which, for extra safety, has a metal roof protected by asbestos.

A plant of such magnitude requires an enormous amount of feeding each day. Just east of the plant is a large coal storage yard, with a capacity of between 200,000 and 300,000 tons. This can be filled from the pier by two rapid unloaders, each with a capacity of 1,500 tons a day, and a cantilever storage and receiving and distributing bridge 606 feet long, with a capacity of 3,000 tons a day. The immense holder at the south end of the plant, the foundation of which is already completed, will measure 300 feet in diameter, 480 feet in height, and have a capacity of 15,000,000 cubic feet.

To convey the gas from the plant to the Bronx above 130th Street a big tunnel, 21 feet and 6 inches in diameter, is now being driven under the East River. This, at the present rate of progress, will be completed in about one year. In this subterranean passage two 70-inch pipes will be laid at a depth of 250 feet beneath the sea level. It is built so far beneath the river, through a wall of impenetrable rock, that no device is necessary to keep the water out. There is no use of compressed air in constructing the tunnel.

BEST WEEK FOR BABIES.

Record for Brooklyn and Manhattan Encouraging to Welfare Association.

The Babies' Welfare Association passed the best seven days of its Summer last week. During the week ending Saturday noon only 358 babies under 1 year died, 38 less than during the week of Aug. 3. Particularly gratifying is the showing in Brooklyn, which has been causing some anxiety to baby welfare workers. Last week there were only 88 deaths of infants under 1 year. In the corresponding week of 1911 there were 142 deaths. Until two weeks ago Brooklyn had been falling behind this 1911 record.

Manhattan Borough, which made a slight jump during the week of Aug. 3, went back to normal again last week with onily 193 deaths, against 205 in the corresponding week of the year before. The other three boroughs are close to last year's record. There have been 572 fewer deaths of infants under 1 year in Greater New York this year than there were last year at this time.

The milk stations of the greater city now have 17,147 babies enrolled, an increase of 377 over the week before. There were only 13 deaths of milk station babies last week.

MATE COMES AS PASSENGER.

Because He Argued with the Captain About Dust on a Sailing Ship.

The American bark Manga Reva arrived yesterday at Tompkinsville from San Francisco after 108 days, during which Capt. Townsend said he never sighted land or saw another ship. He passed the Diego Ramirez rocks off Cape Horn in the night, and he and his crew had no other company in the southern latitudes than the albatrosses, molly hawks, Mother Carey's chickens, and penguins, which swam around the bark all night when she was off the Cape.

When the Manga Reva was fifty days out from San Francisco the Captain and the mate, whose name is Bob Lennard, fell out over an argument as to where the dust came from on board a sailing ship, it was said. It was not finally decided, but the argument was closed by the Captain ordering the mate to his cabin, and from that time on he was a passenger, and seemed to have enjoyed the trip very much. Second Mate Perry, who had to do the larger part of the work in his watch below, getting up spare gear and sails, wore a look as if he were searching for a place to sleep for a week to rest up.

The bark was formerly the British ship Pyrenees, which was wrecked at Manga Reva, on the coast of California, and sold. She was afterward rebuilt in San Francisco and named after the place where she was wrecked.
